SUMMARY.

A waterfall rivalling Niagara has been found in British Guiana. It has been named the Chamberlain Fall.

Great damage has been done in Kent by a whirlwind which wrecked a number of farms.

The monetary stringency in the United States is abating, and an early resumption of cash payment is anticipated.

The Valencia express while crossing a bridge in north-eastern Spain became derailed and fell into a river.

Twenty people were killed and 60 others were injured.

The Ministry of the Orange River Colony, consequent upon the election of a Parliament, has been formed.

Mr. Fischer is Premier and Colonial Secretary. The Parliament will meet on December 19.

While the political crisis in Portugal is admitted, denials are given to the allegations of impending civil war.

The stories are attributed to a deliberate campaign of falsehood against the Royal house.

A motor car tour round the world has been organised to start from Paris in February.

Major Baden Powell has expounded a scheme for the voluntary training of 1,750,000 boys in the United Kingdom.

The captain and eight survivors of the barque Alexandra, which was abandoned in May last while bound from Newcastle to Panama, have landed in Ecuador.

They were rescued in a pitiable plight on Indefatigable Island, one of the Galapagos group.

Major-General Sir Henry Colville has succumbed to the injuries he sustained by the collision of his motor cycle with a motor car.

The Irish Land League stopped the Ormond Hunt. Several hounds were poisoned at the last meet near Tullow, and two died.

Twenty robbers raided a Russian monastery at Krypetsk, killing six of the inmates.

An explosion set fire to a tenement house in New York, and 13 Italians perished in the flames.

All the collieries in the Newcastle district were at work yesterday, and no further trouble has arisen with the miners.

Rhondda colliery resumed work with the rest of the pits.

As the result of the general work, a large quantity of coal arrived at the Dyke from the various mines yesterday morning.

Many steamers and three sailing ships are loading at the Dyke. The bulk of this week's output will be loaded into steamers.

There were over 60 sailing vessels and 22 tramp steamers in Newcastle Harbour yesterday. Berthing accommodation is severely taxed.

Mr. Keir Hardie arrived at Fremantle from Colombo on Monday night. He was welcomed by the local Labour representatives.

The Victorian Government proposes to substitute electricity for steam on the suburban railways.

The House of Representatives met at 11 o'clock yesterday morning to resume consideration of the tariff.

The postponed items under the division of metals and machinery were discussed.

The House Committee of the Federal Parliament has been called together to consider the undue amount of lobbying that has been going on of late.

With a view to hastening the progress of the tariff, the Prime Minister was asked to apply the closure to the Opposition.

Mr. Deakin replied: "So far as the rules permit, we have been applying the closure of common sense and sound argument."

The Prime Minister is taking up the case of the Crimea and Indian Mutiny veterans who are spending the evening of their days in charitable institutions.

At the Peel River resumption inquiry the evidence for the company has been concluded. Addresses will be commenced to-day.

The Kalgoorlie Chamber of Mines says the Excise Act threatens to be a serious overlapping of State and Commonwealth jurisdiction in industrial matters.

Ben Tillett is visiting Tasmania. The Mayor of Hobart refused to accord him an official reception.

A fire broke out early yesterday morning in the weighman's room at the main shaft of Block 14 mine, Broken Hill.

The poppet-heads were destroyed, and work at the mine will be suspended for some weeks until new heads are erected.

The rumours as to the discovery of petroleum in the Boonah district, Queensland, have some foundation in fact.

Coalbeds of prospective value have also been found in the same district.

George Toffts was executed in Tamworth Gaol yesterday for the murder of Maud Fletcher at Quirindi.

Trouble is experienced between the miners and the management of the Virginia Company's mine, Eaglehawk. It may result in the lock-out of over 100 men.

Mr. Waddell, the Treasurer, says that in a few years the Rocks area will be one of the most beautiful places of the city.

The Government hoped to rebuild the whole area, and remove everything of an objectionable character.

The independent engineer's report on the power-house breakdown on August 21 shows that the failure was initially due to a shortage of lubricant.

The official opening of the Day-street extension was performed by the Premier yesterday.

It is believed that the elections in Queensland will take place on January 11.

The Marama, the largest vessel of the Union Company's fleet, arrived yesterday on her first voyage from Wellington.

The Union Company is going in for an experiment in freight carriers, and a vessel of the "turret" type is being built at Sunderland.

The Income Tax Deductions Bill was further considered in committee in the Assembly last night.

Mr. Beeby, in moving that the word "business" should not include "profession," said that doctors and lawyers mostly earned more than £1000 a year.

Mr. Downes said that whatever doctors and lawyers earned in the city, those in the country rarely earned £1000 a year.

An interstate conference is to be held to discuss the regulations dealing with the importation of fruit from New South Wales into Victoria.

Lieutenant Shackleton, the leader of the South Polar expedition, arrived at Fremantle by the R.M.S. India from London on Monday night.

A Peace Society was formed in Sydney last night. The society will endeavour to secure the adoption of arbitration in international disputes.

The balance-sheet submitted at the half-yearly meeting of the Bank of New South Wales exhibited expansion in more than one direction.

Mary Chalk brought an action against the Manly Chair Company for injuries alleged to have been sustained by the collapse of a beach chair.

The plaintiff was nonsuited on the ground that there was no proof of hiring by plaintiff or of negligence on the part of the defendants.

Two youths named Norman Dean and Herbert Green were yesterday acquitted on a charge of the manslaughter of Bombardier McAloney, of the Royal Australian Artillery.

A good volume of business was transacted on 'Change yesterday at firmer rates.

The local wool market showed considerable improvement yesterday. The whole of the decline of the previous day was recovered.

Operations in the mining market were on a limited scale, prices of silver stocks showing a weakening tendency.

A heavy thunderstorm passed over Sydney yesterday afternoon. Rain fell in torrents, and the wind reached a velocity of 70 miles an hour.

During the storm the foremast of the steamer Oonah, which was leaving the wharf in Darling Harbour, was struck by lightning.

A hurricane occurred at Collarenebri. Several buildings were unroofed, and a house was struck by lightning.

FARMER'S HIGH-CLASS TAILORING.

TO BE WELL DRESSED IS THE HALL MARK OF A GOOD APPEARANCE.

Not only does a man command more respect from others when well dressed, but he feels more RESPECT FOR HIMSELF, and he can "look the world in the face" with much more confidence than if he were ill-clad. IN FACT, THE CLOTHES DO MAKE THE MAN IN MANY SENSES.

But not every man who spends money freely on clothes is well dressed—the money must be spent IN THE RIGHT WAY AND WITH THE RIGHT TAILOR. And it is just here that Farmer's High-class Tailoring comes in. Every suit made is perfect in the smallest detail, and at once STAMPS THE WEARER WITH THE HALL MARK OF A WELL-DRESSED INDIVIDUAL.

A SPECIAL DISPLAY IN FARMER'S WINDOWS.

The display we are making in our Pitt and Market street Windows of Woollens specially imported for our Suitings is but an index of our splendid stocks, which please call and inspect.

ORDER YOUR XMAS SUIT NOW.

HIGH-CLASS SUITINGS.
The Pitt-street Window shows a range of Suitings from 70s to 90s the suit. These are summer weights, latest designs and newest colourings, and all fabrics are thoroughly shrunk. If you are a CONNOISSEUR IN CLOTHES you should see these.

EXCLUSIVE SUITINGS.
The first Market-street Tailoring Window (Pitt-street approach) displays special suitings, carefully selected by our buyers from designs reserved to us.
There is just one suit length only of each. They will appeal to gentlemen who prefer exclusive apparel, as they embrace the Latest Colourings in Tropical Tweeds, Cheviots, and Worsteds.

MEDIUM-CLASS SUITINGS.
The second Market-street Window is devoted to an exhibit of medium-class suitings, for business, holiday, travelling, and general wear. Here also is a display of Crashes, Tussores, Silks, etc., for hot weather garments, showing some very smart designs.

THREE-GUINEA SUITS.
Woollens for these and for our far-famed 17s 6d Trousers are shown in the third Market-street Window. They include Flannels, Worsteds, Tweeds, Cheviots, etc., all carefully selected and thoroughly shrunk.
Purchasing these as we do direct from the manufacturers, we are enabled to put such value into our Three-Guinea Suits as to place them on the Pinnacle of Popularity.

A PHENOMENAL INCREASE.
Our Tailoring Department last year showed a phenomenal increase, and we have been compelled to engage another first-class cutter, making FIVE EXPERTS NOW ENGAGED IN SUIT-BUILDING.

THE TESTIMONY IS ELOQUENT.
The testimony is in itself eloquent. The expansion is due to the fact that our satisfied customers are our best advertisement, and every suit is carefully and faithfully built.

IN MINOR MATTERS.
What some tailors regard as minor matters we look upon as essentials; hence, we import best quality trimmings for our suits, so that down to the smallest detail we attain Suit Perfection.

ORDER FOR XMAS TO-DAY.
By placing your order for a suit now you will avoid the rush which must of necessity occur as Xmas approaches, and you can be fitted comfortably and at leisure.

Patterns, Tape, and Self-measurement Instructions Sent Post Free TO COUNTRY PATRONS.

MEN'S MERITORIOUS MERCERY.
Nowhere, we are confident, can you find a better range in everything a gentleman needs in Shirts, Pyjamas, Ties, Collars, Braces, Socks, etc., than at Farmer's.

FASHIONS UP TO DATE.

The SMART PARISIAN and LONDON TRIMMED HATS which we are showing to-day in THE CELEBRATED GREEN ROOM at the

NEW PALACE EMPORIUM

represent ABSOLUTELY the LATEST EFFORTS of Milliners who cater for the wants of Fashionable Europe.
The BRIMS show that the VOGUE of BIG HATS is firmly established for those who can wear them, and the AUREOLE SHAPE, which has a DISTINCTIVE CHARM of ITS OWN, takes a prominent place.
While MANY of the STYLES may seem EXTREME, the NEWEST PRODUCTIONS of the Parisian Milliner are still FAR BEHIND that affected by Marie Antoinette, who, history says, wore hats three and a half feet across, with crowns varying from seven and a half inches to nine inches high. Nell Gwynne, the stage favourite in the days of Merry King Charles, is credited with WEARING HATS FOUR FEET ACROSS, LOADED WITH OSTRICH PLUMES. Pepys chronicles that the COST of these FASHIONABLE MILLINERY PRODUCTIONS ran into FABULOUS FIGURES, and that the Ladies of the day vied with each other in the possession of such fantastic head covering.
It is our business to be up to date; therefore we are prepared with the very latest smart Millinery, some of which we enumerate to-day and quote at

ANTHONY HORDERNS' FAMOUS LOW PRICES.

THE GREAT SENSATIONAL RESCUE. Heroism.
THE PRESS APPLAUDS.
THE HERALD.—"The author's imagination has been stimulated by the tragic doings at the Bonnie Vale mine, and he has shown ingenuity and a sure knowledge of dramatic construction in his long third act, the seven scenes of which, so far from seeming slow or superfluous, move on with admirable rapidity to the climax."
THE DAILY TELEGRAPH.—"The rescue of the entombed miner is generally well managed. He is shown in his cave in the wall of rock, shut off completely from the world, and threatened with starvation unless help comes speedily. Then Diver Hughes appears, making his way along the passage immediately beneath which, presumably, is intended to represent the 1000ft drive, and as his helmet appears in the lodgment above, rising out of the water, the astonished prisoner's fright is well simulated."

MEDICAL, CHEMICALS, ETC.

THE CURE OF CONSUMPTION.
CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, and CATARRH, by an entirely new remedy. Illustrated by numerous cases pronounced incurable by the most eminent Physicians, 28th edn., 180th Thou., post free, of Author, 2s 6d. By E. W. Alabone, M.D., Phil., D.Sc., ex-M.R.C.S., Eng., Lynton House, Highbury Quadrant, London N. By the same Author, "Testimonies of Patients, with Comments on the Open Air Treatment." Price, 1s.
Sir Edward Buck, LL.D., K.C.S.I., also writes:—"I have recently witnessed the rescue from the brink of the grave to a sound and happy life of one who had been condemned by all, experts and friends, who knew the sufferer to an early death. Your columns have been filled with similar evidence of the efficacy of the Alabone treatment, in many cases pronounced 'desperate' by the highest authorities."
Some unscrupulous persons are offering preparations purporting to be Dr. Alabone's Remedies for Consumption, and said to be made in accordance with his formula.
Such statements are absolutely false in every detail; no person has any authority either to use Dr. Alabone's name or sell such preparations. Proceedings have been taken, and will continue to be taken, against such unwarrantable use of Dr. Alabone's name. Dr. Alabone's treatment is specially adapted to every case, according to its type and symptoms; these supposed remedies therefore constitute a real danger to those upon whom they are foisted. It will thus be seen that sufferers should put themselves in direct communication with Dr. Alabone, in his address given above.

A SAFE MEDICINE FOR LADIES.
ABRAHAM'S PILLS.
The reason is they are a purely vegetable composition, and expressly suited to the constitution and requirements of women. This explains the great success and golden opinions which follow their use. Thousands say they save all trouble, effectually remove all impurities from the blood, beautify the complexion, no headache, no pain, no flushing, no giddiness. They make work a pleasure and existence a joy. Sold everywhere. In boxes, 1s, 2s, 5s.

CHAPTER II.
THE CRISIS.

Early springtime is cruel on the east coast of Scotland, and it was a bitter morning in March when Dundee took another of his many farewells before he left his wife to attend the Convention at Edinburgh. It was only a month since he had come down from London, disheartened for the moment by the treachery of Royalists, and the timidity of James, and he had found relief in administrating municipal affairs as Provost of Dundee. If it had been possible in consistence with his loyalty to the Jacobite cause, and the commission he had received from James, Dundee would have gladly withdrawn from public life and lived quietly with his wife. He was an ambitious man, and of stirring spirit, but none knew better the weakness of his party, and no one on his side had been more shamefully treated. It had been his lot to leave his bride on their marriage day, and now it would be harder to leave her at a time when every husband desires to be near his wife. But the summons to be present at the Convention had come, and its business was to decide who should be King of Scotland, for though William had succeeded to the throne of England, James still reigned in law over the northern kingdom. Dundee could not be absent at the deposition of his king and the virtual close of the Stuart dynasty. As usual he would be one of a beaten party, or perhaps might stand alone; it was not his friends but his enemies who were calling him to Edinburgh, and the chances were that the hillmen would settle their account with him by assassination. His judgment told him that his presence in Edinburgh would be fruitless, and his heart held him to his home. Yet day after day he put off his going. It was now the thirteenth of March, and to-morrow the Convention would meet, and if he were to go he must go quickly. He had been tossed in mind and troubled in heart, but the instinct of obedience to duty which Graham had obeyed through good report and evil, without reserve, and without scruple, till he had done not only the things he ought to have done, but many things also which he ought not to have done, finally triumphed. He had told Jean that morning that he must leave. His little escort of troopers were saddling their horses, and in half an hour they would be on the road, the dreary, hopeless road it was his fate to be ever travelling. Jean and he were saying their last words before this new adventure, for they both knew that every departure might be the final parting. They were standing at the door, and nothing could be greyer than their outlook. For a haar had come up from the sea, as is common on the east coast, and the cold and dripping mist blotted out the seascape; it hid the town of Dundee, which lay low Dudhope, and enveloped the castle in its cold garments, like a shroud, and chilled Graham and his wife to the very bone.

"Ye will acknowledge, John, that I have never hindered you when the call came." As she spoke Jean took his flowing hair in her hand, and he had never seen her so gentle before, for indeed she could not be called a soft or tender woman.

"Ye told me what would be the way of life for us, and it has been what ye said, and I have not complained. But this day I wish to God that ye could have stayed, for when my hour comes, and it is not far off, ye ken I will miss you sairly. Other women have their mothers with them in that strait, but for me there is none; naebody but strangers. If ony evil befall thee, John, it will go ill with me, and I have in my keeping the hope of your house. Can ye no bide quietly here with me and let them that have the power do as they will in Edinburgh? No man of your own party has ever thanked you for anything ye did, and if my mother's people do their will by you, I shall surely die and the child with me. And that will be the end of the House of Dundee. Must ye go and leave me?" And now her arm was round him, and with the other hand she caressed his face, while her warm bosom pressed against his cold, hard cuirass.

"Queensberry, for the liar he always was, said ye would be my Delilah, Jean, but that I know was not in you," said Dundee, smiling sadly and stroking the proud head, which he had never seen bowed before.

"You are, I believe in my soul, the bravest woman in Scotland, and I wish to God the men on our side had only had the heart of my Lady Dundee. With a hundred men and your spirit in them, Jean, we had driven William of Orange into the sea, or, at the worst, we should certainly save Scotland for the king. Well and bravely have ye stood by me since our marriage day, and if I had ever consulted my own safety or sought after private ends, I believe ye would have been the first to cry shame upon me. Surely ye have been a true soldier's wife, and ye are the same this morning, and braver even than on our wedding day.

"Do not make little of yourself, Jean, because your heart is sore, and ye canna keep back the tears. It is not given to a man to understand what a woman feels in your place, but I am trying to imagine, and my love is suffering with you, sweetheart. I do pity you, and I could weep with you, but tears are strange to my eyes—God made me soft without and hard within—and I have a better medicine to help you than pity." Still he was caressing her, but she felt his body straightening within the armour.

"When ye phophesy that the fanatics of the west will be at me in Edinburgh I suspect ye are right, but I pray you not to trouble yourself overmuch. They have shot at me before with leaden bullets and with silver, trying me first as a man and next as a devil, but no bullet touched me, and now if they fall back upon the steel there are two or three trusty lads with me who can use the sword fairly well, and though your husband be not a large man, Jean, none has had the better of him when it came to sword-play. So cheer up, lass, for I may fall some day, but it will not be at the hands of a skulking Covenanter in a street brawl.

"But if this should come to pass, Jean—and the future is known only to God—then I beseech you that ye be worthy of yourself, and show them that ye are my Lady Dundee. If I fall then ye must live, and take good care that the unborn childd shall live, too, and if he be a boy—as I am sure he will be—then ye have your life-work. Train him up in the good faith and in loyalty to the king; tell him how Montrose fought for the good cause and died for it, and how his own father followed in the steps of the Marquis. Train him for the best life a man can live and make him a soldier, and lay upon him from his youth that ye will not die till he has avenged his father's murder. That will be worthy of your blood and your rank, aye, and the love which has been between us, Jean Cochrane and John Graham."

She held him in her arms till the very breastplate was warm, and she kissed him twice upon the lips. Then she raised herself to her full height—and she was as tall as Graham—and looking proudly at him, she said:

"Ye have put strength into me, as if the iron which covers your breast had passed into my blood. Ye go to-day with my full will to serve the king, and God protect and prosper you, my husband and my Lord Dundee."

DROWSY EVERY DAY.

WEARY AND LANGUID FROM A BAD LIVER; NO APPETITE; COATED TONGUE—AND INDIGESTION. CURED BY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

"Liver Trouble runs in our family, and when I got it I felt myself getting heavier and drowsier every day," said Mrs. Jane Wathen, Bowen Bridge-road, near Nicholas-street, Brisbane. "I was ailing for about three years. I couldn't look at food; a morsal of fat would upset me. I had a very poor appetite, everything tasted the same. I never had a clean tongue, and there was always a vile taste in my mouth. The pit of my stomach ached as though it were being dragged down. My chest and back had cold pains in them, which were worse after eating. I had a pain all down my left side, and a burning pain at the heart.

"I couldn't stoop to pick up anything or even tie my boots—everything seemed to go black about me. I slept heavy the first few hours of the night, and then I would lie awake until daylight. I had palpitation so bad that often I felt as if I were suffocating. My head would swim and my legs shake under me. Mother thought that I was in a decline, and so did the neighbors. I had headaches all over my head, but the pains were worse in the temples. I always felt as if some great trouble were coming along. My skin was as yellow as a sovereign. I was so weak that I could hardly drag round the house. I went to the Brisbane Hospital for about two months, but I got no better, and I had the lodge doctor for a long time. Then a lady whom I accidentally met in the tram said that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had cured her daughter, so on her advice I got a couple of boxes. Before I had finished the first box I felt brighter and could eat better. I kept on with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and now to-day my health is good in every way."

Now, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the strength in just one way—they actually make new blood. That is all they do, but they do it well. But you must insist on getting the genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If your local retailer cannot give you exactly what you ask for, order them by mail from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Sydney—price 2s 9d a box, six boxes 15s 3d, post free. If you are in any doubt about your illness, write to the same address for hints as to diet, etc.—Advt.

BABIES' HOTEL.

There is a secondary part of the Norland Nurseries scheme which was briefly alluded to by Mrs. Greig-Smith in the address given last week at the Women's Patriotic Club. At the nurseries will be found accommodation for children whose parents are travelling, or living out of the country. In England there are charming suites of rooms in the nurseries, each accommodating two children, who are of varied ages. It is thought better not to put two children of the same age together. Here parents can leave their children with every confidence that they will be happy and well looked after. About 20 children can be taken in at a time, but as each child makes an average stay of a fortnight, hundreds pass through the hotel in the course of the year.

At one time, Englishwomen living in India, when their children reached a certain age, practically had to choose between living with their husbands or their children, as it is absolutely necessary that the children should be transferred to different surroundings. Indian nurses are said to convey opium inside their finger nails to their charges to induce sleep, and this shocking habit may have as much to do with the pallor and illhealth of children reared in India as the climate. Nowadays, Anglo-Indian women who prefer to stay by their husbands find reason to bless the Norland Nurseries.

There are many women in Sydney who would gladly go for short trips with their husbands if they knew how to dispose of their families. Such people will find the Norland Home very useful.

To meet the case of people who cannot afford to employ Norland nurses, as set forth last week, it has been agreed to establish emergency nurses. These are nurses who will sleep out, and go from house to house as required. For a few shillings a week, a mother who is obliged to be economical will get her babe looked after by a capable nurse for part of every day.

It has been decided to call the babies' hotel and nurses' training school the Sydney Norland Nursery. Handsome subscriptions towards the scheme have been received, many leading doctors are warmly taking it up, a suitable house is under offer, and the undertaking bids fair to be a great success.

PARENTS AND TEACHERS.

The Parents' National Educational League is an English institution which has a large following of most of the people of advanced thought, and also much literature. A branch of it, which is really a Parents' and Teachers' League, has been established in Victoria, and another branch will probably be started here. The work of the league is more suggestive than actual. It cannot make its resolutions binding on the community. By persistent representations and appeals it got the Act for the registration of teachers passed. The object of the Victorian league is the bringing together of the guardians of the young persons.

"If my boy's master knows what manner of person I am," said a mother, "and I know the individuality of the man who teaches my boy, we both know where we are." The boy is more likely to be an object of interest and not an abstraction. Boys and girls from 14 upwards have had to have their pleasures curtailed. The leagues have made the reforms general, not pressing hardly on a few. A boy received 60 invitations to evening parties in one term. Such dissipation, combined with a little study, left the young gentleman a wreck and his examinations a complete failure.

There are three branches of the league in Victoria, one at Hawthorn, one at Kew, and one for schools south of the Yarra. Delegates from these societies, which have about 300 members, form a council, and give a united decision about any question that is discussed. The training of the youth in the colleges and large private schools is dealt with. During the three or four years the league has been in existence its enthusiastic supporters, including Dr. Kent Hughes, the founder, claim that the interest of parents in the education of their children has been aroused, and that the cordiality between them and the teachers has extended to the pupils. The dinner coat is said to have been answerable for much trouble amongst students. When the Eton or short jacket marked the age of the boy as the pigtail does that of the girl, he could hardly be included in a festive assemblage of his elders. A harassed hostess short of men will ruthlessly tempt the student of 16 or 18 from his books, so as to have "enough dancers, anyhow." When the restriction of amusements has been dealt with the league intimates its wish that no parties for school children shall last after 10 o'clock, and that parties shall only be given on Friday nights or Saturday during term.

The proper escort home of the daughters is another matter that needs attention. The young lady whose hair is not "up" is not supposed to need a chaperon, and instructions to "be home early," are supposed to indicate sufficient care. "There is sure to be someone to come home with," and other easy-going methods have been found to be no longer possible. All will be altered, and it will not be considered at all the thing to trust to chance for the return home of the young girl.

The restriction of examinations and the subject of holidays will be considered by the league. It is proposed to shorten all holidays during the year, and make a long vacation at Christmas. Then that long-standing difference of opinion in regard to home-lessons has been adjusted, and the question of the proper length of holidays has been amicably discussed. If a royal road to learning has not been discovered, at any rate the way of master and pupil has been made easier, and a mutual sympathy concerning difficulties has been created. The promoters and members of the Victorian branch of the league are anxious to be of use in establishing the work in other places. Their experience is at the disposal of anyone requiring knowledge. The books from England they have here in their possession dealing with the subject will be lent willingly.

DOLL AFTERNOON.

The Botanic Gardens will present an attractive sight next Saturday, at 3 o'clock, when the 700 or so girls belonging to the Girls' Realm Guild are invited to an informal meeting in connection with the Christmas tree to be given by the Ackermann centre. Each girl is to wear a knot of heliotrope ribbon as a distinction, and is asked to bring one dressed doll and three muslin bags (for sweets) for the tree. A large number of girls from all centres are sure to respond, and are to meet at the sundial, in the lower gardens. Inspecting the vast collection of dolls will afford great entertainment to the members of the guild and their friends.

HYGIENIC FURNITURE.

With a carpet that can be put in a tub and walls that can be scrubbed down, must be used furniture that will clean as easily. "Mission" style is greatly in demand. Another name for it is "lath." Besides the frame of an ordinary dining chair, two or three laths are used. For a bedstead, a head and footboard are made of the light strips.

The style has cheapness to recommend it, as a bedstead of this design will not cost a sixth as much as an ordinary article in steel or brass.

The only design permitted to a buyer bent upon both hygiene and expense is a Paris one. This has no wings, no top, only flat, dull, or burnished bands of brass, supported with rods top and bottom. Money may be put into this same pattern by having mother o' pearl inlaid.

Hygienic mattresses have engaged the attention of inventors at the Women's Work Exhibition; removable buttons seem to be relied upon by the exhibitors.

A model bedroom for the sick is shown in the medical section of the exhibition. Its austere and chilling fittings would freeze any microbe, and there is no place for the smallest germ. Buttons for mattresses and sofa are discarded; a light, even surface is alone seen. White paint covers the bedstead and the few articles of furniture in the room. Unbleached calico is on the Chesterfield couch and armchair. A glass table on a light iron-frame slips up and down the bed. The walls are white, the floor is bare. Safety, if not pleasure, should be assured with such precautions. A small room adjoins, called "old style." The contrast is sharp. There is a bedstead, heavily draped with tapestry and bullion fringe, curtains, carpets, and mahogany or cedar furniture. Danger lurks in every fold of material, and infection is possible in every inch of the wall papered with what is known as "flock."

The bedroom furnished with a "mission," or even a Paris bedstead, has its wardrobe and other pieces made of simple wood, unpolished, and without plateglass. Mirrors are as forbidden in the modern wardrobe, washstand, or any article except the dressing-table, as they are in the cell of the anchorite. The top of all pieces of furniture must be within the reach of the damp duster, in the charge of a moderately tall girl.

Children's rooms have undergone similar changes. Only nursery tales adorn walls and furniture in hygienic households. Jack and Jill, and Little Boy Blue, are the constant companions of the little ones. Tables are made low to suit tiny seats. High chairs that used to bring children to a level with high tables will soon vanish.

Mirrors must not be found on the sideboard or dinner waggon. Carving and polish must also be absent. Quaint Dutch models may be followed in library and hall.

THE CARE OF OLD LACE.

Most people have some real lace, while many possess precious heirlooms of Brussels, point d'Alencon, blonde, Limerick, and numerous other kinds; and each fortunate owner is naturally anxious that her treasured lacework should retain that delightful, indescribable tint that age alone can bring, for it is neither ivory, yellow, nor twine colour, but a tone of which Time alone holds the secret.

In this climate lavender, which seems to be somehow inseparably connected with old lace, attracts silver-fish, and they do irreparable damage to fabrics of this kind. Camphor may keep the pests away, but one can scarcely think of camphor and lace together. The best preservative, as well as the most poetically appropriate, is pot pourri, for the essential oils that are mixed with the rose leaves drive away both silver-fish and moth, beside giving to the lace the faintest and yet most penetrating of sweet scents.

Lace, and particularly old lace, should always be rolled, and never folded, or otherwise the threads will become worn and twisted out of place. But no matter what care one takes, it is sure to get soiled. Dry cleaning is then most often resorted to; but one should remember that this process thickens the finer kinds, such as Brussels, d'Alencon, and Limerick; for while the magnesia, or Fuller's earth, removes the dust and stains, still a certain amount of the powder is absorbed by the thread, and after two or three cleanings the lace becomes coarsened and furred. In the heavier laces this is not noticed, nor does it really affect them to any great extent.

The best way to clean the finer kinds is to wash them, but great care must be taken in doing this, and it should be done by hands that have an exceedingly light touch. According to an English expert, one should take a glass preserving jar and half fill it with hot, soapy water, to which a teaspoonful of powdered borax has been added. This quantity is sufficient for a pint of water. Put in the lace, and, having corked the bottle, let it soak for a couple of hours. Shake the bottle well, and keep changing the water until the lace is quite clean; then give it a final rinsing in clean water, to which borax has been added in the same proportion as already given. The borax imparts a slight stiffness to the fabric. Now take the lace and spread it carefully on a clean blanket, but on no account attempt to wring it. If it is not torn pin it down evenly with steel pins, or tiny bits of straw from a broom. The pin, or straw, is to be inserted like a tack and pushed straight through. Leave the lace in the sun to dry, and when dried place it between sheets of tissue paper. Then get an iron, barely warm, and pass it over the paper on both sides. When the lace is removed you will find it looks like new, only that it retains the beautiful old colour which is one of its greatest charms.

If the lace is so very old that it has become a deep yellow or tan colour, boiling may be resorted to. It is placed in a jar, as before described, and the jar is placed in another vessel containing water, and then put on the stove. Allow it to boil for two hours, and then rinse pin out and dry as before.

Honiton lace, duchess, and point d'Angouleme, are better not ironed. They should be merely put between sheets of blotting paper, after washing, and pressed between weights.

Silk laces should be treated with milk and borax instead of water.

Black lace should be rinsed in whisky, and cleansed off with tea; and coloured laces should be washed in water containing a teaspoonful of vinegar and one of salt, to the pint of water. The vinegar revives the colour, and the salt fixes it. Coloured laces must be ironed at once, while damp, with a fold of nainsook between them and the hot iron.

Old gold, coffee, or deep twine-coloured laces may be rinsed in weak coffee or tea—an ounce of either to a quart of water. Coffee gives a brighter colour than tea; but Condy's fluid is better than either, but it must be used very much diluted, or otherwise it will destroy the lace. The best way is to make it for yourself, by taking as much permanganate of potash as will lie on a sixpenny-piece, and dissolve it in two cups of boiling water.

Lace should never be really stiff, though heavy makes, like guipure, Venetian, point d'Irelande, point d'Arabe, and the Flemish laces may be slightly stiffened—just enough to prevent them looking crumpled, but not enough to prevent them falling into folds. To do this put a tablespoonful of well-washed rice to one and a half pints of water; boil it for a few minutes, and then strain the water off. Soak the lace in this rice-water for a few moments, then take it out and gently squeeze it between the two hands. Put it face downwards on a fold of flannel, and place some nainsook over it. Iron with a hot iron, and then place in the sun for five minutes. But, remember, this treatment is only to be adopted with the heavier laces. R. R.

To peel tomatoes, cover them with boiling water for half a minute, then lay them in cold water until they are perfectly cold, when the skin can be stripped off quite easily, leaving the tomatoes unbroken, and as firm as before they were scalded.

In many houses cold boiled potatoes are considered as waste, and do not make their appearance a second time at table. If cut into slices and dressed with salt, pepper, oil, and vinegar, also if possible with beetroot and celery added to them, they compose a most excellent and refreshing salad, especially when lettuce is scarce. A little chopped parsley should always be sprinkled over this dish as a garnish.

FASHION.

Ivory-backed brushes are now the costliest to be bought. They are much dearer than silver, and consequently are "the" thing at present. Whalebone brushes, the bones being of different lengths, are used to impart glossiness to the hair.

Hatpins grow longer and more fascinating every month. One of French make is a rose-tinted cameo, oval in shape, set in dull gold and oxidised silver, in an Empire design. The mushroom-shaped Japanese hatpins are pretty, looking something like a small hat with a turquoise crown and a silver brim. One of the newest hatpins is decidedly startling. There is a large coloured cut stone, and beneath this a reflector, attached to spiral springs. With every movement of the wearer's head the reflector vibrates, sending forth flashes of light, and the effect is quite dazzling.

A pretty "made-in-Germany" article has got as far from that country as England, and is likely to be seen soon in Australia. It is an elaboration of the old-fashioned round comb, which tiny children wore long ago. This modern arrangement consists of a fancy flexible band of white celluloid, half an inch in width, the same threaded with a satin ribbon, which ties under the chin. A rosette of the ribbon ornaments either side, and three satin rosebuds hang down as a finish on the right side. That last sounds rather ear-tickling, but the new hairband will keep the babies' hair out of their poor little necks.

Fashion's decree is that the season is to be literally a quiet one. No longer is it considered good form for a "grand dame" to herald her approach by a rattling of many silken skirts. Yet handsome silks will play an important part in the building of her robes. Many soft silks of quiet hue are seen side by side with clinging voiles and crepe-de-chines.

Every woman may wear purple if she chooses the right shade. Grape purple is not for the woman of dull hair and complexion; but neither is Parma violet for the ruddy type, and between these two pronounced shades there are many tints bearing fashion's stamp. Because purple combines so happily with grey, the pearl shades will be in evidence during the next few months.

* * * * *

Blue never really gets out of date, as it is a colour to which some women cling, despite the edicts of the powers at Paris, London, and Vienna. Nattier blue is particularly good in silks, and ninons, as its soft tint tones well in these fabrics. Other blues thear are of the pastel order that are greatly liked, and the old-fashioned navy is still to be seen. When two shades of a colour are combined in a costume, similarity rather than contrast is sought, a quiet effect in colour, as well as in material, being this season considered desirable.

WOMEN JOURNALISTS' SCHOOL.

A journalistic school for young women has been started in Fleet-street, London. It aims to give a practical education in newspaper work in all branches, and it is conducted in connection with an actual publishing establishment, from which three magazines are issued.

A number of literary women, who have gained distinction in London by their work, are patrons of the journalistic school, among them "John Strange Winter," Mrs. Henry Reeves, and Mrs. T. P. O'Connor. The late Mrs. Craigie was also interested in it.

Miss Cartwright, the principal, is herself an editor and practical publisher. One of her magazines is edited on the premises, and in this way she is able to take her pupils through the entire field, from the selection of subjects for articles to the editing of copy and the setting up of the matter in type.

There are classes in story-writing, interviewing, fashion drawing, and story illustration, art, dramatic, and musical criticism, book reviewing, sub-editing, proof correcting, and society reporting. There are classes also in typewriting, shorthand, advertising writing, and in French. The great advantage of the London school is its location in the same building with an actual publication office. Here the editor and the principal discuss timely subjects and instruct the pupils in the task of preparing articles and stories, which must be good for publication possibly a year later than the time they are written.

The mysteries of make-up are explained, and the student familiarises herself with the various processes which transform the manuscript into the printed page.

Special talents for any particular line of work are developed, and ability in any art is utilised in the pupils' work. It is stated that the best proof of success of the school is that girls are already selling their work, and placing articles with the London papers and magazines.

Thirty guineas pays for the entire course, from 10 to 20 for a journalistic course alone, and 10 guineas for instruction in secretary's duties. The classes in advertisement writing and in shorthand and French are extras. There is a correspondence class, through which manuscripts are criticised by post, and suggestions made as to their improvement for market purposes.

THE QUEST OF BEAUTY.

There is yet another cry against the emancipation of women. It is that in striving for notoriety and self support she has enticed us into her beauty parlour, and there deluded us with the false hope of perpetual youth, imbibing us with a feverish desire to rush headlong into the wild quest of beauty.

That much has been effected by art no one can deny. It is she who has expected art to supplant nature that is disappointed.

No one, no matter how well got up, can appear young if she has lost the spring of youthfulness and interest in life, which always must come from within. The two extremes to gain youthful age are the following:—

From one oracle on beauty culture we have the promise of perpetual youth, and a face without a line at 60. But her rules are not for a human woman endowed with a brain to think, sympathies to feel for another's trouble, and a heart beating in unison with and for those she loves. Her client, to gain success, must preserve impassivity of feature—in fact, must pose as a marble statue. Her forehead must be kept unlined, so no matter how surprised, she must pass it on without so much as elevating an eyebrow. She must be careful only to give her set smile, for fear of the tell-tale lines around her mouth. She must unceasingly wage war against those persistent crowsfeet; therefore she must meet her troubles dry-eyed.

But with so much depending on the turning of an eyelid, what a tired, soulless eye must look from the perfectly preserved face. It is from the eye, that organ to which poets have alluded as the window of the soul, that age or youth looks out; and if we allow ourselves to be modelled into a statue what soul can look forth. This method must fail; for once we cease to feel, and when we lose our interest in the joys of life, then and then alone do we become unmistakeably old.

In direct opposition to this, we have the Gargoyle beauty remedy, which advises us to make as many faces as we can. It teaches that lines are furrowed by having only one set expression of the face. If we make the counteracting contortions, they will never appear.

That our actresses retain their youthfulness well into age, seems some foundation for this theory; for to be a successful actress one must be adept in the art of making grimaces, or, to be more complimentary, in portraying the feelings and emotions of the characters which one impersonates. But it is because she is an interested worker that the actress is endowed with a wonderful capacity for living in the joys of the world.

We must, of course, give due attention to our appearance, but it is not our appearance that gives us youth—it is the spirit within. And if, in living our life, we, as the years go by, do recognise a few—let us call them character—lines, our characters being blameless, we may without shame show its index on our faces. SHEILA.

BEAUTIFUL HOUSE FROCKS.

The above is a very dainty model carried out in crepe-de-chene. Bands of heavy embroidery form an effective finish to the soft lace blouse. The long skirt has a panel in front, on which appears a heavy vandyked lace on each side from waist to hem. This gown is slightly high-waisted, which gives a graceful effect of length to the full skirt.

This is a graceful gown, suitable for silk, ninon, crepe, or voile. The front panel of deep tucks, which appear again on the bodice, gives a distinct air of novelty. The softly draped bodice, with its kimono effect, is especially becoming to a slender figure.

THE EXHIBITION CHOIR.

Mrs. Peterson, the Hungarian wife of the Ormond Professor of Music at Melbourne University, who conducts the ladies' choir at the Women's Work Exhibition, admires the Australian girl for her voice, her musical gift, and her adaptability. Nowhere in the world, she says, has such a splendid result been achieved as at this exhibition. The large choirs in England and on the Continent when got together for festivals are mixed. This choir, composed wholly of women and conducted by a woman, is unique. It includes many trained singers, members of choirs and of societies, and the pupils of well-known teachers. Mrs. Palmer brought 50 students as her contribution. Thirty teachers of good standing brought varying numbers. It was not always necessary, therefore, to test the voices; it could be taken for granted that a certain proficiency had been acquired.

So much cordiality has followed between the members of the musical profession that good fellowship has been established for all time. Several choirs competed at the exhibition, and the prize was won by the University Conservatorium Choir, which was trained and conducted by Miss Maud Harrington.

The Exhibition Choir did not enter for competition; it was compounded of other choirs, as well as soloists.

Socialists would rejoice in the scheme of the choir, for all classes of women were by it brought together. Church choirs, operatic choirs, as well as individual singers of high and low degree, took part. The choir was organised in order to sing the Prize Exhibition Ode (written by Miss Rentoul and composed and conducted by Mrs. Ewart), Elgar's "Snow," and other choral numbers on great occasions. It consisted of 1300 voices. So great is the mutual attraction of conductor and choir that the singers refuse to be disbanded. They are to continue together for practice, and will appear in public when called upon after their present work is ended.

UNCONVENTIONAL VACATION.

"I can't decide where to go," is a remark always ushered in by the beginning of December. In three or four weeks' time holiday-making will begin in real earnest, and plans must be made beforehand. That is to say, we think they must. But why try to decide? The plan of making no plans usually works splendidly. Eleven months in the year we know almost to a certainty where we'll be every day and every hour in the day. For one month let us taste the joys of irresponsibility. Many of us are tired of summer hotels, and of engaging board and lodging three weeks ahead at the seaside, only to find when we get there that we'd have preferred the mountains after all.

One way to spend an unconventional vacation is to take a train, and let it carry us somewhere. If a place looks interesting, stop there. If the board is good, stay awhile. If we get restless, we'll go on. If a road seems to beckon, and there is no conveyance, we can walk a bit. This is the way to have real adventures. We may come upon someone camping, and be asked to share the camp. We would be likely to enjoy our stay thoroughly, to make friends who are worth while.

Another plan is to take tickets to a place we know nothing whatever about.

Another is to get a horse and trap and drive for a few weeks. All morning we jog along lanes and fields, if it is a farming district; with glimpses of the ocean, if along the coast, picnicking at noon time in some spot where the horse can graze, and sleeping at any likely-looking house or hotel we come to. In such excursions youth and health are renewed, and fresh discoveries made. We may have always had a longing for the open road, and not have known it until we started on the trip. Walking and driving excursions, anything off the beaten track, where the air and food are good, make delightful holidays. Scientific and historical information can be absorbed by the way by people of active brain.

WOMEN IN THE ARTS.

The Australian girl does love to have her voice tested. Mrs. Peterson had to deal with batches of 300 girls at a time when she applied for singers in the Exhibition choir. Madame Amy Sherwin tests dozens of voices every week, even little girls being brought by their mothers to her. The ladies' choir originated by Madame Sherwin, and drilled every week, contains over 250 members, 150 of whom have been picked to give a concert in the Town Hall next month. The girls are to wear white costumes, with frilly fichus fastened with a spray of flowers. Such toilets will look "soft," even from the end of the hall. The London Choral Society adds white caps to a similar style of dress.

At Madame Sherwin's concert, a well-known amateur, in the person of Miss Ruby Adams, is to sing. Both in voice and appearance Miss Adams is charming, and she is gifted besides with "temperament," as is Mr. Arnold Gange, the Scottish basso, who will sing also. Miss Adams' grandmother had a romantic history. She belonged to the "haute noblesse," and was the bosom friend of Carmen Sylva, the Queen of Roumania. She dropped her titles to become Mrs. Adams, and preserved her incognita in Sydney until her death a few years ago, declaring to the last her belief in "all for love, and the world well lost." Her son was the father of Miss Ruby Adams, and her daughter is the mother of Miss Vinie Deloitte (Mrs. Howard Vernon).

It is said that Madame Melba wants to make Australia a great musical art centre. Her scheme is to establish regular seasons of grand opera here. Some of the greatest living artists, including herself, will be heard in Australia next year or the year after if the proposal is successful. It will be a splendid triumph for women if a woman's tact can accomplish what syndicates and experienced managers have failed to bring about. There is the desire here for more music and better music. There is a good deal of money, but Australians will not spend money on music unless they are well entertained. They want to hear good performers and bright performances. Melba wants them to have these things.

* * * * *

Entertainment givers who are "quick in the uptake" will in future wind up their proceedings with the National Anthem if Clara Butt is present. Madame Butt always joins in when general singing takes place. On board ship, a concert was concluded in the usual way with the anthem. Madame Butt and Mr. Rumford began to sing, and everyone stopped to listen to the duet. When the pair listened to the women's choir at the Exhibition, the same thing happened. The band struck up the anthem, Mr. and Mrs. Rumford lifted up their voices, and all were hushed to hear.

Miss Heydon, niece of Judge Heydon, took first prize for a still-life picture in water colours, a copper bowl, peacock feathers, and blue jar, at the Women's Work Exhibition. "Buffalo Creek," a picture from the Sydney Art Gallery by the same artist, was lent to Melbourne for the exhibition.

FRIENDS IN NEED.

A deputation from the Animals' Protection Society and the Kennel Club recently waited on the Chief Secretary asking for the support of the Government in a proposal to establish a home for stray dogs, where all animals found straying in the streets might be taken and properly housed and fed until claimed, or in the case of ownerless, diseased mongrels, destroyed in a lethal chamber. Some people will be found to ridicule this as a needless expense, but they should remember that as there are more ways of killing a cat than choking it with butter, there are less sickening ways of destroying pariah dogs than knocking them on the head with an iron bar.

In Melbourne, for some time past, a large cart has patrolled the streets in search of stray dogs. This vehicle resembles a big cage on wheels, and its appearance with a couple of prisoners inside is enough to drive the house-dogs into the shelter of their homes with a touch-me-if-you-dare attitude. The captives are conveyed to a building where, if unclaimed within a certain time, they are painlessly destroyed. In Sydney, in spite of the vigilance of the police at registration time, the streets are swarming with diseased, starving mongrels, a menace to their luckier brethren lying snug in their kennels after a bath in disinfectants.

It seems peculiar that a stray dog should almost invariably attach itself to the first woman it meets. Perhaps a brief course of the streets has taught it that there are more kicks than ha'pence in the world, and that a woman's powers as a human catapult are limited.

One cold, rainy morning last May, a poor drenched, half-grown terrier pushed through the iron bars of the gate into the shelter of the porch. He was the picture of misery, but after a good meal he revived, and went his ways in a lull of the storm, returning every morning for his meat and biscuit. As he had no manners, it was resolved to take him in and give him some elementary lessons in canine behaviour. Scorning an idle life, he went to a lot of needless trouble in rooting up the plants in the garden, and thoughtfully dug a tunnel under the fence into a neighbour's lawn. Being put on the chain, he howled so dismally that we were forced to release him. So he took to the streets again, a larrikin dog, only coming for meals and growing fat and sleek. Then some relatives, cunning in dogs' ways, offered to train him, and he is now a respectable house-dog, with an eye for hawkers like a policeman.

A few weeks later, a starving puppy limped past the door on three legs, with a pack of young barbarians at his heels. A friendly neighbour rescued him, and finding the broken leg past mending, ended his misery with a dose of poison. Last week a wretched fox-terrier followed my friend through Centennial Park after sharing a biscuit from her lunch, but on reaching Oxford-street it took fright at the traffic and disappeared. The other day a bedraggled terrier lay in a huddled heap in Moore-street, regardless of pedestrians. Presently two jolly sailors lurched up and offered her a biscuit, but the poor wretch was too far gone to eat, and lay there in helpless misery. Probably the Jack Tars thought of the great Home for Dogs at Battersea, and wished it a little nearer.

These waifs and strays of the streets present a striking contrast to the fine animals at the recent Kennel Club show. There the immense St. Bernard, with motherly eyes, the dainty Borzois, the bulldogs, ferocious of aspect, the fiery terriers, the luxurious beady-eyed pugs, the wise old dachshunds, the aristocratic Pomeranians, the sleek greyhounds, and the baby silkies—all gave evidence how the dog family is valued in our State. And each animal cherishes an affection for some human being, for whom he watches and singles out of the crowd with lover-like eyes. One, a beautiful setter, thinking herself abandoned for ever, leaned against the wall regardless of onlookers, waiting with something of human sadness for the one hand and voice that meant friendship and sympathy.

Every owner will talk of his pet for an hour by Shrewsbury clock, and perhaps reveal by a chance word that the faithful animal fills a void in their heart that the grown children have left empty. Across the street an old collie, herself a mother, assists a careful neighbour in minding the young children, taking them for walks, and watching their games with maternal benevolence. Another smiles on visitors when they explain their business, but deals with hawkers according to their merits, and is rarely deceived.

Surely there should be little need to point out to the authorities who keep a dog themselves, or have at least been bitten by one in a friendly way, that while respectable dogs have no equal among animals as friends, servants, and guardians, the diseased mongrel, foraging in dirt-boxes and raiding dunghills, is a perambulating menace to the health of his tribe, and an eyesore to a picturesque city. STCOLORES.

OPEN VIEWS.

An English observer, who has been taking notes on the subject, asserts that the owners of large and beautiful eyes are rarely clever. "The law of compensation," she remarks. Some time ago George Eliot said that beautiful eyes are not always accompanied by the beautiful souls one would naturally look for behind them; yet it is often asserted that anyone who looks out upon the world with a clear, straightforward gaze is to be trusted. Are the eyes an index to character, then, or are they not? Some scientists ought to settle the question. We have palmistry and phrenology; why not opticology?

* * * * *

Women are never tired if they are interested or entertained, but if they are not their sufferings can be great. This is the whole explanation of the theory that women are naturally weaker than men. There was a time when it was supposed that the minds of all women were alike, and their lives were arranged for them accordingly. The poor things succumbed to the monotony of their existence, and sickly fainting women abounded and were admired. It is not only physical culture that makes the modern woman able to endure fatigue; it is the variety of her life. What she cannot endure is boredom. A garden party will half kill her if she has to talk to people she does not like.

* * * * *

Things should be assorted to balance the aesthetic sense. A women may love flowers, but in a land of flowers the visional organ become satiated with colour and carve repose. The home that stands in a glowing garden should be furnished in cool tints and semi-tones. It is a positive relief from the glaring monotony of flowers. This condition applies in any country and at any season where the mind throughout the day is inflamed by colour. On the other hand, floral furnishings and upholsterings in the home are a grateful balance to the lack of them without.

* * * * *

Mere man has a strong advocate in Dr. Elizabeth Sloane Cheese, who maintains that he has helped rather than retarded woman's progress. Man has been woman's friend, not her enemy, this last decade, she declares. "If he had wanted to keep us from advancing from emancipation and a fuller life, he could easily have done it, but, on the contrary, many men worked royally in our behalf. We must give man his due. He helped us to higher education for one thing. Most men are not antagonistic, but neutral, in their attitude to woman's progress. "Let them succeed if they can" is their creed.

* * * * *

One reason why women remain so much in the background is that they don't take things up the way men do. They go into business to get out of it. It is a fact, however, that the people who go into business to get out of it are the ones who have to stay in it the longest. If women went into dressmaking as men do, they could succeed in the same way. Women are smarter, and have intuition. But the men go into business to stay, and they go for the big things. Women try to plod along in a small way. People are queer; they won't bother with anyone unless they are right on top. Women ought to learn that they must spend money to make money.

MUSICAL TIME.

Great changes have taken place of late years both in regard to time and pitch, with which all who wish to be up-to-date in matters musical should be acquainted. Brilliancy is the aim sought. With this in view, time is quickened and pitch heightened.

There is no such thing, strictly speaking, as standard time—andante and allegro are merely general terms. When Maelzel's metronome was introduced, enabling people to play compositions in exact time indicated by the writer, celebrated composers objected. Mendelssohn wrote and sent a piece to an orchestra, which he received back with the message that he had omitted the metronome marks. He became indignant, and replied that the band need not attempt to play his piece at all if its musical sense did not tell it at what rate to play it.

All good teachers, when their pupils are "finished," say to them when they ask "How quickly shall I play this piece?" "Use your own judgment." It is in matters of tempo that an artistic performer shows his individuality. If he has to ask his teacher such questions, he is still only an amateur, not a performer.

Most students when thus told to go ahead and play it in their own way, make the mistake of rushing their pieces. Leschetizky often reproves this tendency in his pupils. He says, "You are showing off; you are not interpreting."

It is very fascinating and exciting to hear a piece played very quickly. After hearing Chopin's black key study, played by, say, Madame Carreno, it sounds very tame and spiritless when taken at an ordinary pace. The prestos of Mendelssohn (such as his Rondo Capriccioso), if played in moderate time, are simply killed. Such pieces must be played quickly, as fast as possible (prestissimo), or are better not played at all.

A performer with a faultless technique is in his glory with such pieces, for modern ears love brilliancy. It should be remembered, however, that very fast playing in a Town Hall like that of Sydney, sounds even faster to the hearers. If the performance is too rapid some of the tones must become blurred.

Students should try to get as much speed as possible. They are not likely to be able to play any of the well-known "show" pieces too quickly; but they should maintain an even time in regard to slower movements.

It must be borne in mind that allegretto is not allegro. The scherzo in Beethoven's Sonata Pathetique is marked allegretto, and is often ruined by would-be clever players, who render it in the allegro style. All the daintiness and charm of the movement are lost unless a certain leisure is observed in the playing.

In songs more scope is possible as regards time than in instrumental music. Great singers do, or should, create their individual atmosphere by having ideas and following them. To sail straight through an emotional song, as some people do, is to betray a lack of culture and musical feeling.

That love song of Victor Hugo's, "Si mes vers avaient des ailes," set to music by Reynaldo Hahn, has three verses, for all of which the music is the same. One way to sing it is to take the first verse quickly, the second slowly, and finish with a big rallentando. Gounod's Serenade and other well-known gems with three verses alike, should be varied as to time and expression so as to avoid monotony. When thus rendered by an artist these songs never sound hackneyed. The words should be the guide as to the different inflections and time. In commonplace songs which have three verses alike, it is a good plan to leave out one verse.

Mr. Kennerly Rumford's artistic finish came from observing points such as these. His delightful singing of "Si mes vers," "Eyes that used to gaze in mine," etc., also Mlle. Dolores' rendering of various chansons owe their charm to the same cause—the singers to an extent make their own time.

CORRESPONDENCE.

"A.E."—The recipe for wheatmeal or Cronulla bread: Two cups wheatmeal or 1½ wheatmeal and ½ cups flour, ½ cup flour, 1 heaped teaspoon cream of tartar, ½ level teaspoon carbonate of soda, 1 teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon butter (may be left out), 1 cup milk (or milk and water). More may be required. The loaf should be fairly moist. Stab with a fork about six times. Bake one hour in very hot oven at first and finish slowly.

ON THE LAND.

FARM AND STATION.

KEEPING BOOKS ON THE FARM.

It is surprising to find how many farmers do not keep any books or records of their year's transactions. Yet it is only by doing so that they can see how matters are progressing, and whether the best results are being obtained from the land they hold. No doubt the main reason is the prevalent idea that bookkeeping is a mysterious and wonderful sort of business that can only be undertaken by the clever few. It is a common experience to hear farmers say, "I am not much of a scholar, and don't know anything about bookkeeping, but I got things down in this book so that I understand them, and know how things are going." Yet this covers the whole ground. It is all that is required. Bookkeeping, after all, reaches its highest level where it attains simplicity. There is certainly no reason why farm books should be complicated, or require any more skill than the capacity to write and add up a few figures. The difficulty is that the majority of farmers don't take the trouble to do that. They appear content to leave matters to the honesty of others, and, indeed, sometimes the easy-going way of the men on the land is startling. Whether because they have to work so hard in other directions, as to not bother in this regard, is the reason it is hard to say. An instance of this recalls itself to the writer. A tenant farmer on the coast one time gave a cheque to his landlord for rent, which was paid every six months. When the latter was fixing up his books he found that he had undercharged the tenant six pounds. Putting off drawing attention to this at the time, the matter was overlooked till the next collection was being made. Then, of course, the proprietor noticed the discrepancy and informed the farmer. The latter said he was quite satisfied about the mistake if the landlord said it existed. The two were very friendly and had occupied their relative positions for quarter of a century. However, the landlord, being a business man, preferred to have the matter properly sifted and suggested that the tenant should look through his books and satisfy himself. But the farmer did not keep any books. It was then suggested that the butt of his cheque-book would show the payments made. The farmer thereupon amiably handed over his cheque-book, when it was found that there was not a single butt filled in, although nearly every cheque had been drawn. Yet this man had made money, and although a tenant farmer, had just before purchased a property, paying a couple of thousand pounds cash deposit. Nor is this a unique case. Other men may fill in the butts of their cheque-books, but neglect other equally important matters. It may be argued, and reasonably so, that in spite of his vacant butts the farmer was making money. This is very true, and to the point. It is not suggested for a moment that he should be sitting inside ruling off books with nice red ink, when the drum of the harvester is throbbing across the wheatfield or the plough is waiting to throw up the rich red soil. If our farmers did that there would very soon be no necessity to keep any books, as there would be nothing to enter in them. But there is a happy medium, and the most successful man will find it worth while to keep some sort of regular record of his business transactions. The farmer who does not keep an account of the money he pays out and receives, and what it is for, of the produce sent to market, its weight, and what was received for it, is simply playing into the hands of the dishonest agent and other sharks. The writer has known cases where farmers had produce in the salerooms, one lot coming in after the other, and they relied entirely upon the agent as to the quantity sold, the quantity left, and the weight. The agent might be an absolutely honest man, yet mistakes could happen, and any mistake must be at the expense of the farmer. That is a one-sided arrangement. It is not good business. As well as keeping records as mentioned above, it would not be a great deal of trouble to go a bit further, and find out what the land is giving its owner. After all, it only means buying a cheap day-book for the expenditure of, say, a shilling, and after that a little time now and again in the evenings. There is generally one of the boys or girls a bit smart at figures and handy with the pen, and nothing would give them a greater interest in the farm. All of them like a certain amount of responsibility, and to feel they are really doing something. On a small farm the one book would probably be sufficient for everything. On the one side would be put down the cost of ploughing, sowing, and cultivating the paddock. Later on must be entered the cost of harvesting, and then on the other side the return from the crop. Or the number of sheep, at so much per head, might go on the one side; the returns for the wool and sales off-shears on the other. It will not be long, then, before the farmer can say exactly whether the 200 sheep gave a better return than, say, the 300 acres of wheat, or whether pumpkins paid better last year than maize, and so on. It does not matter much whether there is a blot or two on the book, or the writing is a bit rough. The hand that is working the plough might find the pen running out of the furrow now and again, but that's only a detail. The farmer knows, anyhow, exactly what his work is bringing, what crops are giving the best result, and that should be worth while. Of course, he need not take this trouble, for there is a certain amount of trouble. But then he need not bother doing anything the old man did not do before him. He need not bother about modern ideas of cultivation, or make any experiments with new varieties of seed, or keep down the star thistle or the rabbit any more than the law compels, or see the right collars go on the right horses, or that the binders and strippers go under cover. He need not do any of these things if he likes, and yet with a lot of luck keep his head above water. It just depends whether he is satisfied to be a thriftless, slovenly toiler, plugging along against a stone wall all the time, and finding the boys clearing out from the old home as they grow up and making into town, and the end of it all—not much ahead of the start. It just depends. But it might be worth while to be modern and progressive, to make his work more interesting and less hard and heavy, to keep the boys attracted and keen, and satisfied that farming is one of the cleanest and most manlike callings the world can give. It might be worth while. Keeping a book or two may seem a small factor in this result, but a grain of black oats, if given a chance, can dirty a big paddock, and the principle applies in many ways.

ITEMS.

In the dairy cow competition at the Wanganui (N.Z.) show, the winner, a high-grade shorthorn, gave 36lb of 4.6 milk, and the second cow, a shorthorn-Jersey, 23½lb of 4.1 milk. One cow gave only 7½lb of 2 per cent. milk. There were six competitors.

With reference to the sale of Terry Hie Hie station, near Moree, to Messrs. Gall Brothers, formerly of Nullamanna station, near Inverell, we are advised that in addition to other agents named, Messrs. Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Ltd., Sydney (who have been sole agents for the late owners, Messrs. J. R. Black and Co., for some months), and Messrs. F. and A. Glennie, of Moree, were also concerned in the sale.

The Queensland Government has secured the services of Mr. Sydney Dodd for an investigation of the tick pest, and to carry on experiments in connection with stock diseases on the lines which were laid down by the Department of Agriculture. Mr. Dodd graduated at the Royal Veterinary College, in London, as late as 1902, and then became Demonstrator of Pathology and assistant to Professor Sir John M'Fadyen, the principal and Professor of Pathology and Bacteriology at the college at which Mr. Dodd graduated. In this position he got a great deal of experience in the class of work for which he is wanted in Queensland. In 1905 Mr. Dodd was selected as assistant Veterinary Bacteriologist under the Transvaal Government.

As a reward for the enterprise of improved quality exhibited of late years by the breeders, Major Brown, of the United States Government, has recommended that preference be given to North Queensland for the horses required for the Philippine Islands military. It is the opinion of experts that there are many districts in New South Wales much more suitable for horse-breeding purposes, but the industry has been somewhat neglected. The cost of transport is probably another reason for the decision, as North Queensland shipping ports are so much nearer to Manila. Major Brown, however, backed up by his veterinary officer, asserts that the stock procurable are superior to those of New South Wales, and says that if North Queensland supplies run short he will draw on Southern Queensland before turning to this State.

In a report to the Victorian Minister of Agriculture, dated Shanghai, October 1, Mr. R. B. Levien, commercial agent, says:—A report was current among merchants that in the case of certain brands of flour, an average of one bag in three contained on delivery 1½lb short weight. He could not obtain proof of this assertion, but if the shortage was not a matter of accident the brands would be looked on with suspicion. Regular quality and standard of weight should be maintained, for the Chinese were keen buyers, and would notice a difference sooner than average foreign buyers. Since the receipt of trial orders of compressed fodder, further orders had been sent to Victoria. Steps should be taken to standardise compressed fodder, so that buyers abroad might know what they were getting. Two of the largest buyers in Shanghai had asked him to report that they had suffered owing to inferior and adulterated fodder having been shipped to them. The Minister has called for a report as to whether compressed fodder cannot be standardised.

THE PILLIGA LANDS.

THE WAYS OF THE LANDS DEPARTMENT.

"Vigilant" asks some pertinent questions. He writes:—Whilst in Sydney in June last I went to the Lands Office with some land-seekers, and was there shown the design for subdivision of a large area of land lying on the edge of Pilliga scrub, and within from three to five miles of the railway, from Narrabri to Burren Junction. I was informed that the said land would be available for selection as c.p. leases in probably six weeks or two months. This land has been surveyed for some time, but so far no intimation as to the date on which it will be gazetted is forthcoming. In view of these facts it would be interesting if the Minister would answer the following queries:—

(1) Is he aware that this land is surveyed, as stated?

(2) Is he aware that applications have been lodged, and will be considered at the next sittings of the Narrabri Land Court, for annual leases of portions of the said land, although same is not available for purchase or lease?

(3) Is he aware that the applicants for said leases have anticipated the granting of same, and that they have large numbers of sheep, cattle, and horses depasturing thereon, although they have no legal claim to place one hoof thereon?

(4) Does he consider it just that the said people should be allowed to eat the grass which should properly belong to the incoming settlers, and, by so doing, lessen the value of the land for settlement?

(5) Will he take steps to see that the said stock are at once removed from the area, and have it made available for settlement at once?

THE FOX AND THE RABBIT.

"Raggles" writes re the rabbit problem:—Bunny has a natural and deadly enemy in the English fox. I have seen Reynard at work. His method is to dig down straight over the rabbit's nest. His hearing is very keen, and by locating the nest and digging through he has a hearty meal, and leaves not one of the inhabitants of the burrow alive. I have seen an old dog fox in the breeding season work a piece of ground in a splendid manner, and his daily sustenance must call for numbers of the young rabbits, of which the fox is inordinately fond. The fox during the past five years has increased marvellously, and I feel sure is Nature's remedy for the rabbit pest. He is accused of attacking lambs, and I find that such is the case, but it is a rare occurrence except in country where rabbits are not to be found.

MEETING OF FARMERS.

KIAMA.—At the monthly meeting of the executive committee of the Kiama Agricultural Association on Tuesday the question of the postponement of the show on account of the drought was discussed. It was resolved to hold the exhibition on the advertised dates, 25th and 27th January, 1908. The committee also unanimously decided to invite Mr. J. H. Carruthers, chief patron of the association, to open the show.

PARKES.—The annual meeting of the Parkes P.A. and H. Association was held on Saturday afternoon. The report and balance-sheet adopted showed that the credit balance in the bank was £254, and this, with outstanding subscriptions and Government subsidy, would make a credit of £400 to commence the new year with. The last show was a record one as regards attendance and gate, and the members' roll shows an increase of 21 compared with the previous year, or a total increase of 89, since 1900. The amount expended on improvements was £140, and net profits of the year, exclusive of the special grant from the Government, was nearly £280. Several of the speakers at the meeting urged that the new committee should immediately proceed with the erection of new sheep sheds. For the committee of 30 members, 45 candidates were proposed, and an adjournment was made until December 14, to enable a ballot to be taken.

NEGLECTING TO DESTROY RABBITS.

ALBURY.—Wm. Henry Wildash, manager of the Brac Springs Station, was summoned by the Pastures Protection Board for neglecting to destroy rabbits, and fined £3.

DAIRYING.

GUNDAGAI.—The Gundagai Co-operative Butter Factory commenced active operations on Monday. The official opening will take place next Saturday.

WINGHAM.—The Manning River Dairy Company paid suppliers for November 10d for first-class and 9d for seconds. The total turnover was £5582 17s 4d.

DISTRICT ITEMS.

LIVERPOOL.—Myriads of white butterflies, similar to those which played havoc among the grain crops a few years ago, have been passing over the district, going in a north-westerly direction, during the past two days.

PEAK HILL.—The chief inspector of stock has written to the trustees, in reply to a request to make the common a permanent one, that it was not now the policy of the Lands Department to grant permanent commons.

ROOTY HILL.—The green appearance of the herbage is gradually disappearing, owing to the hot weather experienced the last week. Many of the farmers are busy ploughing, but a heavy downfall of rain is needed, as the waterholes are fast drying up and becoming bogholes for the stock. An electrical disturbance took place Saturday afternoon, but no rain fell.

SINGLETON.—Grasshoppers have made their reappearance in the district.

CHANGE FOOD.

AND LOSE THAT UNEASY FEELING.

A man who has always been a "skinny chap," although hardly ever ill, tells of the way he put on flesh and reduced his irritability and nervous condition.

By chance he had a taste of Grape-Nuts food at the table of a friend, and enjoyed the flavour so much that he began to have it every meal. He says:—

"In a short time I found myself another person, the old feeling of discontent and uneasiness left me entirely, it became a pleasure to go about my work, whereas, before, for years I had always had the feeling of being a little weary, but now I seem to have a surplus of energy for everything; my weight has increased 11lb in four weeks, and am still gaining.

"I have never been very sick, and am satisfied, if my present improvement in health continues, I shall not be.

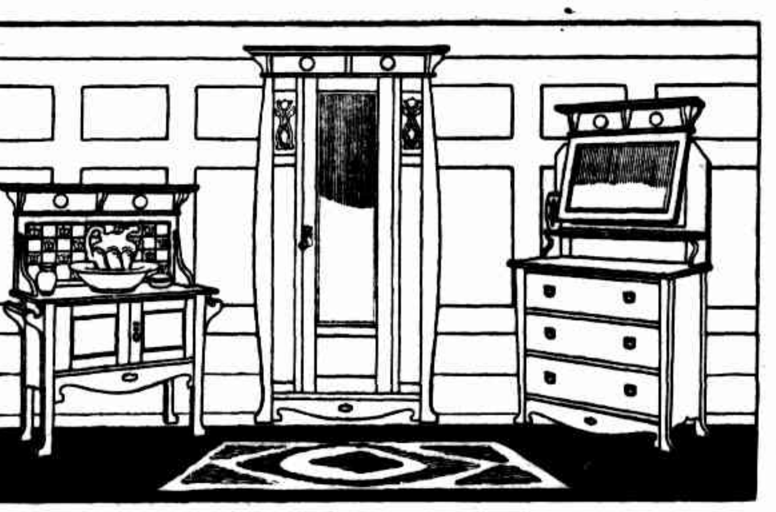

"The change that this food has made in my life has been remarkable, and so satisfactory that I am glad of the opportunity to tell you." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason." That famous book, "The Door Unbolted," sent free to any address. Tells all about where and how Grape-Nuts is made. Write Grape Nuts, Box 98, G.P.O., Sydney.—Advt.

THE KENNEL.

By W. C. J.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

E. J., Hobart.—The terrier you name was bred by Mr. J. B. Matterson, of Leichhardt.

F. Y., Dulwich Hill.—Your letter arrived too late to be answered in this issue.

I. I. M., Sydney.—Thanks for information. The previous letter never reached me. Please write on one side of the paper, and address your envelope to "The Editor of the S. M. Herald," endorsed "The Kennel."

R. E. W., Parramatta.—The dog is incurable, and should be destroyed.

A meeting of the committee of the Kennel Club of New South Wales was held on Monday night at the clubrooms, 30 Castlereagh-street. Dr. Furnival was chairman. The correspondence included a letter from the judge of mastiffs at the late Kennel Club show stating that he placed a dog second, not first, in one of the classes for that breed. A long discussion took place concerning a protest in Sydney silky terriers at Kennel Club show. Ultimately it was agreed to defer a decision on the matter until the next meeting. Consideration of rules relating to affiliated societies was also postponed. Application for the removal of a disqualification was not dealt with, as the term will expire in a few days.

A meeting of the committee of the British Terrier Club of Australia, with the club's president, the Rev. R. M'Keown, in the chair, was held on November 18. The hon. treasurer was directed to draw cheques for 19 and three guineas, in payment of special prizes at Newcastle and Wellington (N.Z.) shows respectively. A draft report to be presented at the next general meeting was submitted and adopted. The second series of matches to be held in conjunction with the third quarterly meeting and supper is being arranged. Competition is open to dogs owned by others beside members, and is not necessarily confined to terriers. Illuminated cards to mark the awards are being specially printed. One gentleman was proposed as a member. Special arrangements have been made for the accommodation of members and guests at supper, and for the efficient electric lighting of the yards.

The dog pavilion at the Royal Agricultural Society's Grounds, Moore Park, is now approaching completion. This structure will cost about £1600. The society is to be congratulated on its enterprise in building the largest and best poultry and dog pavilions south of the line. Doubtless exhibitors will respond by making record entries at the next Easter show.

The Australian Cattle and Sheep Dog Club is desirous of giving a practical test of the working powers of cattle dogs. With this view, Mr. R. Kaleski, hon. secretary of the club, proposed to the Royal Agricultural Society a programme of trials in connection with the coming Easter show. Mr. H. M. Somer, secretary of the society, writes to Mr. Kaleski as follows:—I have thought the matter over, and while the trials would no doubt be a very attractive feature in the show, I am afraid there would be great danger of an accident. The ring is enclosed with a low wooden fence, topped with anchor wires, and any animal could easily jump and throw itself over. It is of course possible the cattle would remain perfectly quiet, but, on the other hand, I have seen the quietest cattle play up very badly when subjected to unusual surroundings. With a large crowd round the ring, and bands playing, the quietest of old cows might turn out to be very dangerous and wild. However, I have not settled the matter, and will have a talk over it with some members of the council before absolutely deciding whether I shall recommend that the trials be included in the programme.

At the monthly meeting of the New South Wales Australian Terrier Club held at the usual meeting rooms, Regent-street, there were present:—Messrs. J. H. Denlay, A. Lewis, G. Johnson, W. Flockhardt, J. Cosgrove, J. W. Smith, T. A. Griffin, W. Dyson, R. J. Thomas, and I. I. Moss. Mr. G. Johnson was voted to the chair. A letter was received from the president resigning his position in consequence of removing his residence to New Zealand. It was decided that Dr. Baber be made a life member of the club, and that a letter be written to him expressing regret the great loss the club had sustained, and that should he return to New South Wales the members would be pleased to again have him as president. A letter was directed to be written to the Newcastle Kennel Club expressing regret that the late receipt of show schedules prevented members exhibiting at the recent show. The suggestion of amalgamating with another club was, after a long discussion, negatived. Mr. Moss proposed, with a view of assisting the Kennel Club and also the specialist clubs concerned, that letters be written to the Sydney Silky and Yorkshire Terrier Club and to the Scottish Skye and Dandie Dinmont Club, again asking co-operation and assistance to form a council of representatives. This motion was unanimously carried. Several matches have been arranged between terriers belonging to members for next Monday night's meeting. These contests should prove interesting, as several new dogs will make their first appearance in the judging ring.

THE WHARF APPROACHES.

DAY-STREET EXTENSION.

OPENED BY THE PREMIER.

The official opening of Day-street extension, a work which has just been completed by the Sydney Harbour Trust, took place yesterday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by Mr. Wade (State Premier), in the presence of a representative gathering of the political, civil, shipping, and commercial interests of Sydney.

Until recently Day-street was a short, blind thoroughfare, lying off Erskine-street, and running parallel with Sussex-street. But by resumption and rearrangement of the wharfage accommodation, the Harbour Trust has managed to extend that street right through to Market-street, and beyond that to Federal wharf, and then to connect with Sussex-street. This improvement will wonderfully facilitate shipping trade in this part of the city, and will relieve the congestion of traffic in Sussex-street that has been a source of worry to business people for years.

The ceremony was performed from a temporary platform in front of the Newcastle and Hunter River Steamship Company's premises, for it was at the joint invitation of the Harbour Trust Commissioners and the directors of the Newcastle and Hunter River S.S. Company that the gathering took place.

The Premier, who was received with cheers, said the opening of the thoroughfare was most appropriate to present-day advancement, and would confer considerable benefit to the shipping and commercial community. They had only to cast their eyes around to realise what part the shipping companies had played in the past in the development of the State. (Cheers.) It was said the other day that the advance of Sydney was so great, and the facilities of the port so enormous, that people were compelled to do something to clip its wings to bring it back to the level of adjoining States. (Laughter.) But whether our wings were clipped or not by equalisation of freights, we had the advantage given us by nature, the spirit of development, enterprise, and grit to enable us to advance to the forefront of the Commonwealth, whether we were handicapped or not. (Cheers.) Mr. Wade then, amid cheers, cut the ribbon stretched across the thoroughfare, and the ceremony ended.

The company afterwards adjourned for luncheon to the board-room of the Newcastle and Hunter River Steamship Company, at the invitation of the directors.

The chairman, Mr. Samuel Clift, presided, having on his right the State Premier, and on his left the State Treasurer.

The toast of "The King" having been honoured, the chairman proposed "The State Parliament and Ministry." He spoke in glowing terms of the splendid work accomplished by the Premier in settling the strike. (Cheers.) Strikes had proved so disastrous to the homes of the miners that every miner's wife should have a vote as to whether the men were to come out. (Cheers.)

Mr. Waddell, in response, said that he recognised that the Harbour Trust had carried out the work of extending Day-street with great ability. It would be useful to the citizens for all time. He regretted that owing to the financial position of the country, the Government had not been able to do more towards the reformation of the Rocks and resumption area, but it expected with good seasons to do a great deal in this direction if it remained in office—and he saw no reason why it should not. (Laughter, and cheers.) In a few years the Rocks, as it was called, would be one of the most beautiful places of the city. (Cheers.) The Government hoped to rebuild the whole area, and remove everything of an objectionable character. (Cheers.)

Mr. John R. Hall proposed the health of the Harbour Trust Commissioners.

Mr. Hickson (President) replied. The work of extending Day-street was one of the first things undertaken by the Trust.

The chairman proposed "The City Council," to which toast Aldermen E. W. O'Sullivan and Evan Jones responded.

The toast of "The Chairman" was proposed by the State Treasurer (Mr. Waddell), and acknowledged.

LABOUR PLATFORM.

THE MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

LAND-VALUE TAXATION.

CONTROL OF COMMUNAL POWERS.

The report of the joint committee of the Balmain and Rozelle Labour Leagues, appointed to draw up a platform for the Balmain municipality, has been adopted by those bodies as follows:—

In formulating the accompanying platform, your committee have endeavoured to express, in concise terms, a programme embodying the aims of the Labour party in relation to municipal affairs.

Your committee found that the restricted scope of the Act forbade the formation of anything like a really broad and democratic platform; it was felt, therefore, that our programme should consist of two parts—one dealing with those things which the Act admits of entertainment now, and the other dealing with those activities which our party desires to bring within its scope later on.

The first five planks comprise the first part as above, thus:—

Plank 1 deals with the basis of rating and adopts the system deemed to be the most equitable and the most effective from a democratic standpoint.

Plank 2 adopts the principle of communal activity or socialistic enterprise. The Act confers upon municipalities five (5) primary functions (division 2, section 74), and provides for the acquisition of fifty (50) general and specific functions (div. 2, sec. 109). Of these 55 functions the majority are machinery functions. Very few are of a nature calculated to in any way admit of socialistic enterprise. Your committee therefore picked out all that come under this heading and adopted them as sub-planks to plank 2 (see items A to K).

Plank 3.—The union wages clause, being a universal requirement of the party, needs no comment.

Plank 4.—This plank constitutes a recognition of the position created by our local council in the past in burdening the municipality with heavy loans, which cannot be paid off or converted for many years, even if funds were available, and the suggestion is that all surpluses shall be devoted to a fund for redeeming the loans.

Plank 5.—This plank entertains the object that so soon as funds will permit the local parks and reserves shall be taken over by the council, so as to remove the necessity at present existing in certain cases for charges for admission to meet expenses.

The second part of the platform is comprised in:—

Plank 6 and sub-planks; and outlines a programme in the direction of altering the franchise conditions and provisions and increasing the scope for communal activity by altering and amending the Act by including therein powers which are now not provided for, and which consequently cannot be made planks in our platform until in the interests of democracy such amendments are effected.

Plank 7.—The decision of your committee to include a "Greater Sydney" plank is based upon the belief that "Greater Sydney" must ultimately be an accomplished fact; and that unification as compared with federation offers greater possibilities of success—a surmise confirmed by the noted precedents presented by cities of the old world.

Your committee would further suggest that in the event of the platform meeting with your approval a manifesto be drawn up and printed embodying the platform, and any necessary explanatory matter for the use and education of the people.

BALMAIN AND ROZELLE LABOUR LEAGUES' MUNICIPAL PLATFORM.

Plank 1.—Rating on the unimproved values of land only.

Plank 2.—The adoption of and wielding of all the communal powers and activities possible under the Act, especially of the activities hereunder:—

The establishment, control, and maintenance of—

(a) Infants' milk depots.
(b) Ferries.
(c) Gas (and electric) lighting.
(d) Hydraulic or other power (when desirable).
(e) Night shelters.
(f) Public markets.
(g) Public gardens.
(h) The re-arrangement and beautification of the area, and the acquisition of land, streets, buildings, etc., therefor, together with the sale or lease of land or buildings after such re-arrangement.
(i) Subsidising of public bands or orchestras.
(j) The regulation and licensing of public vehicles, and of the drivers and conductors thereof.
(k) The regulation and licensing of the hawking of goods.

Plank 3.—The adoption and enforcement of provisions requiring, for all trades, the payment of union rates of pay for all municipal work.

Plank 4.—Readjustment of finances and the establishment of a loans redemption fund.

Plank 5.—Taking over control and maintenance of parks and reserves.

Plank 6.—To advocate and support measures to amend and improve the Local Government Act.

(a) In respect to franchise.
(b) Equalising the status of ratepayers and electors.
(c) Broadening its scope and extending the powers of councils in the direction of communal activity.
(d) Amending its provisions as to valuations and appeals in the direction of simplicity, economy, efficiency, and justice.

Plank 7.—Greater Sydney: To advocate a Greater Sydney scheme in the form of unification.

Any Business will tell you that the best known remedy in Australia is ROW'S EMBROCATION.—Advt.

NEWCASTLE.

WATER AND SEWERAGE BOARD.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

The Hunter District Water and Sewerage Board met at their offices to-day, the president (Mr. W. J. Millner) occupying the chair.

The engineer's progress report on the contract for the construction of the Pelaw-Main reservoir showed that the wall had been built to within 3ft of the top level and would be completed at the end of next week, when the cementing and roofing would be commenced.

WATER RESTRICTIONS RELAXED.

At the meeting of the Water Board to-day papers in connection with the Newcastle water supply were submitted, and the engineer reported that since the recent rains it had not been necessary to keep the 15in trunk main running full bore the whole 24 hours, and the flow had been restricted. The engineer was of the opinion that the restrictions on the supply lately in force should not be relaxed. After discussion the board decided to revoke the present restriction on the use of water by hose or sprinkler until further notice; but as sufficient water was not available for the purpose the supply for street and tramline watering could not be restored until the duplicate main was completed.

SEWERS ON PRIVATE PROPERTY.

At to-day's Water Board meeting the engineer's report dealing with the construction of public sewers on private properties was read. He pointed out that the reticulation sewers of that part of the new system transferred to the board were to a considerable extent laid on private property. The engineer strongly recommended in future works of construction of reticulation sewers, particularly those within the low level parts of the city, that they be, as far as possible, laid in streets and public thoroughfares, and not on private property. This recommendation also applied to the older parts of the adjoining suburbs of Newcastle, where the present buildings were to a large extent old and of a temporary character, and would doubtless be replaced by larger and better structures before many years pass.

COAL AND OTHER EXPORTS.

The following vessels cleared at the Customs house to-day:—Taiyuan, s, for Hongkong, via Sydney and ports, with 550 tons bunkers and 10 tons fodder for stock; Defiance, bqtn, for Kaipara, with 306 tons coal.

CURABLE DISORDERS.

(By "W. S. C.")

When the kidneys and liver, through weakness or disease, are unable to perform efficiently their natural work of purifying the blood, uric and biliary matter remains in the system, becomes actively poisonous, and causes us to suffer from Rheumatism,

Gout,
Neuralgia,
Backache,
Sciatica,
Indigestion,
Anaemia,
Blood Disorders,
Biliousness,
Jaundice,
Gravel and Stone,
Bladder Troubles,
General Debility,
Sick Headache.

When we suffer from any of these disorders, means should at once be adopted to restore the kidneys and liver to health and activity, in order that the causative poisons may be eliminated in a natural manner, health restored, and pain cease.

The reason that treatment by Warner's Safe Cure has been so successful in cases of the disorders named is that Warner's Safe Cure is a specific cure for diseases of the kidneys and liver, even Bright's disease yielding to its healing influence. The curative effect of Warner's Safe Cure is now so generally known that it is only necessary to make inquiry amongst our friends to receive confirmatory testimony as to the value of the medicine.

In addition to the regular 5s and 2s 9d bottles of Warner's Safe Cure, a concentrated form of the medicine is now issued at 2s 6d per bottle. Warner's Safe Cure (Concentrated) is not compounded with alcohol, and contains the same number of doses as the 5s bottle of Warner's Safe Cure.—H. H. NULLITY SUIT.

PETITION REFUSED.

STRONG JUDICIAL COMMENT.

In the Divorce Court yesterday, Mr. Justice Simpson delivered his reserved judgment in the petition of Ethel Lil Victoria Maud Washington Brown, otherwise called Fisher, for the nullity of her marriage with Charles Cornelius Fisher, on the ground that she had been forced to go through the ceremony by fear and duress.

His Honor said that the story told by the petitioner, if true, was such as ought to induce the Court to grant the petition for which she prayed. But he was of the opinion that the story which she had told was not true. Petitioner had been put before the Court as a girl of very nervous, timid disposition, and easily influenced. He was of the opinion that she was nothing of the sort. He believed she was a very intelligent girl. He had come to the conclusion that, notwithstanding the manner in which she gave her evidence, and her appearance in Court, she was very intelligent.

He was satisfied that petitioner consented to the marriage, and that she entered into it of her own free will. Her story from beginning to end was absurd. The evidence of Dr. Zillmann was in itself almost conclusive. But apart from the evidence which Dr. Zillmann gave, he did not believe petitioner's story. One word from the petitioner to her mother, or brother, or one of her sisters, or to anybody, in fact, would have prevented any attempt being made, if it was going to be made, by the respondent to force her through the marriage ceremony.

Petitioner's evidence was to the effect that her meetings and walkings with the respondent at Stanmore were against her will. He did not believe anything of the sort. Her evidence of her meetings with the respondent at Manly would be likely to induce the Court to believe, unless very careful, that they also were against her will. She met respondent there on many occasions. Her story about his taking her to the water's edge, putting a rope round her neck, and threatening to attach a stone to it and drown her, was absurd. On the night before the marriage she met the respondent by appointment, without the knowledge of her mother. Petitioner was clever and very cunning. She deceived her mother, and, in his opinion, attempted to deceive the Court.

According to Dr. Zillmann's evidence the petitioner said to him that she did not intend to live with the respondent. She did not tell the Court that she made that statement. What it meant he did not know. Probably it meant that she did not intend to live with him then and there. She went home that night, and the marriage was without the consent of her people. But even if she did say she didn't intend to live with him, it did not show that there was an absence of consent, proof of which had absolutely been given. He had considered the evidence on more than one occasion very carefully, and did not like to take upon himself to say, seeing there had been nothing to contradict the story at all, excepting the circumstances of the story itself, that petitioner's story was absolutely untrue. But meanwhile a letter was received by the Attorney-General from the respondent, and it was placed before his Honor by the Registrar. He wrote a minute upon it, and directed its return to the Attorney-General. The minute was to this effect: "The case will be put in the list for a certain date, and the respondent may make an application to be allowed to defend. If he supports his application by sufficient evidence why he did not defend at the proper time, he will be allowed to defend." The respondent had never made an application to be allowed to defend.

He had very little doubt that the girl had been induced to take the step she did by people who certainly ought not to have acted in a way which was very wrong—to endeavour to get the marriage declared null and void by saying that which was absolutely untrue. The respondent in a letter spoke about a conspiracy. If there had been a conspiracy he hoped steps would be taken to bring the conspirators to justice. Mr. Harnett was present, representing the Crown Solicitor, and doubtless would take a note of what he had said.

Concluding, his Honor said the respondent had no sympathy from him. He was a despicable man worthy of the severest condemnation. For purposes of his own he had sent his wife a most insulting post-card, but afterwards withdrew it upon action taken by her solicitor. It showed that he was a most despicable man. He had no sympathy from him, nor would he from anyone who had a sense of what was right or honourable.

The petition was dismissed.

THE LADY AND THE CHAIR.

THOUSAND-POUND CLAIM.

PLAINTIFF NONSUITED.

In the Banco Court yesterday, before the Chief Justice and a jury of four, the case of Chalk v Hudson and another was heard. Mr. James and Mr. H. De Lissa, instructed by Mr. E. J. Peterson, appeared for the plaintiff; and Dr. Brissenden, instructed by Mr. Arthur Deery, for the defendants.

This was an action brought by Mary Hannah Chalk against William Hudson and Cyril Shuter, carrying on business as "The Manly Chair Company," for injuries sustained by her owing, as she alleged, to the negligence of the defendants or their servants, in consequence of which a chair which she had leased from the defendants on December 28 last, at Manly, for one penny, collapsed, and plaintiff, being thrown to the ground, was hurt in the spine, and suffered other injuries, which laid her up for a considerable time, and involved her in expense for medical attendance and nursing. Damages were laid at £1000.

Defendants pleaded not guilty, and that on the date mentioned the plaintiff had not leased a chair from them.

In opening the case to the jury, Mr. De Lissa said that up to the time of the accident plaintiff was well physically, but her condition since had been unsatisfactory, and she anticipated having to undergo a serious operation. She attributed the accident to the negligence of the defendants in providing a chair the canvas of which was rotten.

A. E. Whittell, manager for the defendant company, gave evidence that no one could get a chair from the shed where they were kept without paying a fee of 1d, but there were other chairs on the beach which could be occupied while witness was collecting money. He had known instances of mischievous persons damaging the chairs. The chairs were always inspected regularly, and where even a small flaw in the canvas was discovered in a chair, it was withdrawn from use.

On the application of Dr. Brissenden, his Honor nonsuited plaintiff, on the ground that there was no proof of hiring by her or of negligence on the part of defendants.

ANTHRAX POISONING.

CONDOBOLIN HOSPITAL CASES.

Referring to the recent cases of four persons in the Condobolin Hospital suffering from anthrax poisoning, which is said to have been contracted while pursuing their avocations, the local stock inspector (Mr. F. W. Gravel), in pursuance of instructions from the Chief Inspector of Stock, now reports that he has carefully inspected all sheep at their camping and other likely places on the holding where the suspected infection took place, but has failed to discover any traces of anthrax amongst them, and that there were no suffering or dead sheep on the holding at the time of his visit. It appears that about a month ago some 22 sheep had died there from an unknown cause, the carcases of which had been burnt, and as some of these carcases had been handled by persons, who afterwards became affected with anthrax poisoning, there was little doubt that these sheep had died from this disease. As preventive measures against the spread of the disease, steps have been taken to have all sheep exposed to infection vaccinated and quarantined on the holding.

ECZEMA FOR YEARS.

Doctors and Skin Hospitals Did Him No Good—Sickness Caused Loss in Wages of over £300—A Friend whose Father was Cured of Eczema Advised Him to Try the Cuticura Treatment.

"My eczema has been ten years' standing, and it has cost me over £300 in loss of wages. I am a carpenter and joiner by trade. I have been under doctors, and I also attended the skin hospital, but none of them did me any good. When I was at Horley I purchased some of the Cuticura Remedies, and I was working about all the day, not giving my leg a chance, but after purchasing twelve sets of the Cuticura Remedies they cured the eczema in my limb. I also had spots on the scalp, but they are all gone now. I have had these sore pimples fifty years. My scalp is now all clean. My eczema was on the right limb from the ankle upwards, which was as raw as a piece of beef. I shall recommend the Cuticura Remedies to all I see afflicted with eczema. I was first advised to try the Cuticura Remedies by a man who lives at Redhill, whose father was cured of a bad eczema on the head. No doctors nor hospitals could cure it. After a few applications the whole crust of the head came off, and left him a healthy scalp. Although I am cured of eczema, I shall always have Cuticura by me, and use the Cuticura Pills now and then. Chas. Gambrill, 166 High-st, Ramsgate, March 7 and April 17, 1906."—Advt.

LAW REPORT.

HIGH COURT OF AUSTRALIA.

(Before the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Barton, and Mr. Justice Isaacs.)

RABBIT-PROOF FENCING.

Goldsbrough, Mort, and Co., Ltd., v Larcombe.

Mr. Whitfeld and Mr. Windeyer, instructed by Mr. W. A. Windeyer, agent for Messrs. Alexander and Windeyer, of Deniliquin, appeared for the appellant company; and Mr. Piddington and Dr. Waddell, instructed by Messrs. Ellis and Button, for the respondent, Charles Henry Larcombe. This was an appeal from a decision of the Supreme Court of New South Wales respecting the contribution toward the cost of a rabbit-proof fence erected on the boundary line between the holdings of the parties. Argument, which had begun on the previous day, was continued, and concluded by Mr. Windeyer on behalf of the appellant, Mr. Piddington following.

At the conclusion of Mr. Piddington's argument the Court intimated that judgment would probably be delivered on the following morning.

SOUTH SEA ISLANDS INCIDENT.

Hazelton v Potter.

Mr. D. G. Ferguson and Mr. Windeyer, instructed by Messrs. M'Evilly and M'Evilly, appeared for the plaintiff, William Henry Hazelton, in support of an appeal from a judgment of the Supreme Court of New South Wales; and Mr. Scholes and Mr. Piddington, instructed by the State Crown Solicitor, for the defendant, Alfred Potter. It appeared from the opening statement of counsel that the plaintiff, Hazelton, was a trader in the British Solomon Islands. One Oliphant was Deputy Resident Commissioner for the Solomon Islands at Gezo, and a dispute took place between Hazelton and him, with the result that Hazelton was arrested, brought before Oliphant, charged with having openly insulted the Deputy Resident British High Commissioner, and found guilty. Originally he was fined £30 and ordered to serve three months' imprisonment in Fiji, but the money penalty was subsequently reduced to £10. A day or two later there was a conditional remission of the imprisonment—that if Hazelton apologised at Suva the imprisonment portion of the sentence should be remitted. Before he left Gezo, in the British Solomon Islands, a form of apology was written out by Oliphant, and a copy of it signed by Hazelton, who contended that upon his signing it he should be allowed to go free. The steamer Moresby called shortly afterwards at Gezo, and Hazelton paid his own passage and that of his wife to Sydney. Oliphant was a passenger by the same vessel. Hazelton was under no restraint on board the steamer, and was free to go about as he liked. When the Moresby arrived in Brisbane River Oliphant wrote out a document purporting to be a warrant, directing the supercargo of the vessel to take Hazelton to Sydney and there deliver him to a Sydney gaoler, in order that the sentence of imprisonment in Fiji might be carried into effect. On the arrival of the steamer at Sydney Hazelton was taken into custody by two detectives and conveyed to the detective office, where a consultation subsequently took place between his solicitor and the Crown Solicitor. The end was that he was kept in custody from Saturday until the following Monday, and on the latter day he was released on a writ of habeas corpus. Hazelton subsequently brought an action for wrongful imprisonment against Superintendent Potter, then head of the detective staff, and the jury assessed the damages at £229 6s 6d, certain questions of fact being left for the decision of the Full Court. The latter, when the matter came before it, nonsuited the plaintiff, and it was against this that he now appealed.

The reading of evidence had not concluded when the Court rose.

SUPREME COURT OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

BANCO COURT.

(Before the Chief Justice and a jury of four.)

A FACTORY ACCIDENT.

Watson v C. Anderson and Co.

Mr. Pitt, instructed by Mr. A. W. Hyman, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Reid, K.C., and Mr. J. A. Ferguson, instructed by Messrs. Dibbs and Parker, for the defendants. This was an action brought by Robert Luke Watson (by Isaac Robert Watson, his next friend) against Charles Anderson and Co., to recover compensation for injuries sustained by the plaintiff in consequence, as he contended, of the negligence of the defendants or those in their service, in connection with the control, safety, and management of a machine. It appeared, according to plaintiff's version of the accident, that on Tuesday, March 12, he was working at the defendants' factory, scouring wool, and while moving a piece of wool on the steel roller, following the instructions of a fellow-employee, who was well acquainted with the machine, his left hand was caught, and so injured that it had to be amputated. He was 14 years of age at the time, and knew nothing about the machine, beyond what the other boy explained to him. Damages were laid at £2000. Defendants denied that they or their servants had been guilty of any negligence.

The case was adjourned to the following day, to enable the jury to view the machine.

NO. 1 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Cohen, without a jury.)

A DEAL IN LAMBS.

Borthwick and Others v Birt and Co., Ltd.

The evidence on both sides was concluded, and counsel's addresses were deferred to the following day.

PROBATE COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Street.)

FURNER v MURDEN.

This suit still stands part heard.

DIVORCE COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Simpson.)

SCIFFER v SCIFFER.

Mr. Hodgson, instructed by Mr. R. E. Cunningham, appeared in support of a petition by Joseph Sciffer, a miner, for a divorce from Elizabeth Sciffer, formerly Mitchell, on the ground of misconduct. Petitioner said he married his wife at East Maitland in November, 1887, according to Wesleyan rites.

A decree nisi was granted, returnable in six months.

M'EWAN v M'EWAN.

Emily Annie Gordon M'Ewan, petitioned for a divorce from James M'Ewan, on the ground of desertion. The parties were married on January 10, 1899. Mr. P. K. Whyte, instructed by Messrs. Murphy and Moloney (for Mr. W. P. Kelly, of Wellington), appeared for the petitioner.

Judgment was reserved.

EDWARDS v EDWARDS.

Mr. Edwards, instructed by Messrs. Dalrymple and Blain, appeared for the petitioner, Walter Edward Edwards, who asked for a divorce from Ettie Beatrice Edwards, on the ground of misconduct. The parties were married in June, 1903, according to Anglican rites.

A decree nisi was granted, returnable in six months.

RAFTER v RAFTER.

Ann Jane Rafter, formerly Davey, petitioned for a divorce from Robert Thomas Rafter, plumber, on the ground of desertion. The parties were married at the Glebe in June 1885, according to Congregational rites. Mr. A. H. Jones appeared for the petitioner.

The petition was dismissed.

DECREES ABSOLUTE.

His Honor pronounced absolute the decrees nisi in the following cases:—Charles Wm. Hack v Edith Hack, Charlotte Elizabeth Bignell v Herbert Joseph Bignell, Sophia Jones v James Harrington Jones, Ethel Rose Flaherty v Ambrose Percival Flaherty.

ARBITRATION COURT.

(Before Judge Heydon, President, and Messrs. T. E. Spencer and E. W. Riley, members.)

SHORE DRIVERS AND FIREMEN'S CLAIMS.

APPLICATION TO STRIKE OUT.

Mr. Kelynack, instructed by Mr. E. R. Cohen, appeared for Messrs. Abel and Co., and instructed by Mr. John J. Mulligan for the Co-operative Wholesale Society Limited. He asked that the claim made by the Shore Drivers and Firemen's Union against these reports should be struck out. He contended that no dispute existed between the respondents and their respective employees.

Mr. H. A. Mitchell, secretary of the claimant union, submitted that a dispute existed in each instance. The union asked that eight hours be considered a day's work, and 48 hours a week's work; that overtime should be paid for at the rate of time and a half for the first two hours, and double time thereafter; that any time worked before the ordinary time of starting should be considered as overtime; that the minimum rate of pay be 9s per day, and that there be preference given to unionists.

Mr. Kelynack submitted that the function of the Court was not to harass employers. The employees would not be dissatisfied with their conditions but for the intervention of the union. The union was, he contended, raising disputes without indicating to the employers its authority for so doing. These men were in receipt of £2 5s per week and their meals.

The Court reserved its decision.

SAWMILL EMPLOYEES' UNION.

AN EMPLOYER ON SLOW WORKERS.

Mr. Johns, secretary of the Sawmill and Timber Yard Employees' Union, asked the Court to impose penalties, under the award, made in September last, for alleged breaches by Messrs. Saxton and Binns in the payment of four men at a lower rate than prescribed in the award.

J. H. Binns explained that his firm employed 400 hands, 35 per cent. of this number being mill hands, and 60 per cent. factory hands. The firm, he said, paid higher wages than prescribed by the award. If the award were to be pressed in the matter of wages there would be no room in his yard for slow workers. The firm did not want any more slow workers after this, as it had been proved to be better to employ skilled labour at top wages.

Generally, the respondents' reply was that these four men, being slow workers, had been informed that they could not be paid the minimum wage, and that they (the men) were satisfied to work for the amount offered them.

His Honor said the slow workers' clause was put in the award, not for the benefit of the employer, but for the sake of the slow worker. If, however, the Court made this clause too burdensome on the employer the slow worker would have to suffer, and it would be a terrible hardship if the slow worker could not get employment. The ground upon which men ask to be employed at a lower wage must be stated and investigated, and it must be in view of some ascertained defect in the man that the exemption can apply. In view of this the wage must be agreed upon, and then the secretary must be informed, it being the obligation of the employer to tell the employee that he must inform the secretary, and have the matter brought under the notice of the Registrar.

The Court imposed a penalty of £5 in each case, with £3 costs, and ordered that the total (£22) be paid to the secretary of the union on or before December 2. Of the £20 two men were to receive £3, one £12, and one £4.

BANKRUPTCY COURT.

(Before the Registrar, Mr. Henry.)

CERTIFICATE APPLICATION.

Re Walter Ivon Taylor. The Registrar found that the bankrupt contracted debts without reasonable or probable grounds of expectation of being able to pay. A conditional certificate was granted, the condition being that he pay out of his future earnings or income £4 every month punctually; upon failure of any one instalment certificate to be revoked.

Re Alexander Kinninmont. The Registrar found that the bankrupt contracted debts without reasonable or probable grounds of expectation of being able to pay. A conditional certificate was granted, the condition being that he pay to his official assignee £6 a month punctually—upon failure of any one instalment the certificate to be revoked.

VOLUNTARY SEQUESTRATIONS.

Robert Henry Humphries, of Kangiara Creek, near Yangmangaroo. Mr. W. H. Palmer, official assignee.

William Lindsay, of 7 Albert-street, Petersham, clerk. Mr. W. H. Palmer, official assignee.

DISTRICT COURT.

(Before Judge Backhouse.)

A WIRE-NETTING DEAL.

JUDGMENT RESERVED.

Davies and Kershaw v W. H. Armstrong and Co.

Mr. Ferguson, instructed by Messrs. M'Donell and Moffitt, appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. Curlewis, instructed by Mr. W. J. Creagh, for the defendants. David Thomas Davies and William Kershaw, trading as Davies and Kershaw, Grahamstown, mining engineers, plaintiffs, sued W. H. Armstrong and Co., Ltd., of O'Connell-street, Sydney, importers, defendants, claiming £40 for losses alleged to have been sustained in connection with the non-supply of wire-netting.

Plaintiffs claimed that the defendants agreed to sell them 20 miles of wire-netting at £40 2s 6d per mile, with the option of increasing the amount to 30 miles at the same price. Plaintiffs said they sought to exercise this right, but that the defendants refused to go on with this part of the contract. Because of this refusal plaintiffs sustained losses by way of profits they would have made on the extra ten miles of wire, and they had to procure netting at a higher price elsewhere.

The defence was that the plaintiffs did not exercise the option within the time mentioned in the contract.

Judgment was reserved.

LITTLE BAY TEA ROOMS.

Thomas Howell v Janet I. Reil.

Mr. Armstrong, instructed by Mr. W. Arnott, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Innes, instructed by Mr. F. A. Davenport, for the defendant. Thomas Howell, of Little Bay, plaintiff, sued Janet Irene Reil, of Station-street, Bowral, defendant, claiming £127, with respect to a contract for the lease and purchase of the Little Bay tea rooms. The claim also included compensation to the plaintiff for certain improvements he made to the premises. The agreement provided that the defendant had to pay for the improvements if she took back the tea rooms.

By consent, a verdict was entered for £84, without costs.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

(Before Mr. Acting Justice Sly and a jury.)

Mr. Pollock, Solicitor-General, prosecuted on behalf of the Crown.

ACQUITTED.

DEATH OF BOMBARDIER M'ALONEY.

Norman Dean and Herbert Green, two youths, were charged with the manslaughter of James M'Aloney, a bombardier in the Royal Australian Artillery. They pleaded not guilty. Dean was defended by Mr. Neville Montagu.

After counsels' addresses, his Honor summed up, and having quoted from the evidence at length said that before the jury could find the accused guilty they must find that they were acting in concert with the man who struck the deceased. It was clear that neither of these young men struck the fatal blow, but unless the jury were satisfied that they were acting in concert with him they were not guilty.

The jury, after about half an hour's consideration, acquitted the accused, and they were discharged.

METROPOLITAN QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Docker.)

SENTENCES.

John Henderson and Thomas Martin, who had been found guilty of breaking and entering and stealing from the dwelling of Lottie Neville, were brought up for sentence. Henderson had also pleaded guilty to two other charges of breaking and entering, and Martin had been convicted of robbery with violence. Henderson was sentenced to five years' penal servitude on each charge, the sentences to be concurrent, and was declared a habitual criminal. Martin was sentenced to five years' penal servitude.

£50 IN CASH PRIZES.

1st PRIZE, £20; 2nd PRIZE, £10; 3rd PRIZE, £5; 4th PRIZE, £2 10s; ALSO FIFTY PRIZES AT 1s EACH.

BRAINS V MONEY.

Brains! That's what counts. You can't think with your feet, however big and heavy. TRY YOUR BRAINS ON OUR POSTCARD

LIMERICK.

What! Can't write the last line of a Limerick? It's as easy as falling off a log. That's if you have brains. If YOUR brains are going to make your fortune, TRY IT NOW. You may succeed. Many a man has been made by a small beginning.

ONE SUCCESS MAY LEAD ON TO FORTUNE.

This may be your Opportunity. It's very easy, and when you can make the nucleus of a fortune, it's very fascinating.

HOW YOU CAN OBTAIN THE PRIZE.

Either of the following first four lines for our Postcard Limerick:—

LIMERICK NO. 1.

There was a young lady of Ryle
Who blushed as she said with a smile,
"To the Crown I will go,
And get an emblo.
....

(NOTE.—Emblo is the name of our latest and up-to-date photographs; they are the most artistic and permanent process known in photography.)

Or you may use the following:—

LIMERICK NO. 2.

A CROWN OF LOVE.
An ardent young man from the West
With the love of a maiden was blest;
But he sighed for her photo,
To possess her in toto,
....

Write either of these four lines out very carefully on a piece of paper, and fill in the last line to the best of your ability, and write your name and address very clearly. There is no entrance fee, but enclose stamps or postal note for 1s for our No. 276 packet of Postcards, and we will attach your attempt to a coupon taken out of one of our No. 276 packets and enter your name in our register, and send the cards on to you by return mail; or, if you prefer, you may send for the Postcards first, and then send in your attempt on our printed coupon; it makes no difference. Our wonderful packet of Postcards, No. 276, contains six Postcards of Australian Birds and Animals, artistically printed in colours, and is full value for the money, and contains a coupon for our Limericks, with the verse printed on it as above, which you have to fill in and send with your name and address. The rules, which form the only conditions, are also printed on the coupon.

RULES, WHICH MUST BE CAREFULLY COMPLIED WITH.

1st. Competitors must write four lines of either of the above unfinished Limericks on a sheet of paper, and also fill in the missing line, and carefully write their names and addresses on the same sheet of paper. Each attempt must be on a separate sheet of paper, with your name and address.

2nd. Or competitors may send for a packet of Postcards, containing a coupon, and use our printed coupon instead of the plain paper. Only one attempt on each coupon.

3rd. Each attempt sent in should also have with it a postal note or stamps to the value of 1s for our No. 276 packet of Postcards, containing the coupon.

4th. Those sending more than one attempt may send only one money order for the total amount reckoned at 1s for each packet of Postcards.

5th. Envelopes must be marked "No. 276" in one corner, and addressed to The Manager, The Crown Studios, 448 George-street, Sydney.

6th. The decision of the Manager of the Crown Studios is absolutely final, and all competitors enter the competition on this condition.

7th. The Manager of the Crown Studios will accept no responsibility in regard to the loss or destruction of any attempt submitted. The names and addresses of the winners will appear in this paper.

DON'T DELAY.

The man who is always going to do it to-morrow usually falls in at the last.

DO IT TO-DAY.

Send in your attempt with a 1s postal note or stamps at once to the Crown Studios, Sydney.

TRY TO START THE NEW YEAR WITH THIS £20 CASH PRIZE.

NOTE.—As the No. 276 is the key to this advertisement, don't omit the number.

CONSPIRING TO DISOBEY ORDERS.

SEVEN SEAMEN SENTENCED.

The hearing of the case against Ivan Hohyvak, 25, Martin Pall, 22, Robert Edwards 25, Henry Nelson, 29, Alfonso Mercurio, 23, John Dumphy, 20, Frederick Stein, 29, seamen, charged with having on November 21 at Port Jackson, while being seamen of the foreign vessel Algoa Bay, combined one with another to disobey the lawful commands of Antonio R. Bamuta, the master of the vessel, was resumed yesterday, at the Water Police Court, before Mr. F. S. Isaacs, S.M.

Mr. Pickburn (instructed by Messrs. Norton, Smith, and Co.) prosecuted, and Mr. P. Bourke appeared for the accused.

Ivan Hohyvak, one of the accused, stated that the custom at Callao was to read out an agreement to the seamen, but, on this occasion, that course was not followed. Witness never saw the certificate produced, and insisted that they were told that they would be free on arrival in Australia.

Frederick Stein said that he was engaged on September 30 by the board-house master, who told him to go aboard the vessel and that when he reached Australia he would be free. He had on a previous occasion sailed on the same vessel from Peru, but was never asked to sign anything. That was a coasting voyage.

To Mr. Pickburn, witness said that he was taken before the officer of the port, and got an advance. He did not consider himself properly shipped, as he had not signed any agreement. He denied having refused to weigh the anchor at Clarke Island, but stated that the seamen had demanded payment for the work.

To the Bench: The certificates were signed by the captain of the port.

Martin Pall denied that the certificate alleged to have been signed by the men was signed by him. He was drunk when he got on board at the time. "I do not remember how I got on the boat; I was shanghaied," said the witness in reply to a question by Mr. Isaacs. Continuing, witness said that when he asked the captain for the agreement there was a row, and he got six days' cells.

Mr. Bourke said that if necessary he would call the rest of the accused, who would state that they never had any agreement with the captain to make the round voyage, but understood that on arrival at Australia they would be free.

This not being considered necessary, Mr. Isaacs said that it appeared to him that the men had refused duty so as to get employment on this coast. Ivan Hohyvak seemed to him to have instigated the trouble, he having been in Australia before. He must decide against the seamen. Each of the accused was sentenced to four weeks' imprisonment in Maitland Gaol, as the ship leaves immediately for Newcastle.

SURRY HILLS.

Geo. J. Corbett, 336 Bourke-street, Surry Hills, N.S.W., writes:—"At the beginning of last winter I contracted a nasty cold; but am pleased to say I was able to nip it in the bud by using one bottle of Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery. I consider it a good remedy, and have recommended it to others for the same complaint."

Dr. Sheldon's New Discovery for Coughs, Colds, and Consumption is an unequalled preparation for Chest Complaints and all Lung Troubles.—Advt.

A comfortable eyeglass clip is one that is not only easily worn, but one that does not detract from the appearance of the wearer. Mr. E. Bosch, of Martin-place, has just the one you need.—Advt.

PEEL RIVER INQUIRY.

CONCLUSION OF THE EVIDENCE.

TAMWORTH, Tuesday.

The Peel River resumption inquiry was continued to-day.

A list of the company's tenants, showing who were in arrears, was put in by Mr. Gordon.

In reply to Mr. Campbell, G. B. G. King said that Tamworth Flat sale brought double the reserve. Taking subdivisions as a whole, the reserves were not always reached.

Witness stated, in reply to Mr. Gordon, that the tenants in arrears were all substantial men. There was no doubt of their eventually paying.

George Sims, of Nemingha, deposed that he had been farming 33 years in the Tamworth district. He inspected the two bullock paddocks and Wallamore paddock last Saturday, and found that a good deal of the land would grow lucerne.

Sims' evidence concluded the company's case, and the Court adjourned until to-morrow, when addresses will be commenced.

STATE RIGHTS THREATENED.

THE FEDERAL EXCISE ACT.

KALGOORLIE (W.A.), Tuesday.

The Chamber of Mines has written the State Premier on the subject of the Commonwealth Excise Act, which the letter states threatens to be a very serious overlapping of State and Commonwealth jurisdiction in industrial matters, and may lead to endless complications. The award in the M'Kay harvester case is quoted as an instance, and it is pointed out that if this award is constitutional the Federal Government can by the same process control wages paid in every industry in Australia irrespective of the State Wages Boards or Arbitration Courts. The letter concludes by urging the State Government to take all necessary steps to protect State interests, and challenge the right of the Federal Government to interfere in matters of this nature.

NERVOUS WEAKNESS OVERCOME.

FOLLOWED BY PERFECT HEALTH.

CLEMENTS TONIC CURES.

Mrs. E. Lawes, of Redfern, relates to a reporter as follows, and declares same before Mr. F. Flowery, J.P.:—"It is thirteen years since my illness. After my first child was born I sank into a critical state of weakness, and for six weary weeks I could not put my foot to the ground. The nurse who attended me told my mother she thought I was GOING INTO A DECLINE.

"My feebleness was awful. When I persisted in trying to crawl a few yards about the house it was impossible for me to straighten myself up; I was bent double like an old woman. I remember on one occasion a relative coming into my bedroom, and after looking at me rushed out and saying, 'Come in, Em's dead,' so that will give you an idea of the deathly appearance I bore. I was very near it. I am sure that I never thought for a moment that I would recover. By some means or other I got into touch with CLEMENTS TONIC, a remedy that I had heard a good deal about, and the difference that medicine made in me was extraordinary. Up to then I had the greatest difficulty in the world in making myself eat, no matter how nicely the food was prepared. My chest

FELT CHOKED UP WITH SOMETHING,

and I was oppressed almost to suffocation. Hot flushes used to come and go, the blood rushed to my head, and made me feel quite giddy, while the pains in my head nearly distracted me. CLEMENTS TONIC was the only medicine to do me good in regard to these symptoms. I found all other physics absolutely worthless, but CLEMENTS TONIC

ACTED LIKE A CHARM.

"I could feel it instilling vigour into me as one feels the warm glow of fire on a winter's night. I was surprised to find myself getting hungry. It was an indisputable fact that I was on the mend, and to my dying day I shall thank CLEMENTS TONIC for it. Everybody tells me now I look the picture of health, which shows what can happen in even the most hopeless cases so long as a few bottles of CLEMENTS TONIC can be got. I am now over 12st weight, and have had six children since CLEMENTS TONIC snatched me from the grave thirteen years ago."—Advt.

SPLENDID CRICKET PICTURES.

THE STORM OVER SYDNEY HARBOUR.—MAYORS OF NEW SOUTH WALES.—LISMORE SHOW.

The Sydney Mail this week is true to its reputation as the best illustrated paper in Australia. In view of the visit of the English team of Cricketers there is a set of pictures relating to recent events in the cricket world. The match England v New South Wales has first claim, and some of our snapshots of the play are exceedingly good. The use of the camera to show the actual play is rarely attempted here or in England, yet we show it can be done well. The players can be readily picked out. There are also portraits of Hardstaff and Hutchings, Diamond, Johnson, Waddy, and others. Our most effective portraiture shows the two captains, Messrs. A. O. Jones and M. A. Noble. They are separate portraits, large size, printed side by side. "Shortslip" has much that is interesting in the way of gossip. "Heroes of the Victorian Match" is a page with separate portraits of the team that had the Englishmen beaten at Melbourne when the call of time saved them. A page of cartoons on the cricket situation by F. Butler has many laughter-provoking points. Lismore Show is well illustrated. Toowoomba and its Carnival is a subject that occupies two very effective pages of scenery and snapshots. A page is taken up by "Milroy"—an illustrated turf article. "A Casual Glance" is, as usual, crisply written and humorously illustrated. "A Mayoral Portrait Gallery" is the apt title of three pages giving portraits of the municipal chiefs throughout the State. A second batch will appear in the following issue. The most notable picture in the issue was taken on Sydney Harbour on Saturday during the great storm. It is a wonderfully effective specimen of marine photography—a splendid picture relating to a sensational happening.

OUR READING PAGES.

The pastoral and agricultural columns are, as usual, full of interesting and valuable information. "Lans" continues to record his experiences and impressions of the rich north-west, where the expansion of rural industries is as great as in any part of the Commonwealth. Special articles deal with topical questions, and newsy notes help to fill the bill. The grasshopper, a great plague at the present time, is described by an expert, who has collected interesting data. The conclusions of a wheat experimentalist get prominence, and a budget of crisp notes records the doings of Australia for the week in a rural sense.

"Milroy" writes his experiences of a trip to Randwick Park, and has articles on Country Racing and Racecourse "battlers," also on importation of blood stock. There is a budget of current turf news.

Mr. E. Morey's pioneering reminiscences and "Thormanby's" sporting anecdotes are continued. "Shortslip" writes his impressions on the England-N.S.W. match. The Australian and Young Folks Stories appear as usual.

LABOUR AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

A platform has been drawn up for the Balmain and Rozelle Labour Leagues in connection with municipal government in the portion of the metropolitan area covered by their activity. It is designed as a fighting proclamation of what Labour intends to do in municipal life, and the ratepayers are asked to take sides in a matter of political import. They are, in fact, called upon to turn what should be a question of local self-government into a purely political campaign, with socialism as its object. As the Balmain municipality is largely occupied by working men it may be assumed that the labour leagues can see a fine opportunity of strengthening the political organisation at the expense of the ratepayers. Oral tenants are given a vote; and if socialism in our time can be realised even in small measure by their aid—at the expense of the capitalist—it will be so much to the good for the labour leagues. But it will be surprising if many shrewd working men do not see a serious danger in the new activity. If socialist aldermen dominate the Balmain Council, and the planks in the new platform are forthwith sought to be realised, there will be an advance in the rates, rents will rise, and the people who are being asked to help bring in the millennium will suddenly discover that it is further off than ever. Someone must pay for even the limited openings for communal activity provided in the new legislation, and the man who finds the rates will pass on the burden; or if he is a worker living on his own property he must grin and bear it.

We do not argue that the establishment, maintenance, and control of infant milk depots, ferries, gas and electric lighting, hydraulic and other power, night shelters, public markets, and much else by our municipalities is inadvisable. Everything depends upon how these enterprises are initiated and handled, and with whose money they are run. The average socialist thinks of other people's money. As a rule he has little or none of his own, but he is quite prepared to spend all that he can lay hands on through rating unimproved values or otherwise. What must be objected to is any proposal which would bring local self-government down to the level of party politics and which would place burdens upon the backs of the ratepayers that they have not sanctioned and do not adequately control. The evils of this side of Labour activity are being realised in England to-day. Recent municipal elections in the old country show that the ratepayers have found the position to be intolerable, and they have turned out the irresponsible spenders of other people's money neck and crop. The municipal debt there has mounted up until it is now equal to the national debt; and working men ratepayers have found themselves in a sorry plight, with less food and far less comfort in many instances than the idle derelicts whom their socialist aldermen have housed under carved ceilings and fed upon the fat of the land. If these municipal enterprises are to be entered upon it must be after due thought by the people most concerned and not by people with a political axe to grind. Fortunately our Municipal Act contains a safeguard, for a poll of ratepayers must decide upon large measures of finance. But even with this protection the advent of socialism into local government is a dangerous symptom, and must be watched and if necessary fought.

MINISTERS' SALARIES.

The Premier has obtained permission to table a motion dealing with the question of Ministers' salaries, and the House may then decide the advisableness of allowing a lump sum to pay them instead of voting for payment in detail. This is a matter which must be dealt with as part of the general reform programme of the Government. It is as much a question of economy and sound administration as is that of reducing the number of members in the Legislative Assembly; for we must assume that Mr. Wade has no intention of increasing the cost of government. His predecessor spoke out upon both of these sections of a great problem. In his Kogarah speech Mr. Carruthers said that some time during the life of this Parliament he intended "that the people should be consulted by referendum whether there should be a further reduction of members—say, from the present number, ninety, to sixty." It would be anomalous to find the strength of the Assembly reduced by one-third as a result of the people's expression of opinion, and a substantial amount taken from the cost of government, while the Cabinet itself was showing that a greater sum was required for it as the outcome of the present move. So we are justified in assuming that the Premier does not intend to increase the burden of administration as it is affected by Ministerial emoluments, and that the question for discussion will be one affecting details rather than principles. There will be a principle involved, of course, in that the Premier, or a majority of Ministers, rather than Parliament, will decide how the money shall be apportioned if a lump sum is to be granted; but members will still know exactly what the Cabinet is to cost.

We do not forget, however, that the country has been led to believe that there would be a reduction in the number of Ministers; and that economy and sound administration would be compassed as much in this direction as in that covered by reduction of members. Did not Mr. Carruthers steadily reduce the pressure upon the Chief Secretary's Department? Did he not also indicate at Kogarah that it was the intention of the Government to place the Lands Department under a Commissioner? These things have revealed an intention to bring future Cabinets into line with the policy of reform upon which the elections of 1904 were fought, and upon which special appeal was again made this year. It may be argued—it is argued indeed—that while the Federal Government shows itself so little inclined to do justice to New South Wales there must be a strong State Parliament and a vigorous Cabinet. But strength and vigour in these respects are not matters of numbers so much as of personnel and proportion. A Parliament reduced in size and a Cabinet not so large as at present could still uphold the banner of our interests and insist upon the recognition of State rights. Leaving this aspect of the question, however, it may be noted that to vote a lump sum for the Cabinet as is done by the Federal Parliament has many advantages, but the possibility is that the stronger Ministers may insist upon a greater share of the money than is at present available. We must confess to having the new Department of Agriculture in mind. If it is considered to be the Cinderella of the departments it may be treated as Cinderella was, though, like Cinderella, it must eventually be recognised as among the greatest. Would it be possible to safeguard it in some way? So much depends upon affording the Minister for Agriculture every chance and in making a good start that anything likely to handicap him should be anticipated and given due consideration.

INCOME TAX EXEMPTIONS.

During the discussion of the Income Tax Deductions Bill in committee last night in the Assembly some disposition was shown among Labour members to exclude professional men from the benefits of the bill. An amendment to that effect, specially excluding lawyers was moved by a lawyer, no doubt in all good faith. It would be unparliamentary to suggest that there was any insincerity in the proposition, or any real lack of belief that the amendment would be carried. Otherwise it might be supposed that the mover was merely playing to the Labour gallery, which used to be so easily deceived by playful tactics of this kind. The amendment was rejected, however, but not before a certain amount of debate had been expended on it and some other kindred side issues suggested. The proposition, even in its amended form, brings up a curious question. Before its terms were defined it raised the very elastic issue as to what constitutes a profession. We are not aware that it has ever been satisfactorily answered, even by the reply that a professional man is one whose qualifications for his calling have been perfected by a set course of study and tested by examination at the hands of a recognised examining body. But in some countries, like our own, perhaps, this distinction does not apply. A man classes himself as professional, whether he be a university professor, a lawyer in the front ranks of practice, a famous surgeon or physician, or a horse-tamer.

But, after all, and leaving these delicate if interesting issues aside for a moment, why should a professional man be excluded from the benefits of income tax deduction? Or why, as another amendment suggested, should a pensioner? There may be glaring cases in which pensions are worse than absurd, but if that is so the way to reach them is not through the income tax. For in the majority of cases pensions have been worthily earned by sterling services, and it would be an act of cruelty to sweat the pittance down unnecessarily while income-earners still in active work were allowed to go free. But really there is a question previous to all this talk about the incomes of professional men, pensioners, absentees, and the rest. It concerns the issue as to whether there is any justification for the income tax or not, on whomsoever it may fall. We have an overflowing Treasury, an abundant revenue, a House and a Government elected on an undertaking to repeal the income tax, and a set of conditions fiscal and political which do away with the original justification for that impost. By a Ministerial shuffle the promise has been evaded, but that does not affect the equities of the case. If the income tax was unnecessary when Mr. Carruthers spoke it is equally unnecessary now. Everybody should be exempt, whether professional or not. If there is no justification for the tax it is wrong to levy it, and that is the case Ministers have to answer.

SHIPPING PROGRESS.

The arrival of the Union Company's new steamship Marama ranks as an event in Australasian shipping circles. The Union Company has its origin and headquarters in New Zealand, no doubt, but so far as its services to the public are concerned it is Australasian. It connects us with the South Seas, Tasmania, and America, and the old world through Vancouver, as well as with New Zealand, and therefore nothing that concerns its interests or progress can be altogether indifferent to us. The new ship, 6437 tons, is the largest of the company's fleet, and that in itself is an evidence of progress and a landmark of growth, since the organisation made its first humble beginnings not so very long ago as the history of these enterprises is counted. This steady and consistent progress bears witness not alone to the sound lines on which the business of the company is conducted, the attention to the safety and comfort of passengers, the reasonable freight charges, and everything else that goes to make a shipping company popular, but to the solid prosperity and growth of the communities living round the Tasman Sea, which provide the backbone of the Union Company's support. This is found sufficiently encouraging to justify the directors in launching out into increased expenditure on finer and quicker passenger ships, and cargo vessels of larger capacity.

The Marama is an earnest of the policy on which the Union Company has entered, of progressively improving the type of its vessels. It is recognised that the conditions of Australian coastal trade are different to-day from the conditions of twenty or even ten years ago. More people travel, they require and are accustomed to a higher standard of comfort, larger cargoes are carried, and there has been development all along the line. The holiday and tourist traffic alone, especially between Australia and New Zealand, has increased enormously, and people are more willing to pay for the increased attention they obtain. All over the world the comfort of ocean-travel is developing up to the point of luxury, and it is not to be expected that prosperous communities like ours will submit to anything less good than the best. The Union Company recognises all this by replacing its older boats by vessels of a more modern type, not only in the interstate passenger trade, but in the cargo-carrying and trans-Pacific services also. Another instance of the Company's enterprise is the 7500-ton steamer now building on the Clyde for the Vancouver service. Like the Marama, she will be a 16-knot boat. The Pacific Island trade gets a new steamer of 4000 tons, and an 8500-ton cargo-carrier is also on the stocks at Port Glasgow. Facts like these stand for all-round prosperity, progress, and steady development.

The "Sydney Mail."—The "Sydney Mail" has published from time to time many splendid cricket pictures, and those which appear in the current issue are quite up to the high standard which the popular weekly has so long maintained. Of A. O. Jones and M. A. Noble, the rival captains in the recent remarkable contest in Sydney, there are large speaking portraits. There are also capital portraits of Hardstaff and Hutchings (England), Waddy, Johnson, Diamond, and Blaxland (N.S.W.). Perhaps the most interesting of the cricket pictures, however, are the series of wonderfully clear snapshots of the play on the Sydney Cricket Ground. A full page is devoted to ten members of the Victorian team that made such a praiseworthy stand against the Englishmen; and another page is taken up with amusing cricket cartoons. "A Mayoral Portrait Gallery" contains the separate portraits of 90 Mayors in New South Wales. The Lismore Show is freely illustrated, and two attractive pages show scenes in and around Toowoomba, some of the photographs having reference to the recent musical and literary carnivals. "Milroy" has an illustrated article on "The Stud in Victoria." A very fine evening photograph shows the peculiar cloud formation which heralded the disastrous hailstorm of Saturday evening last, and also the rescue of a dingy crew by those on board a yacht in Sydney Harbour when the storm was approaching. "A Casual Glance" is, as usual, brightly written and smartly illustrated, and on the "Woman's Page" appears a portrait of her Excellency Countess Grey.

Legislative Council.—There will be a sitting of the Legislative Council this afternoon for further consideration in committee of the Real Property (Certificates of Title) Bill. The main point for determination is an amendment proposed by Dr. Cullen, to give the Municipal Council of Sydney certain powers with reference to resumptions made by that body. The House may discuss the Closer Settlement Bill to-morrow.

Inscribed Stock.—A return tabled in the Legislative Assembly last night showed that the inscribed stock issued in England by the Bank of England amounted to over £51,500,000, made up as follows:—£12,826,200 bearing interest at the rate of 2½ per cent., maturing on September 1, 1918; £16,500,000 at 3½ per cent., maturing on October 1, 1921; £9,686,300 at 4 per cent., maturing on July 1, 1933; and £12,500,000 at 3 per cent., maturing on October 1, 1935.

Meeting of Ministerialists.—Members of the State Ministry met their supporters at Parliament House yesterday, and discussed with them matters connected with the business of the session. There was a good attendance, and continued confidence in the Government was expressed. It is understood the Premier indicated the programme for the rest of the session, which was given the general approval of the party.

Civic Atmosphere Electrical.—At a meeting of the City Council last night Alderman Meagher commented at length on the subject of the electric breakdown, as reported upon after inquiry by an independent outside engineer. Alderman Meagher attacked the administration of the city electrical engineer, Mr. Rooke. Alderman Ward, who on various occasions has had a tilt at Alderman Meagher, rose, and said that the oration, to him, was absolutely unintelligible. Alderman Meagher promptly retorted that Alderman Ward was making a sad commentary on his own intelligence in confessing his inability to understand. Alderman Ward was again equal to the occasion. He admitted Alderman Meagher's superior brain force, and testified to it in the following words:—"What further proof of Alderman Meagher's brains could there be than the fact that he is now a member of Parliament—placed there by the poor people on whom he has brought his superior brain power to bear." The sally was received with a laugh, and Alderman Ward continued to criticise Alderman Meagher in the following strain:—"Alderman Meagher has done more during the last few months to demoralise that electrical powerhouse than ——" The Lord Mayor having called Alderman Ward to order the rising flush of anger on Alderman Meagher's face died out, and he did not proceed to execute a threat to effectively criticise Alderman Ward.

Germany and the Tariff.—On Monday a cablegram was published in the "Herald" that Prince Bulow was watching the effect of the Commonwealth tariff on German exports before fixing the duration of the renewal of the favoured nation clause towards Great Britain and her colonies. There was also the statement from the Berlin correspondent of the London "Standard" that "the German Consul-General in Sydney has already made representations to the Government of the Australian Commonwealth regarding its new tariff, and hopes are entertained here that Germany will be able to conclude direct arrangements both with Australia and Canada for the regulation of their commercial relations." Dr. Irmer, Consul-General for Germany, stated yesterday that nothing had passed between himself and the Federal Government on the subject. He pointed out that on political questions, such as the tariff, there could be no communications between Germany and the Commonwealth, as the latter was a colony of Great Britain, and all such matters would have to be arranged by the Governments at London and Berlin through their respective Ambassadors. As Consul-General, Dr. Irmer has to confine his attention to commercial matters, such as anything connected with German shipping or the welfare of his compatriots. If in any debate on the tariff a statement was made that in itself was erroneous or might give rise to a wrong impression of German trade or that country's methods he could write to the Government here pointing out the mistake; but so far as the tariff or any other political matter was directly concerned, he could do nothing without the authority of the British or German Government.

Government Tenants in Arrears.—A return in answer to a question was laid on the table in the Legislative Assembly last night, showing the number of tenants in the Rocks resumed area who are in arrears with their rent, and the aggregate amount of the arrears. In respect of premises vested in the Sydney Harbour Trust, 598 tenants are behind in their payments to the extent of £1319, and in premises controlled by the resumed properties branch, 516 tenants in arrears owe the Government an aggregate of £2218 for back rent.

A Modest Venus.—The following letter has been received by a theatrical manager who recently advertised for "extra ladies" for a forthcoming production:—"Re advert., could you arrange privately an interview with a Bashful Lady, lately Independent, now retrenched? She is tall, Handsome, good Figure. Has posed Privatly to well-know artists, is English. Not know at all in Theatricall circles, speaking and singing voice. Fair. Not having yet done so, don't like to mix in a crowd of all sorts of applicants. Have not mentioned this or applied to any others. Would like some thing apart and special. Salary not the first consideration. Good Poseuse. Measurements about same as the Famous Venus di Medicie. Address, etc."

The Importance of Shipping.—Speaking at the annual meeting of the New Zealand Shipping Company this week (writes our Wellington correspondent, under date November 22), Mr. G. G. Stead said he had often wondered whether the public realised how much the country's prosperity was due to the various steamship companies trading between the Dominion and Great Britain. He saw figures the other day giving the exports of the Dominion for the year up to September 30 last, and, roughly speaking, those exports amount ed to £100 per head of the adult male population. Without an economical and fairly fast steam service, it was obvious that so large an export trade could not have been developed. He thought he was right in saying that there was no other State with an equal population that exceeded, or equalled, the exports per head of the population of New Zealand. It was of interest to the shareholders to realise that the New Zealand Shipping Company initiated the first regular steam service to carry on trade between New Zealand and Great Britain. He had always held that the settlers of New Zealand owed a debt of gratitude to the New Zealand Shipping Company for instituting a service which had been of so great an advantage to the country. The report laid before shareholders showed that the company now owns a fleet of 16 steamers, of a gross tonnage of 104,383. During the year the distance covered by these vessels was 716,183 miles, the coal consumption was 175,418 tons, and the net profits, after allowing for depreciation and all charges, amounted to £42,143.

Roads and Bridges Member Not Dead.—Speaking at the Burwood Council-chambers last night, Mr. J. D. Fitzgerald expressed the fear that unless the people took care there would be a resuscitation of the old system of roads and bridgesdom, which spelt local helplessness and not local self-government. It was a usurpation of the Local Government Act to find a great Government department granting money for the improvement of parks through members of Parliament. The councils were the only executive bodies entitled to deal with this question. He noted with regret that the Premier, Mr. Wade, of whom he had expected much, had succumbed to the old temptation. It was recently announced in the papers that £20 had been granted for some park in the Premier's electorate. It was a pity that Mr. Wade had descended to one of the petty and non-ornamental tricks of the old politician. If the municipal and shire councils were not to be supreme in the sphere specially created for them, there would be a recurrence of the system which the Act had been definitely aimed to kill. The councils should not be relegated to the condition of being eleemosynary institutions compelled to go cap in hand to the members of Parliament for favours that were now their own right.

Equine Cakewalk.—In Erskine-street, just after the storm subsided, a horse in a cart was being driven into Day-street when it suddenly began dancing in an extraordinary way, and as suddenly stopped, when it got past the corner. A second horse attached to a vehicle followed not long afterwards, and it behaved in a similar manner, and seemed greatly terrified. Then a dog came along from Day-street into Erskine-street, and directly it reached the corner it let out an unearthly yell and tore off at top speed, which it never relaxed till it reached Kent-street. It was then discovered that there was something wrong with the tram trolly wire, and that the current was escaping down the iron standard into the roadway, and that the horses and dog must have received a severe electrical shock. The traffic constable in the neighbourhood at once took charge and kept people off until the tram officials came along and made good the leakage. It was apparent that the lightning had struck the insulator, which was completely fused, thus allowing the current to escape down the iron standard. It was fortunate that no one was tempted to touch the standard while the current was escaping, otherwise there would have been a more serious story to tell.

City Signs Test Case.—On 6th inst Mr. R. C. Hagon, of King-street, was fined 1s and 1s costs, or in default one hour's imprisonment, for an alleged breach of the city bylaw regarding the signs on shops. Yesterday the Chief Justice, Sir Frederick Darley, at the instance of Dr. Brissenden, instructed by Messrs. Westgarth, Nathan, and Co., granted a rule nisi for a prohibition directed to Mr. Smithers, S.M., and Mr. Duncan, inspector of nuisances for the municipality of Sydney, on two grounds:—(1) That bylaw 641, made on the 6th day of March, by the Municipal Council of Sydney is ultra vires; (2) that the said bylaw is unreasonable. His Honor made the rule returnable before the Full Court at the ensuing term, which commences at the middle of February. The decision in this matter will affect about 2000 other cases.

Increase of Surf-bathing.—The deputation which waited on the Minister for Lands on Monday laid some interesting figures before him, showing how the surf-bathing boom continues. It was stated that the Manly Club, which the deputation represented, contained nearly 500 members; and on Sunday last, at Manly and Freshwater, there were over 3000 bathers, although the season is not yet in full swing. Mr. F. W. J. Donovan pointed out that last year over a million people passed through the turnstiles at Manly, and an enormous number of them were attracted solely by the desire to plunge into the breakers—a sport which they claimed was national in character. Consequently a Government grant was asked for—one speaker suggested £1500—to erect additional accommodation on the beaches, which were now overcrowded. Mr. Moore, in his reply, was very encouraging. He said the deputation had his full sympathy and support, and he was going to do something for them, but he would first place the matter before the Cabinet.

The Benefits of High Church.—At the annual meeting of the Church of England Association on Monday comment was made on the spread of Ritualism. One minister gave a humorous account of a conversation he had had with a young lady who was anxious to find out whether he was a high or a low churchman. After he had made several evasive answers, she admitted that she preferred High Church. It was much freer, she explained. One had not to be so careful of the form of enjoyment indulged in, and then again all she had to do was to go to a Sunday Mass without having had a meal, and she would be at liberty to enjoy herself for the rest of the day. This was a decided advantage. The great point, however, was in the fact that a follower of the High Church could tell lies, because, in modern society, it was absolutely essential that falsehoods should be told. The speaker asked the adherent of the High Church if everyone in society told lies. She answered in the affirmative, to which he made the very natural observation: "Then, to speak plainly, you are a company of liars?" The poor girl was cornered, and had by her silence to admit that such was the case. Still, she had the fact to cling to that she was High Church, and was allowed the privilege mentioned. The narration of the incident caused great laughter, the audience being obviously out of sympathy with the principles of High Church.

The Sydney Norland Institute.—In pursuance of the resolutions adopted at the meeting held in the Women's Patriotic Club on the 19th inst, a preliminary committee meeting was held on Monday with practical results. A suitable house, with good garden, has been found in a healthy neighbourhood a short distance from the city. The committee regards as a particularly fortunate circumstance the arrival this week of a fully-qualified Norland nurse, whose experience will be of great advantage in the work.

The Safety of Bondi Beach.—An item of correspondence dealth with last night at the Waverley Council's meeting disclosed the fact that a body calling itself the Bondi Surf and Social Club is anxious to enter the arena to do battle for the unwary bather. This club, which, it is stated, has a membership of 75, is composed of residents from contiguous suburbs, and wrote asking the council if it could see its way to provide line and reel for the northern end of the bay? Here the club has purchased a piece of land, upon which it proposes to build a club-house, and have its headquarters. Alderman Abigail directed attention to the fact that the lifebuoy and line belonging to the council had been already removed to the northern end of the beach. Aldermen generally regarded the advent of additional lifesavers with favour, and decided to finally discuss matters at a meeting at which representatives of the newly-formed association would be invited to attend.

Dense Fog.—An unusually heavy fog for this time of year hung over the entrance to Port Jackson from about 8 o'clock on Monday evening until 7.30 a.m. on Tuesday. A number of steamers were delayed for some hours from entering or leaving the port. Some vessels from northern ports passed Sydney Heads, and were noticed coming from the south when the weather cleared. During yesterday morning the fog extended up the harbour and hung about the bays and inlets until 9 o'clock.

The Mails.—The Postal Department stated last night that the mails from London for the week ended October 25, brought by the Ortona, will not be delivered at Sydney until Thursday morning. These mails reached Adelaide on Monday. The India, with the English mails for a week later, called at Fremantle on Monday night. The delivery of these mails at Sydney should be made on Monday.

Bombardier M'Aloney's Death.—Two youths, named respectively Norman Dean and Herbert Green, were placed on trial at the Central Criminal Court yesterday, charged with the manslaughter of Bombardier M'Aloney, of the Royal Australian Artillery, on the night of September 30. The case for the Crown was that the accused were two members of a push which assaulted the deceased outside Her Majesty's Hotel on that night, and though they had not, so far as was known, taken any part in the assault, they were connected with it. Several witnesses were examined, but they were unable to connect the accused with the crime to the satisfaction of the jury, and the consequence was that they were acquitted.

We are informed that Mr. Thomas Buckland, managing director of the Cobar Gold Mines, was not connected with the case of alleged oversight reported in our issue of yesterday from Cobar.

Way's in Pitt-street commence a Christmas linen sale to-day, for three days only, when they will allow a special discount of 12½ per cent., or 2s 6d in the £, off all household goods.

Every Thursday the steamer Kookooburra will leave Fort Macquarie at 10 a.m., visiting all the beauty spots of the harbour and Lane Cove and Parramatta Rivers, landing excursionists at Correy's Gardens for lunch, returning to the city about 5 p.m.

Mr. T. Michell, solicitor, of 88 Pitt-street, has been appointed a commissioner for taking affidavits in Sydney.

THE COMMONWEALTH.

BUTTER-BOX TIMBER.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTERS.)

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the House of Representatives to-day Mr. John Thomson asked the Minister for Customs if facilities might not be given for butter-boxes to be made in bond, because the drawback on timber was not always participated in by those who paid duty. The Minister, in reply, said that the whole question as regards butter-boxes and fruit cases is now under consideration, and as soon as something is evolved information is to be given to the House.

GOVERNMENT'S FOREIGN TRADING.

Mr. Batchelor asked the Postmaster-General in the House of Representatives to-day if it were true that helmets made in China were being used in the Post Office in South Australia. If it is there will be trouble, replied the Postmaster-General, and he promised to make inquiries about it.

IRON ORE FOR JAPAN.

In the House of Representatives to-day Mr. M'Dougall read an extract from a newspaper containing a statement that there was a probability of a Japanese-Australian iron and steel industry being brought into being very soon; that machinery had been secured in the United States by some Japanese investors, and that commissioners had been sent to Australia to report upon the matter. The Prime Minister, in reply, said he had no more authority to go upon than Mr. M'Dougall in regard to the first part of the statement. He went on to say that he had made some inquiries last year, which elicited the fact that Japanese commissioners, who were travelling the world over in order to study the undeveloped iron resources of various countries, had spent a considerable time in Australia making careful inquiries; and had, he understood, obtained quotations for untreated ore.

THE IRON BONUS.

Mr. Palmer asked the Prime Minister today in the House of Representatives, if, on account of the second reading of the Iron Bonus Bill having been carried by a large majority, it was the intention of the Government to proceed with all the clauses of the measure, including the objectionable socialistic ones. Mr. Deakin replied that the affirmation given by the House on the second reading was as to principle; but the House, of course, had its right to amend the measure. But probably when further explanations of the clauses referred to were given, Mr. Palmer would be so satisfied with them that he would not want any amendment.

RAILWAY ELECTRIFICATION AND THE TELEPHONES.

The proposal of the Victorian Government to substitute electricity for steam on the suburban railways is causing the Postal Department some concern, for it will mean a great increase of expenditure on the telephone system in and about Melbourne. The Postmaster-General (Mr. Mauger), with the chief electrical engineer (Mr. Hesketh), has had a conference on the subject, for with the tremendous amount of power to be brought into use on the railroads and the earth returns of the electricity for the telephones there will be such a warring of currents—to break away from the technical explanatory terms—that telephony will become impossible. The result of the deliberations has amounted to this, that electric conversion is practically certain, although the State Government has not yet decided upon it, and when it does come all the suburban telephones will have to be put underground, and metallic circuits that is, a wire from the exchange to each telephone and a wire back to the exchange) will have to be provided. This will, of course, give the suffering subscribers better service, but the expense will be great. A large scheme of undergrounding, to cost many thousands of pounds and extending over several years, is already being carried out in the city proper.

TATTERSALL'S SWEEPS.

A warning letter was sent by the Postmaster-General to a bank in Tasmania in regard to business said to have been carried on by that institution with Tattersall's subscribers. A reply has been received that there is no desire to infringe the Federal law in any way, and compliance is promised. Further correspondence is taking place, however, in the matter of a guarantee required by the department.

PERSONAL.

VICE-REGAL.

His Excellency the Governor, Miss Rawson, and suite will leave for Hill View, Sutton Forest, to-day, and will remain in residence there during the summer months.

Mr. C. J. Merfield, F.R.A.S., leaves Sydney on December 4 for Auckland, on his way to join the Lick observatory party to observe the total eclipse of the sun to be seen from Flint Island during the forenoon of January 3, 1908. From Auckland Mr. Merfield will be the guest of Mr. F. K. M'Clean, F.R.A.S., an amateur astronomer from London, who has made special arrangements with the Union Steamship Company to convey him to the island and return. Mr. M'Clean will act independently of the Lick observatory programme, and has brought with him several modern instruments with which he intends securing photographs of the corona during the time of totality.

There has been lodged in the offices of the Victorian Master in Equity for the sealing of probate a copy of the will of the late Mr. John L. Toole, comedian, of King's-road, Brighton, Sussex, England, who died on April 20 of last year. Thirteen codicils are attached to the will, which is dated April 17, 1894. The last codicil was executed on February 22, 1906. Mr. Toole left estate in England valued at £80,133, and property in Victoria valued at £174. This has all been bequeathed to relatives and friends, amongst whom are a number of persons connected with the theatrical profession in England.

Amongst the passengers in transit by the R.M.S. India, which arrived at Fremantle on Monday evening, was Mr. Harry Rickards, who has been on an extended visit to the United Kingdom in search of novelties to place before Australian audiences.

At the last meeting of the Balmain Political Labour League Mr. W. H. Gocher tabled a resolution (which was carried) for submission at the next annual conference,—"That the coupon system should be abolished."

Mr. Marcus Clarke writes suggesting that means be taken to preserve the old figures at the Central station, which is apparently dying.

A DASH FOR THE POLE.

LIEUT. SHACKLETON AT FREMANTLE.

CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS.

ASKS FOR AUSTRALIAN SUPPORT.

NOVELTIES IN MOTOR CARS.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE.)

LONDON, Nov. 1 (via Perth, W.A.)

The days immediately preceding Lieutenant Shackleton's departure from England with your correspondent were cheered by news of the interest aroused in Australia by the latest Antarctic expedition. During his last week in England the young explorer received a cable announcing that arrangements were being made whereby he would address a large meeting in Sydney. In addition at the last moment steps were taken to initiate a similar meeting in Melbourne. Lieutenant Shackleton had proposed to travel through from Adelaide to Sydney, but the chance of interesting Melbourne in his scheme for making the Pole was too good to be missed. He now proposes to break his journey at Melbourne, in order to meet a representative gathering of Victorians. He will then go to New South Wales for the meeting in Sydney on the following Friday.

The explorer is a man who believes in his mission. "We are making Australia our jumping ground," he said. "I expect to arouse any amount of enthusiasm there on behalf of the Nimrod; if I can't do it alone, I am willing to send the vessel back to Melbourne and Sydney after she has left the party on the ice."

"That will be in March, 1908—will it not?"

"Yes; the Nimrod is to leave the main body of the expedition and return for supplies. I could lay the vessel up there the eight or ten months during which we shall be searching for the Pole; but if the public cares, I will send her back, and she shall make a tour round Australian ports and bring with her a fresh supply of Antarctic flora and fauna; the Australian zoological gardens will, no doubt, welcome a few fresh penguins and the like. The Nimrod is an interesting boat, and she and the crew will prepare the public for our visit when the expedition's task is over."

"You are certain of success, Lieutenant Shackleton?"

"Well, there are hosts of difficulties; but I have no fear they won't be solved if only we get the support we deserve. Polar expeditions should always start when stocks and shares are on the upward grade. Then plenty of men have a little to spare for scientific research. It's a pity this American financial trouble has come just when it has. You know that three or four thousand pounds either way may make all the difference. An imperfect equipment may mean far more than risking failure, it may mean lives. That is why I am so anxious for every bit of support I can arouse. I know so well what use we can make of it."

"You are in sole command of the expedition?"

"Yes, there's not even a committee in the background. From the first I knew that our chances of success would be doubled if we were not hampered by a big board which would have to be consulted every time. For instance, in connection with the very matter I've been speaking of, there's no one to interfere with any plans for sending the Nimrod back to Australia next year, nor have I a committee of representatives of learned societies all anxious to lend a hand in the disposal of any zoological or botanical specimens the expedition may pick up. It is a great thing to be able to do exactly what one pleases."

"Then all your support comes from private sources?"

"Yes entirely, at any rate from a financial point of view. One of my stanchest friends has been Sir Rupert Clarke, who subscribed £2000 towards the outfit of the Nimrod. You see Australia has already extended a helping hand," said Lieut Shackleton with a laugh.

"And the others?"

"They include Lord Iveagh, the Duke of Westminster, and Mr. William Beardmore, but the support we value most is that which has been extended by the King and Queen Alexandra. You remember that the King visited the Nimrod during Cowes week?"

"Yes."

"On the Sunday after the naval review in August the Queen presented the expedition with a special flag. It is the first time a Queen of England has ever done such a thing, and we are tremendously proud of the honour."

"I presume your equipment is thoroughly up-to-date?"

"Yes. Don't let anything I have said mislead you on that point; but it cannot be too complete. Having a little in hand at a critical moment makes all the difference between failure and success."

"You want everything to reach the standard set by the famous motor car."

"Ah, that is the very last thing in motors; the Arrol Johnston Co. have designed it specially for the expedition. The steel is intended to withstand the Antarctic climate conditions. I am indebted to Messrs. Beardmore for this. The wheels are exactly like those of a motor omnibus, but when ice has to be traversed rims with 3in. spikes set in couples will be added. Finally, the front wheels can be fixed and supplied with a sort of giant ski. It's quite the latest thing in motor cars."

"Does that exhaust its novel features?"

"No, the car has been designed to furnish a constant supply of melted water. The exhaust gases are carried through a box placed on the side of the car frame, the tank being fed with snow. The snow coming into contact with the hot exhaust pipe will give us water. Ingenious is it not."

"And the taste?"

"Oh, the taste will be nothing to us so long as we have water. As to the use we shall make of the car that will depend upon circumstances. The main expedition with the 15 Siberian ponies will move at the rate of about 20 miles per day. The car may accompany that, or it may take three men and supplies for 40 days, and make a dash for the pole. The winter quarters will be established 750 miles short of the pole. We shall work up gradually from there, reserving the dash as a last resource."

"What will your homeward course be?"

"If Australia wants me, I should like to lecture there on my way home. The South Pole is essentially a southern problem. I look forward to giving the first account of my stewardship to an Antipodean audience. If all goes well the Nimrod will spend a few days with the expedition on board in Australia before we sail for England."

"The party which is left on the ice, let me point out, will set out for unknown grounds. We intend this time to penetrate through King Edward VII. Land, which has not yet been explored to any extent. We hope to start for the Pole by October 15. We shall have to travel about 750 miles to south and 750 miles back, 1500 miles altogther. I don't know exactly how we shall proceed along. You see, we don't know if all the ice is smooth and hard, or if there are any crevices. We shall have to go ahead with the motor car as far as we can each day, and let the horses come after us. If the ice does not favour us the whole party will travel together. On returning to headquarters another party will be sent out to traverse land to the east, and all parties will be back in headquarters on January 28th, the vessel calling for us about then.

"By the time we arrive in England I hope we shall have not only discovered the South Pole, but have corrected all magnetic variations on the trade routes of the world. We have one of the latest inventions—it is only about four months old—for recording variations of temperatures at distances. It is such a unique instrument that Commander Vibert had it fixed in his cabin so as to take better care of it. You can't tell the true temperature among hills and among mountains, and this instrument will enable us to carry a thermometer for miles out on to the plains, where temperatures may be obtained. At the end of 44 miles of wire is a platinum thermometer standardised. Our thermometer at the other end is carried into a hut and joined to a patent recording machine. It connects with three terminals, and when the electric current from accumulators passes through by a delicate piece of mechanism at regular intervals it records on a revolving chart the vagaries of temperature. I am giving several lectures, and I trust to raise something like £5000, which is still wanted. I have relied on Australia to do that, and I am confident she will do it. Of course, Australia and New Zealand are countries nearest to the Pole, and should benefit most by our discoveries should we be successful."

A large gathering assembled at Victoria station to bid Lieut. Shackleton God-speed. Among those present were Sir Clements Markham, president of the Royal Geographical Society, and Dr. Nansen, Norwegian Ambassador, who held the farthest north record for some years. The explorer's fellow passengers on board the India will include Mr. Norman Brooks, the lawn tennis champion, who is returning to Australia with the Davis Cup.

BRITISH RIFLE TEAM.

MATCH AT ADELAIDE.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

A match arranged by the Rifle Association in honour of the visiting British riflemen was fired to-day at Port Adelaide. The conditions were seven shots each at 200, 500, 600, 800, 900, and 1000 yards. In the morning the weather was favourable, but in the afternoon a gusty shifting wind disconcerted the men, some of whom completely broke up at the 1000yds. The match was won by J. T. Lake, of Adelaide, with 185, followed by W.O. Raven (Great Britain) 183, Sergeant Tatlow (Great Britain) 182, and G. Hewitt (Adelaide) 181.

PORTUGESE CRISIS.

POLITICALS TREATED AS ANARCHISTS.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

While the political crisis in Portugal is admitted, authoritative denials are given to the allegations of impending civil war and widespread disorder. The stories are attributed by the authorities to a deliberate campaign of falsehood against the Royal house.

A decree has been issued in Portugal subjecting political offenders to the special procedure governing anarchist crimes.

IRISH LAWLESSNESS.

FOX HUNTS STOPPED.

LONDON, Nov. 25.

The Irish Land League stopped the Ormond Hunt.

Correspondents report that poison was also laid over the country where the Kildare fox-hounds hunt. Several hounds were poisoned at the last meet near Tullow, and two died.

SEPARATION WANTED.

DEFYING THE LAW.

A special Mass was held in the Cathedral, Cork, preceded by a street procession, and commemorated the execution of the Manchester fenians. Those who took part in the commemoration included the Lord Mayor and a majority of the trade guilds and political organisations in the municipality.

Speakers appealed to Irishmen throughout the world to boycott English manufactures, to disregard the law, and secure separation from England.

MISSING SAILORS RESCUED.

AFTER FIVE MONTHS.

BARQUE ALEXANDRA'S CREW.

LONDON, Nov. 25.

The captain and eight survivors of the barque Alexandra, 1506 tons, which was abandoned on May 8 last, while bound with coal from Newcastle (N.S.W.) to Panama, have landed at Guayaquil, Ecuador.

They were rescued in a pitiable plight on Indefatigable Island, one of the Galapagos group, 730 miles west of Ecuador, where they had subsisted on tortoise as food for five months.

The chief officer and nine of the crew of the Alexandra were rescued in June last from Albemarle Island, in the same group.

The barque Alexandra, which was well known on the Australian coast at one time, left Newcastle for Panama on November 26 last, and ran short of provisions. On May 8 she was abandoned at sea, the crew taking to the boats.

STRINGENCY ABATING.

NEW YORK EXPECTS TO PAY CASH

LONDON, Nov. 26.

The monetary stringency in the United States is now abating, and an early resumption of cash payment is anticipated. The currency premium is ruling at 1½ per cent.

PAINT BEFORE GUNNERY.

NAVAL INCIDENT DROPPED.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

The incident which arose out of the "Paint before gunnery" signal of Rear-Admiral Sir Percy Scott to the captain of the armoured cruiser Roxburgh and the reprimand signalled by Admiral Lord Charles Beresford to Sir Percy Scott has been allowed to drop.

A WIFE'S FORTUNE.

CONFIRMED ON APPEAL.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

The Court of Appeal has upheld the decision of the late Mr. Justice Kekewich, allowing Mrs. Jelland to retain the income of £180,000 left her by Mr. Wagstaffe, to whom she was married during the lifetime of her first husband.

Mrs. Dorothy Josephine Jalland, a nurse, was arrested last year on her own confession and charged with bigamy in marrying James Poole Wagstaffe, her husband, Alfred Gibson Jalland, being then alive. It was stated that at the time of the marriage, and for long before, Wagstaffe knew that Mrs. Jalland's husband was alive. At the trial Mrs. Jalland pleaded guilty, but was released without suffering imprisonment. Wagstaffe having left Mrs. Jalland a life interest in his property, his relatives contested the will, but Mr. Justice Kekewich found in her favour, and this judgment has now been confirmed by the Court of Appeal.

BERLIN DISCOVERY.

RUSSIAN REVOLUTIONARIES' DEPOT.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

Police have made a sensational discovery in Berlin. In the house of a municipal councillor of the Social Democratic party they found a large depot of the Russian Social Democratic Union, full of revolutionary literature, of pistols, and of dum dum bullets.

ROBBERS IN A MONASTERY.

SIX MONKS KILLED.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

Twenty robbers raided a Russian monastery at Krypetsk, killing six of the inmates and wounding two others. Later three of the robbers were arrested. One was killed by a bomb which he carried in his pocket.

FANTASTIC MOTOR TOUR.

ROUND THE WORLD.

LONDON, Nov. 25.

A motor-car tour has been organised to start from Paris in February. The tourists will leave for New York, whither the cars will be shipped, and then run to Chicago, Klondyke, Alaska, across the ice in Behring Straits, Siberia, and back to Paris.

RIVAL TO NIAGARA.

BRITISH GUIANA WATERFALL.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

A waterfall rivalling Niagara has been found in British Guiana, close to the Brazilian boundary, and has been named Chamberlain Fall.

There is already a rival to Niagara in British Guiana, viz., Roraima, which tumbles down a mountain of the same name for a distance of 2000ft, on the frontier of Venezuela. The mountain was first scaled by Sir Everard im Thurn, now Governor of Fiji.

WHOLESALE FORGERIES.

CHICAGO'S SPECULATING BANKER.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

During the trial of John R. Walsh, founder and president of the Chicago National Bank, evidence was given to the effect that the assets of the bank included £1,000,000 in notes bearing forged signatures of men of good standing, who testified that they did not sign the notes and that they were not aware of their existence.

The prosecuting attorney charges Walsh with forging the signatures to obtain money for speculation.

ORANGE RIVER COLONY MINISTRY

COMPLETELY BOER.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

The Ministry of the Orange River Colony, consequent upon the election of Parliament, has been formed as follows:—

Mr. FISCHER, Premier, Colonial Secretary.

Mr. HERTZOG, Attorney-General, Education.

Mr. RAMSBOTTOM, Treasurer.

Mr. C. H. WESSELS, Works, Lands, and Mines.

Mr. CHRISTIAN DE WET, Agriculture.

The Parliament of the colony will meet on December 19.

The two best-known men in the Orange River Colony Ministry are the Premier, Mr. Abraham Fischer, and the Minister for Agriculture, Mr. Christian de Wet. The latter, who loomed more largely in the public eye, is the man to whom the prolongation of the Boer war was chiefly due, on account of his successful guerilla tactics. Mr. Fischer before the war was a member of the Orange Free State Volksraad, and on the outbreak of hostilities was appointed president of the Special Embassy of the two Republics to Europe.

EXPLOSION IN NEW YORK.

THIRTEEN ITALIANS KILLED.

LONDON, Nov. 25.

An explosion set fire to a tenement house in New York, and 13 Italians perished in the flames, many others being injured.

GERMANY'S GREAT EFFORT.

TEN YEARS' NAVY BILL.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

A memorandum attached to the German Naval Estimates shows that it is proposed to spend £208,600,000 on the navy in the next ten years, and that half of that amount will be spent on ships and armament.

The German naval estimates for 1907 amounted to £13,628,247, so that, roughly speaking, it is proposed to increase the amount by £7,000,000. The British estimates for the present year show a reduction of nearly a million and a half, and stand at £30,442,409.

AYLING FORGERY CASE.

PRISONER'S HEAVY SENTENCE.

LONDON, Nov. 25.

John Ayling, a stepson of Mr. John Morley, and formerly a partner in the firm of Constable and Co., having pleaded guilty to a heavy series of forgeries, has been sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment.

RAILWAY DISASTER.

TWENTY LIVES LOST IN SPAIN.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

While crossing a bridge between Hospitalet and Cambrils, North-eastern Spain, the Valencia express became derailed and fell into the river beneath.

Twenty people were killed and 60 others were injured.

MOTOR CYCLE ACCIDENT.

SIR HENRY COLVILE KILLED.

LONDON, Nov. 24.

Major-General Sir Henry Colvile has succumbed to injuries occasioned by the collision of his motor cycle with General Sir Henry Rawlinson's motor car at Bisley.

Major-General Sir Henry Colvile commanded the Guards Brigade in the South African War, and subsequently the 9th Division. After the capture of yeomanry at Lindley in July, 1900, he was ordered home, and though subsequently reinstated in his command at Gibraltar, there is no doubt the incident led to his retirement from the active list of the army. He had previously seen service in the first Soudan campaign, and in Upper Burmah. He was 55 years of age.

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

WHIRLWIND IN KENT.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

Great damage has been done in East Kent by a whirlwind, which wrecked a number of farms.

TRAINING OF BOYS.

Major Baden-Powell, during a lecture at Scarborough, expounded a scheme for the voluntary training of 1,750,000 boys in the United Kingdom, who are now drifting about, and many of whom are going to the bad.

THE GRAHAMSTOWN MURDER.

Thomas Kerr, a caretaker at the Grahamstown golf links, who was recently charged with the murder of a young girl named Edith Pinnock, but discharged, as the jury could not agree, has been re-arrested.

FATAL STREET FIGHT.

MAN ARRESTED.

Shortly after 11 o'clock last night Constable Kehoe found the body of a man named John Nelson, a dealer, 53 years of age, lying on the footpath in Sussex-street, near Hay-street. He called an ambulance, and sent the deceased to the Sydney Hospital in charge of Constable Shailer. Dr. Paul pronounced life extinct.

On making inquiries in the locality Kehoe learned that Nelson had been engaged in a fight with another man, and in the melee was knocked down, and did not rise again. Subsequently a man named Wm. Toner was arrested by Kehoe, and charged with causing the death of Nelson. He admitted that he had been fighting with the deceased.

VICTORIAN FRUIT REGULATIONS.

A CONFERENCE ARRANGED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Minister for Agriculture has received a letter from Mr. Wade approving of the suggestion for holding an interstate conference to discuss regulations dealing with the importation of fruit from New South Wales into Victoria. Arrangements will be made for a conference.

PHENOMENAL STORM.

THUNDER AND HAIL.

SHIP STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

STREETS FLOODED.

Shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday one of the severest thunderstorms of recent years passed over the city. Rain fell in torrents, while blinding lightning and deafening thunder filled the air. At times the rain, mingled with large hailstones, was so thick that it was almost impossible to see 20 yards through it. In less than an hour 50 points were registered at the Observatory. In other districts the downpour was heavier. In a very few minutes the gutters were converted into roaring torrents, which widened, owing to the drains being unequal to the enormous additional supply of water, until in some streets it stretched from footpath to footpath at a depth of several inches. Pedestrians who had been overtaken by the storm huddled into any available sheltering corner.

While the storm was at its height the heavens blazed with lightning. Several buildings were plunged in darkness, owing to the electric light wires being fused. In one a dentist had an exciting experience. He was attending to a lady patient, when the electric light suddenly went out and the room was plunged into semi-darkness. At the same time a terrific peal of thunder rent the air. The patient sprang out of the chair, and encircling her arms around the blushing dentist's neck she implored him not on any account to leave her, as the end of the world had come.

TRAM AND TELEPHONE INTERRUPTIONS.

At North Sydney the storm was particularly severe. About 1 o'clock the tram traffic was temporarily interrupted. The tram bound to Crow's Nest, which left Milson's Point shortly after 1.30 p.m., was proceeding on its journey, when there was a blinding flash of lightning, and immediately it was evident that the car had been struck, as it came to a sudden stop—the wires having fused. The damage could not be repaired on the line, and it was found necessary to send from the Ridge-street power-house a break-down car, which after a loss of about 30 minutes drew the damaged car to Ridge-street. A chimney in Sophia-street, off Falcon-street, North Sydney, was shattered.

The telegraph service was severely affected. The electrical disturbances delayed the traffic on the northern, southern, and western lines. Mr. L. V. Miller, superviser of the night staff at the G.P.O., explained that under such conditions it is difficult to maintain a continuous circuit, especially over long distances.

Those on board the Union S.S. Company's steamer Oonah had an exciting experience. She had just cast off and was backing out from the wharf in Darling Harbour when lightning struck the foremast. A terrific report was heard, and the halyard carried away.

The Meteorological Department reported that the storm worked up from the south-west, and reached its greatest intensity between 1.15 and 1.45. A phase of globular lightning was witnessed about 1.45 from the Observatory and the Fort-street Model School.

A remarkable drop of 18 degrees in temperature occurred. Before the storm the thermometer registered 84.1 degrees, but afterwards 66 degrees was the highest point reached.

HURRICANE CONDITIONS.

As is usual in most thunderstorms, the direction of the wind was variable. Until 10.30 in the morning it blew from the north-east, when it changed to east. Chopping and changing from east to north-east it gradually increased in violence, until at 1.39 it attained the phenomenal velocity of 69.5 miles per hour from the north-north-east. This, however, did not last long, and the wind changed rapidly to south and south-east, at the same time subsiding considerably. At 8 o'clock last night stations to the north of Manning River reported thunderstorms with strong north-east winds. On the south coast the wind was chiefly light from the south-west and south. Showery conditions prevailed generally along the coast.

The small craft on the harbour experienced a trying time. In Watson's Bay the full force of the wind was felt, and several small boats quickly filled, and either sank or became partly submerged.

FIFTY POINTS OF RAIN.

The rainfall measured at 2.25 p.m. amounted to 50 points. Of these 20 fell in the space of 12 minutes, or at the rate of an inch an hour. At Bondi and Waverley the rain was much more severe. The former place reported a fall of 116 points. Only 4 points were measured at Strathfield. The hail in the eastern suburbs was very large, and great damage was done to gardens.

DAMAGE AT VAUCLUSE.

The force of the storm was severely felt in Vaucluse, where the rain fell in such torrents that considerable damage was done to the roads, especially those having a steep gradient. Palmerston, Cambridge, and Russell streets and the South Head-road were greatly cut up. Bags of cement which were being used in the construction of buildings in Watson's Bay were caught by the flood of rapidly descending waters and carried into the bay. It is estimated that damage to the extent of £200 was done.

IN THE COUNTRY.

Thunderstorms were experienced throughout many districts in the eastern half of the State, and Collarendabri reported a severe tornado, which did considerable damage to buildings and property.

TORNADO AT COLLARENEBRI.

BUILDINGS DAMAGED.

HOUSE STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

COLLARENEBRI, Tuesday.

After a very hot, oppressive day, a disastrous hurricane passed over Collarenebri at 3 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, doing considerable damage.

The verandah at Carter's store was blown clean away. M'Duf's receiving store was unroofed, and the contents completely destroyed by the rain, which poured down. The flying galvanised iron from above the place did much damage to the Royal Hotel.

A cottage recently erected at the back of the Royal Hotel, used as a private residence by Mr. Willis, proprietor, was struck by lightning during the storm. Luckily no one was injured, although Mrs. Willis had a very narrow escape. She was in the cottage by herself when the storm started and, becoming frightened ran through the pouring rain into the hotel, and immediately afterwards the cottage was struck. The roof and verandah were splintered into matchwood, and the contents completely destroyed. Sheets of iron were blown fully a quarter of a mile away.

The damage is estimated at over £1000. During the storm, which only lasted about 20 minutes, over an inch of rain fell. A number of other places were damaged.

The Meteorological Department received the following message:—About 3 p.m. on Tuesday a westerly gale, veering to north-west and terminating in the north-east, occured at Collarenebri. A tornado passed over the town, disabling the rain guage. It is estimated that the rainfall was 1½ inch. Property was damaged.

It is explained by the Meteorological Department that the conditions prevailing in New South Wales during Monday and Tuesday were very favourable for a tornado. That particular storm forms with thunderstorms. The most invariable feature is a funnel-shaped cloud that hangs from the bottom of a greater thunder cloud mass. The funnel is created round the axis of a violent ascending vortex of whirling winds. The diameter may reach to a few hundred feet, being much greater above than below. The area affected is generally from five to twenty miles in length, and less than a quarter of a mile in width. The wind in the tornado vortex attains incredible violence.

DAMAGE AT WOLLONGONG.

WOLLONGONG, Tuesday.

A terrific thunderstorm, the equal of which has not been experienced for some years, passed over the town on Tuesday morning. The weather had been extremely muggy up to midday, when the wind sprang up from the south, with cyclonic force. Rain descended in torrents, and in a little over ten minutes 70 points had been registered. The gutters in the town streets ran a banker, the lower parts of the town being flooded to a depth of some inches. In outlying parts small bridges were swept away, fences blown down, and in a couple of instances windows were broken. In several of the business places goods were damaged.

HISTORIC COLOURS.

THE OLD GOULBURN REGIMENT.

GOULBURN, Tuesday.

Ex-sergeant H. B. Monkley has presented G Company, 2nd Australian Infantry Regiment, with the colours of the old Goulburn Volunteer Company, established in 1869. On the disbandment of the company and the adoption of the present military system the colours were presented to the commander, the late Captain Comte de Rossi, whose widow presented them to Sergeant Monkley, knowing that he was one of the original members. The colours will be preserved in the Drill-hall.

CIVIC DISORDER.

POWER-HOUSE BREAKDOWN.

THE INDEPENDENT ENGINEER'S REPORT.

The report of Mr. G. A. Julius, who was appointed by the City Council to conduct an independent inquiry into the cause of the breakdown of an engine at the electric power-house on August 21, was presented at the regular meeting last night. Mr. Julius summarises his conclusions as follows:—

1. The failure was initially due to a shortage of lubricant in the crank base.
2. This shortage was due to the faulty condition of the machine, which had existed for at least three months prior to the breakdown on August 21.
3. This continued faulty condition was, in my opinion, unjustifiable.
4. The engine was in its then usual running condition, when taken over by the shift engineer and driver, on the afternoon of the 21st August.
5. Neither the driver nor the shift engineer were responsible for the initial heating of the bearing.
6. The driver (H. Kenningham) was grossly negligent in not recognising the heated condition of the bearing in time to avoid the breakdown, as from the evidence it is clear that the bearing gave ample warning.
7. The shift engineer was summoned too late to save the bearing, and the consequent breakdown, but, when summoned, acted with moderate promptness in getting the load off the engine.
8. From the conditions ruling in the power-house, and accepting the shift engineer's statement to the effect that he did carefully inspect this engine prior to leaving the engine-room, I am of opinion that he cannot be held responsible for the breakdown.
9. Shift Engineer Broe and Driver Kenningham were given every opportunity during the course of the inquiry to bring forward such points as they desired.
10. Driver Kenningham, although notified of the others, only attended at the third sitting, held on the 14th November.
11. Facts were brought forward bearing upon the question of general discipline and supervision. These I have reluctantly been compelled to set on one side, as foreign to the subject matter of this inquiry.

The Lord Mayor said the report appeared to be excellent and fair. The question had been considered judicially, and the conclusions were substantially identical with the town clerk's report. The position was now this: Mr. Julius had been asked to report upon the cause of the breakdown and the persons responsible. The town clerk had already reported upon the facts and made certain recommendations. Would the council now confirm the ndings of the town clerk, and further confirm his finding that Mr. Broe be reinstated, with a reprimand and loss of salary during suspension; and that Mr. Kenningham be dismissed the service, or allowed to resign?

After discussion it was resolved that Mr. Broe be reinstated without loss of salary, and that Mr. Kenningham be allowed to resign.

Alderman A. Kelly, in accordance with a recommendation by the general purposes committee, moved that Mr. Julius be appointed to inquire into the whole question of discipline in the power-house, and also into the city electrical engineer's allegations as to aldermanic patronage, and into the condition of the running machinery.

Alderman Meagher seconded the motion.

Alderman English moved as an amendment, that the inquiry be conducted by a capable commercial man and a capable accountant, in conjunction with Mr. Julius.

Alderman Thompson seconded the amendment, holding that it was more likely to result in a sound basis of future administration being established.

The amendment was lost by 14 votes to 9, and the motion carried.

QUEENSLAND POLITICAL SITUATION.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

It is anticipated that the Cabinet will promptly come to a decision as to the date of the elections. It is thought that they will take place on January 11. The Premier stated this morning that all efforts are now being concentrated in the printing of the papers and documents required for the elections. It has been found that the 1907 rolls with the bi-monthly rolls to date will be ready in three weeks. The printing of papers and forms for postal ballot are also being pushed ahead.

A meeting of the Cabinet was held this morning. This being the first held by the present Government a large amount of business was transacted. It is not likely that there will be any opposition to Mr. John Leahy (Speaker) for Bulloo.

A meeting of the Government party has been called for Thursday on the Lucinda. Messrs. Kerr and Hardacre will leave on Thursday night for their electorates, but they will probably return to Brisbane before starting their actual campaign. Mr. Hardacre today denied the statement that 200 of Mr. Lesina's supporters had left the electorate.

The Premier was questioned this evening with regard to his intentions, but he stated that he could say nothing at present. He has not yet decided when he will go to Rockhampton to deliver his manifesto. From latest advices it appears certain that Messrs. Blair and Maughan will again contest that seat in opposition to the Labour interests. They will receive the joint support of their respective parties. A statement was made to-night by Mr. Bowman in regard to the position of that party. He said: "As there are a number of false and misleading reports now in circulation with regard to the question of the overlapping of the Kidston and Labour candidates at the elections, I desire to say that up to the present the Labour party has not arrived at any determination upon the matter. The party's attitude will be clearly set forth in an official manifesto, which I expect to be issued in the course of a few days."

THE ETHICS OF BORROWING.

MR. WADDELL AND MR. O'SULLIVAN.

Messrs. Waddell and O'Sullivan, both members of the late Government, the former again in office, the latter in the cold shades of opposition, met yesterday afternoon at a social function and exchanged ideas on the wisdom of the State borrowing from the London market.

Mr. Waddell, in responding to the toast of the Ministry, said the state of prosperity which this country enjoyed to-day was on a very different basis to that which the people stood on 15 or 20 years ago. It was much sounder. Twenty years ago millions of money was borrowed publicly and privately in New South Wales, and spread broadcast over the country. This created an unnatural boom, which, through its unsoundness, burst. Now the State was enjoying a solid prosperity, not made up of borrowed money, but of sovereigns produced by the people themselves from their own earnings, and a spirit of thrift. (Cheers.) It was a matter of great gratification for him as Treasurer to be able to say that the condition of things which had existed here in the past in the way of borrowing had completely died away. No longer were they dependent on the money lenders of Great Britain. (Cheers.) In future they would, he hoped, be able to borrow most of their money locally. They certainly might have to go to London for a loan they would require in connection with the closer settlement scheme, as they intended to open up all the best of the lands for use by the people. But, at all events, there would be no borrowing for the next 12 months. (Cheers.)

Mr. O'Sullivan, in responding to the toast of the City Council, said he differed from his old colleague in the matter of borrowing. (Laughter.) There were three things which had made Australia great. The output of gold, the output of wool, and borrowed money; and as long as money was to be obtained at 3½ per cent., and expended on railways and tramways, and other works, which gave a return of 6 per cent., he regarded that as good business. (Cheers.) The late Mr. Seddon, of New Zealand, shortly before his death stated that borrowed money had sent New Zealand ahead 25 years, and he (Mr. O'Sullivan) was certain that the borrowing of the past had sent this State ahead 10 years. (Cheers.) He therefore differed with his late colleague on the wisdom of borrowing from the English market.

THE ENGLISH CRICKETERS.

The Englishmen leave for Brisbane to-morrow night.

A good deal of correspondence has passed between the selectors under the board of control and players with regard to the choice of the Eleven of Australia to meet the Englishmen at Brisbane after the match against Queensland. The match should be a useful one, as providing the selectors for the Australian Eleven with information which will assist them in picking the team to defend the honour of Australia.

THE QUEENSLAND TEAM.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

The team selected to play against the Englishmen is as follows:—R. Hartigan, G. Brown, S. J. Redgrave, W. T. Evans, W. B. Hayes, J. S. Hutchison, G. F. Martin, J. Thomson, J. W. Maclaren (Metropolis), M. M. F. Dunn (Bundaberg) and F. J. V. Timbury (Roma). W. A. Armstrong (Metropolis) is twelfth man.

FOR PEACE.

MR. HOLMAN'S OPTIMISM.

"SHED NO BLOOD FOR THE CAPITALIST."

Pacific advocates met in fair numbers at the School of Arts last evening, when the Peace Society was inaugurated. Ladies formed a good sprinkling of the attendance, over which Miss Rose Scott presided. Miss Scott explained the objects of the society.

Mr. Holman, M.L.A., moved,—"That a Peace Society be now formed, to be called the Peace Society of N.S.W., with the following objects:—Adoption of arbitration in all international and other disputes, instead of war; the simultaneous reduction of armaments to relieve the peoples of the world of the increasing burden of taxation; the removal of international misunderstandings, and the cultivation of international brotherhood and goodwill." He was in full sympathy with the movement, particularly the third phrase, which dealt with international goodwill. It was not the nation that struck the first blow that was guilty of the crime of war, but the nation that made the first blow inevitable. The nation which refused to submit disputes to arbitration was guilty of a great crime against humanity. He deprecated the ignorant and detestable jingoism of some journals and their senseless clamouring for Australian aggression at the expense of other nations. If that arrogant superiority over other peoples continued the outlook for Australia would be deplorable. (Cheers.) Australia was not a mere appendage to the Empire, and it claimed the right to weigh with an impartial mind the right or wrong of any question. "Though our ideal is peace," he said, "we may not be able to prevent the punitive expeditions and smaller frontier wars incident to our contact with inferior races, but at least we may keep our house in order, and not shed our blood in battle for the capitalists. We may have to defend ourselves against the Jap., or prevent despotic monarchs like the Czar or the Emperor of Germany from acts of aggression, but at least we would only fight in self-defence." (Cheers.)

Mr. W. Benson seconded the motion.

Miss Hodge supported the motion, and painted vivid pictures of the horrors of war. No war would have happened in South Africa had gold not been discovered there.

The motion was carried unanimously, with much enthusiasm.

Rev. E. Price, who Miss Scott declared was "an old battler for peace," moved,—"That steps be now taken to bring about the affiliation of the society with the Peace Society of London." England went mad over the Crimean war, and Australia went mad over the Boer war. But loftier ideals would ultimately prevail.

Miss Hickman seconded, and Mr. Lloyd, secretary of the Peace Society of Wellington (N.Z.), supported the motion, which was carried.

The election of office-bearers resulted:—President, Miss Rose Scott; vice-presidents, Messrs. Holman, M.L.A., W. Benson, W. Cooper, Dr. Roseby, and Miss Hodge; hon. secretaries, Miss Wearne and Miss Hickman; treasurer, Mr. J. M. Price; recording secretary, Mr. Stanley Allen.

A BLOW AT PATRONAGE.

NEW PRINCIPLE AFFIRMED.

"PULL THE STRING AND THE ALDERMAN WORKS."

At a meeting of the City Council last night Alderman Taylor moved a set of motions providing that all appointments to the corporation staff not exceeding £300 a year be left to the chiefs of the respective departments, subject to the town clerk's approval; that the discharge or disrating or suspension of any employee be subject to appeal to the town clerk, his decision to be final; and that the necessary bylaws to give effect to the propositions be drafted.

He said that many hours had been taken up on the advisability of appointing Brown, Jones, or Smith. Feeling had arisen over certain appointments, but he did not wish to specify any. By adopting the motions the matter would be in the hands of the town clerk, in whom the council had the utmost confidence, and the aldermen would know nothing whatever about the appointments.

Alderman Thompson held that unless specific instances of aldermanic patronage could be pointed to—and, he submitted, they could not—the motions were unjustified. The aldermen might just as well hand over their responsibilities to the town clerk absolutely.

Alderman Meagher: Amend the Corporation Act so that the town clerk may appoint the Lord Mayor. (Laughter.)

Alderman A. Kelly said the state of affairs in future, if the resolutions were adopted, would be—"pull the string and the alderman works." (Laughter.) He would like to know if the town clerk had asked for these powers. The resolutions were simply moved in compliance with the dictates of the daily press.

Alderman Clarke admitted unhesitatingly that in one appointment there had been aldermanic patronage. He thought Alderman Taylor's propositions were very good, and, if adopted, would do away with a lot of trouble.

Alderman Fitzgerald said that but for the "Herald" articles nothing would have been heard about aldermanic patronage. It was pure moonshine.

Alderman Stephen said Alderman A. Kelly had a short memory, himself having previously advocated what it was now proposed to carry into effect.

Alderman A. Kelly explained that he had only gone so far as to approve the principle in electrical appointments, which he did not understand.

Alderman Ward testified to Alderman A. Kelly having expressed similar sentiments to him. (Laughter.)

The resolution was carried on the casting vote of the Lord Mayor.

FIRE AT BROKEN HILL.

BLOCK 14 POPPET HEADS DESTROYED.

A GOOD SAVE.

BROKEN HILL, Tuesday.

One of Broken Hill's biggest fires occurred this morning about 4 o'clock. Fortunately a great save was effected. It broke out in the weighman's room at the main shaft of the Block 14 mine, close to a nest of galvanised buildings and offices.

The blaze caught the woodwork around the shaft and quickly spread, running up the poppet heads and north along the overhead bridge leading to the concentrating mill. The alarm was quickly given, and the city fire brigade was soon on the scene, along with the Proprietary mine fire brigade and officials from the Block 14, Proprietary, British, and other mines. Streams of water were speedily flowing from the Block 14 mine, also from the British and the Proprietary, but the flow was not strong, and the flames for a time held mastery. Attention was chiefly directed to staying the spread of the blaze to the mill and to the store-room, and in both cases human energy was successful. The store-room did catch once, but the flames were extinguished.

The men working underground were speedily brought to the surface, except for several parties left at various levels to prevent the fire spreading below this. Luckily it did not do so, the blaze being absolutely confined to the surface. The damage to the poppet heads is such, however, that hauling is impossible until new heads are erected. Work on the mine, therefore, will be suspended for some weeks. The damage was confined to the poppet heads, the overhead bridge leading to the mill, and to some small buildings adjacent. All the loss is covered by insurance, effected in Melbourne.

This morning's fire on the Block 14 is believed to have originated through one of the men on the night shift using a warming pot to protect himself from the cold, and leaving it temporarily at the mercy of the strong south wind. The fire spread with marvellous rapidity. The mine employs about 480 men, and quite 300 of these, if not more, will be temporarily thrown out of work. How long the suspension of work will last is not known, but an effort will be made to erect temporary poppet-heads to allow of the raising of carbonates, while the burnt heads are being replaced. The length of time this work will take, the manager (Mr. Hocking) states, depends on the timber mills. Development work will proceed. No time was lost in clearing away the debris, and a start was made this afternoon in preparing for the rebuilding of the burnt structures.

The fire showed the necessity of all the mines having an efficient fire service.

MAJOR-GENERAL HOAD.

LISMORE, Tuesday.

Major-General Hoad was received at the Council-chambers to-day, and welcomed to Lismore by the Mayor. He inspected the Light Horse, and subsequently the Scottish Rifles and Cadets.

THE MELBOURNE EXPRESS.

REDUCTION OF JOURNEY.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In accordance with a promise made some months ago, the Railway Commissioners have decided from December 2 to increase the speed of the Sydney express, and to run an extra train for wayside passengers between Melbourne and Albury, and vice versa.

SANDFORD, LIMITED.

APPLICATION FOR STATE ASSISTANCE.

THE OFFER OF THE GOVERNMENT.

The correspondence connected with the application of William Sandford, Limited, of the Eskbank Ironworks, Lithgow, for financial assistance from the Government, was laid on the table in the Legislative Assembly this morning by the Premier. It disclosed that after a good deal of negotiation the Government made a final offer to advance £70,000, bearing interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, the principal to be repaid in 20 half-yearly instalments.

On October 28 Messrs. W. H. Forrest, G. E. Brodie, and E. M. de Burgh, in the course of a lengthy report to the Premier, reviewed the history and present position of the company, and concluded by making the following suggestions:—

1. That £25,000 be advanced immediately for the purposes of working capital.
2. That the balance of £45,000 be applied in the erection of the new plant indicated by the company's statement of 22nd October instant, and be paid by the Government by monthly instalments as required, subject to certificate of expenditure being given by a Government representative—such new plant, so far as possible, to be manufactured in New South Wales.
3. The advance to bear interest at the rate of 4 per cent., payable half-yearly.
4. The principal (£70,000) to be repayable on demand, with a proviso that such demand shall not be made if repayment be made by ten half-yearly instalments of £7000 each, the first of such instalments to be paid on 31st December, 1908.
5. The advance to be secured as follows:—(a) By a debenture covering the whole of the assets of the company, both present and future, to rank pari passu with the debentures now held by the bank. (b) By a charge on the fully-paid-up shares issued, or agreed to be issued, to Mr. William Sandford as purchase money under agreements of July 18, 1901, and June 28, 1907; such charge to rank pari passu with the bank's charge thereon.
6. That the present arrangement between the bank and the company, whereby the bank is allowed to appropriate the purchase money paid on subdivision sales of the Eskbank Estate in reduction of the general overdraft, be allowed to continue; but that subject to this the bank allow the present overdraft to continue, if required, until the Government advance is paid off.
7. That arrangements be made that so long as any part of the money advanced remains owing to the Government, a representative of the Government shall be a member of the board of directors, and for this purpose the qualifying number of shares (100) shall be transferred, in trust, to such representative by Mr. William Sandford, at par, and be retransferred, at par, on the repayment of the advance and interest thereon.
8. That the whole arrangement be embodied in an agreement between the Government, the bank, the company, and Mr. William Sandford, to be prepared by the Crown Solicitor.
9. That the costs incurred by the Government in relation to the matter be paid by the company.

If it be decided to advance £50,000 only, we suggest that £15,000 be applied as working capital, and £35,000 towards new plant, and that the half-yearly repayments be £5000 each. Other arrangements to stand as above.

Attached to the report are statements showing that during the nine months ended September the quantities of materials actually supplied under the seven years' contract, including supplies to persons contracting with the Government, were 5577 tons, valued at £41,446. Material to the extent of 1295 tons and value of £15,137 was supplied to the Railway Commissioners prior to their operation on the seven years' contract between January 1 and October 20, 1907. For the nine months the company paid £20,240 in railway freights, and the wages payments by the company during the same period amounted to £49,397 in respect of the general works, employing 670 men; £16,071 in connection with the blast furnaces, employing 206 men; and £6307 in connection with the ore fields, employing 75 men. Making a total in wages for the nine months of £69,775.

William Sandford, Limited, supplied to the Government representatives at Lithgow inspecting the work a detailed report, dated October 22, of the operations, buildings, and plants in the various branches and establishments, together with figures as to the cost of buildings and plant, and the financial position of the concern. In conclusion, the company wrote:—

We should be glad to give any further information that the Government may require, and we feel quite sure that we will be able to pay off the advance within a reasonable time.

Our proposals for repayment are as follow:—

1. It is proposed to apply such advance as follows:—(a) £25,000 to be advanced immediately for purposes of working capital. (b) The balance of £45,000 to be applied in the erection of new plant, etc, to be paid by the Government monthly as follows:—£9000 per month, or as certified to by a Government officer, such new plant (with the exception of that which cannot reasonably be produced in the State) to be manufactured in New South Wales.
2. It is proposed that the principal and interest be paid as follows:—(a) Interest at 4 per cent. to be paid half-yearly, on April 1 and October 1 in each year, on the amount for the time being owing. (b) Principal to be repaid as follows:—By deduction by the Government of 5 per cent. from amounts payable by the Government to the company, to commence from January, 1909, but in the event of such deductions not amounting to £500 in any one month, the company to pay the Government the difference. It is anticipated that the deductions of 5 per cent. will amount to £1000 a month.
3. The following securities are offered to the Government:—(a) Second mortgages to be given forthwith for the whole of the assets. (b) Security of the seven years' contract in respect to deductions, as set out in proposal 2b.

Other correspondence dealing with questions of detail passed between the company and the Government representatives, and Mr. A. Borchard, public accountant, under date November 11, furnished the Premier with a report as to the financial position of the company. Mr. Borchard dealt minutely with the accounts, and estimated the revenue at £39,761 and the estimated expenditure at £33,023, leaving an estimated net revenue of £6738. He pointed out that the company had a shortage of liquid capital to the extent of, say, £52,500 if it desired to promptly pay for its purchases in order to avail itself of discount earnings, which would show an additional net profit; but the shortage still existed, even if the usual terms of credit continued, if not to the same extent, then at any rate to the extent of about £40,000. Mr. Borchard adds:—

The company has then arrived at a point where it has apparently reached its limit; its bankers decline further advances, its plant is insufficient to carry out the Government contracts, and the public has refused to subscribe the necessary capital. In the ordinary course of events, therefore, the company has arrived at the point where it is necessary for it to consider its position, and again in the ordinary course to vents such consideration would mean liquidation, if this course were resolved upon, having regard to the fact that the whole of the assets are held under debentures by the Commercial Bank. Considering also the particular nature of these assets, liquidation would necessarily be equivalent to a total loss of shareholders' capital, and creditors' claims, and might mean also a loss to the bank. I gravely doubt, however, whether the bank would permit the whole of the assets to be sacrificed in the ordinary way of liquidation. I am inclined to think that the bank, in order to safeguard its claim, would continue the company's operations until by means of a reconstruction it could sell the assets to a new company, which I feel persuaded would undoubtedly be formed, but in which the bank would probably retain an interest to facilitate reconstruction.

Mr. Borchard made several suggestions to turn the basis of any advance it might be decided to make to the company.

THE CORRESPONDENCE.

The correspondence concerning the proposed advance to W. Sandford, Ltd., showing the conditions adopted to govern repayments, cover seven printed pages. The general manager of the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney addressed the Premier on October 18, stating:—"In the event of the Government assisting W. Sandford, Limited, by advancing a sum of £50,000, the bank will be prepared, with Mr. Sandford's concurrence, to undertake not to call up the company's account during the continuance of their present contract with the Government, provided they keep within the limit now allowed them, and pay their interest half-yearly as it falls due."

On October 24 the Premier advised Mr. Sandford that "in pursuance of the conference which took place last week, when yourself, a representative of the Commercial Banking Company, Limited, Sydney, and members of the Government were present, a committee of three was subsequently appointed to ascertain the financial position and prospects of your company."

Messrs. Dibbs and Parker, writing on behalf of the Commercial Banking Company, advised the Premier on October 28 that—

With reference to the application of William Sandford, Limited, for an advance by the Government of £70,000, "if the Government advance such sum to that company the Commercial Banking Company will, with Mr. Sandford's concurrence, agree that the debentures to be given by the company to the Government to secure £70,000 will rank, pari passu, with the debenture to be given by the company to the bank to secure the sum of £135,000, less the amount standing at the credit of No. 2 land sales account. The 50,000 shares in the company already held by Mr. William Sandford, as also the 75,000 shares to be allotted to him, can be held as security by the Government and the bank pari passu. The bank will agree that a limit of £135,000, less the amount from time to time at credit of No. 2 land sales account, will be allowed to stand during the currency of the present seven years' contract, but all amounts from subdivision land sales shall be paid from time to time by the company to the bank in reduction of the debt and limit, in accordance with the present arrangement with the bank. Subject as aforesaid, the bank has agreed to make a further concession to Messrs. William Sandford, Limited, by reducing the rate of interest from 5 per cent. to 4 per cent."

An acknowledgement sent on November 2 stated that Ministers wished to know whether the board was prepared to allow the Government to rank pari passu with the bank "in all the securities they hold or intend to obtain from Mr. Sandford or the company," and on the same day a letter was sent from the Premier's office stating that before any definite conclusion could be arrived at with respect to the proposals for assistance, it would be necessary to have a more detailed examination of the accounts and position of the company.

THE GOVERNMENT PROPOSALS.

On November 14 a letter from the Premier's Department was addressed to Wm. Sandford, Limited, in substance as follows:—

1. The Government are willing to advance the sum of £70,000.
2. The advance to bear interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, payable half-yearly.
3. The principal (£70,000) to be repayable on demand, with a proviso that such demand shall not be made if repayment be made by 20 half-yearly instalments as hereinafter provided. The first of such instalments to be paid on December 31, 1908; payment of the first 10 half-yearly instalments to be at the rate of £5000 per annum, and of the last 10 half-yearly instalments at the rate of £9000 per annum.
4. The advance to be secured as follows:—By debenture, charge, or mortgage, covering the whole of the assets of the company, both present and future, and the fully paid-up shares issued or agreed to be issued to Mr. William Sandford as purchase money under agreements dated July 18, 1901, and June 28, 1907, and any other securities now held or which it is intended shall be held by the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney, from your Company or Mr. William Sandford. Such mortgage, charge, and debenture, to take priority over any security held or to be held by the bank.
5. The bank to be at liberty to continue subdividing sales of the Eskbank estate, but the proceeds of such sales to be devoted to the payment of interest or principal from time to time due to the Government.
6. The bank to advance to the company to the full limit of the overdraft, namely, £135,000.
7. The bank to undertake not to call up their account whilst any money in respect of principal or interest is owing to the Government.
8. The bank rate of interest to be reduced from 5 to 4 per cent.
9. No dividends shall be paid to shareholders without the consent of the Government whilst any money is owing in respect of principal or interest.
10. So long as any part of the money advanced, or interest thereon, is owing to the Government, a representative of the Government shall be a member of the board of directors, and for this purpose the qualifying number of shares (100) shall be transferred, in trust, to such representative by Mr. William Sandford, at par, and be retransferred, at par, on the repayment of the advance and interest thereon.
11. Such representative, as aforesaid, shall have the right of veto in respect of financial proposals of the company, subject to confirmation by the Government.
12. Subject to the proposals being adopted and an agreement entered into, a sum of £25,000 to be advanced immediately for purposes of working capital.
13. The balance (£45,000) to be applied in the erection of new plant indicated by your company's statement of October 22 last, and to be paid by the Government by monthly instalments as required, subject to a certificate of expenditure being given by a Government representative—the amount to be applied, as already stated, in the erection of new plant, such new plant, as far as practicable, to be manufactured in New South Wales.
14. Subject to the adoption of the aforesaid matters, the parties to determine what shall be the amount set apart for reserve funds and depreciation. Half-yearly balance-sheets to be presented by the company, and the accounts to be subject to audit by a representative of the Government.
15. The whole arrangement to be embodied in an agreement between the Government, the bank, the company, and Mr. Wm. Sandford, and to be subject to ratification by Parliament.

The acknowledgment of the foregoing, dated November 14, expressed regret that the bank had refused to comply with proposals 4 and 5, adding:—"We could, however, arrange for the security to the Government to rank equal to the bank security, and the proceeds of sales of land to be equally distributed between the bank and the Government. We could also arrange for proposal No. 7, provided the condition was limited for 10 years, and interest paid half-yearly." Mr. T. A. Dibbs, general manager of the Commercial Banking Company of Sydney, wrote on November 15, agreeing to give the Government the preference of £25,000, provided

1. That proceeds of all or any land sales be divided between the bank and the Government pari passu, the Government share to go in reduction of the preference of £25,000.
2. That when the £25,000 has been paid off the debt to the Government out of proceeds of land sales or annual contribution from share of profits, and profits thereafter divided, be paid to the Government and the bank in reduction of their respective debts pari passu.

On the following day the Under-Secretary for Justice wrote to Mr. Dibbs with reference to a misunderstanding in one respect "as to the attitude of the Government, which it is desirable to clear up before the matter finally comes before Cabinet." He explained:—

. . . The final words in your letter, "any profits thereafter divided to be paid to the Government and the bank in reduction of their respective debts pari passu," do not convey what was agreed to, and in this the misunderstanding lies.

If, however, this passage is meant to convey a fresh proposition on the part of the bank, you will see that it is inconsistent with the terms of paragraphs 3 and 7 of my letter to the company above referred to, which both sides agreed to before discussing Nos. 4 and 5.

In my opinion, the words above quoted should be eliminated, for the reason that they conflict with the terms of paragraphs 3 and 7, which have already been agreed to.

On November 18, Mr. Dibbs replied accepting clauses 1, 2, 3, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, and 16. As to the others, he wrote:—

With regard to the remaining clauses, 4, 5, 6, and 7, exception is taken, but the bank is willing to agree—

1. That the priority in clause 4 shall be limited to £25,000, and subject thereto that the whole of the securities referred to shall be held by the bank and the Government pari passu, but such priority shall not extend to the proceeds of the land sales mentioned later.
2. Clause 5 to read:—"That William Sandford, Limited (with the bank's concurrence), shall be at liberty to continue subdivision sales of the Eskbank lands, the proceeds to be credited to a separate account in the bank, and to be divided between the Government and the bank pari passu to reduce their respective debts."
3. With regard to clause 6, the bank to allow the company the same limit as it now allows them, viz., £135,000, less the amount at the credit of "land sales account," at the date of the taking of the security by the Government; such amount so standing at the credit of the account referred to to be then applied in reduction of the company's debt and limit.
4. Clause 7 to read:—"That the bank is not to call up the company's account for a period of ten years from the date of the first advance made by the Government, provided default is not made in payment of interest half-yearly when due."
5. That the Government's share of the proceeds of land sales, and all other payments of principal by William Sandford, Limited, to the Government, shall be applied in reduction of the said priority sum of £25,000 until it shall be fully paid and extinguished.

On November 22, the Under-Secretary of the Attorney-General's Department, intimated to William Sandford, Limited, that the Government was prepared to make an advance of £70,000 asked for in accordance with the amendments of conditions that had been suggested, and intimating that the Premier intended to take an early opportunity of asking Parliament to sanction the advance. The following list of amendments to be embodied in the original proposals was enclosed:—

At end of paragraph 4, after the word "priority," add these words: "to the extent of £25,000."

Instead of paragraph 5, insert the following as a new paragraph:—"That William Sandford, Limited (with the bank's concurrence), shall be at liberty to continue subdivision sales of the Eskbank lands, the proceeds of such sales to be credited to a separate account in the bank, and to be divided between the Government and the bank pari passu in reduction of their respective debts. When this sum of £25,000 has been paid off the debt due to the Government out of the proceeds of land sales or annual contributions from profits, the priority of charge in respect of the sum of £25,000 shall cease."

The following to be substituted for paragraph 6:—"The bank to allow the company the same limit as it now allows, namely, £135,000, less amount at credit of land sales account at date of taking of security by the Government; such amount so standing at the credit of the account referred to to be then applied in reduction of the company's debt and limit."

The following to take the place of paragraph 7:—"The bank undertake not to call up the company's account for a period of 10 years from the date of the first advance made by the Government, provided default is not made in payment of interest half-yearly, when due."

The remaining correspondence consisted of the Government's intimation to the Commercial Banking Company of its intention to make the advance, and the bank's and Mr Sandford's acknowledgements of the intimation.

DISCOVERY OF PETROLEUM.

PROSPECTS OF THE FIELD.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

Reports from Boonah tend to show that the rumours of the discovery of petroleum in the district have some foundation in fact. For some weeks a private syndicate had representatives testing, and as a result it is stated that crude petroleum heavy black oil has been found in a well less than 100ft in depth, and within two miles of the town on Behrendorff's Farm, five miles from Boonah. The bore is said to show volatile oil, probably kerosene, at 130ft. The water here is impregnated with the oil, and on being pumped into the reservoir and allowed to settle forms a heavy film on the surface.

During the recent extremely dry weather a creek in this vicinity on Merle Hans' farm is stated to have been so polluted with oil as to have rendered the water worthless for all purposes, and an inspection proved that it was oozing from crevices in the rock. There are said to be other indications of oil in several parts of the district, notably at Harrisville, at Glenalvon estate, where gas was discovered about two years ago. Petroleum, it is stated, has since been identified. While payable oil has yet to be found, the indications are that the field will be productive when operations on a large scale are commenced.

Coal beds of prospective value are also in evidence, one seam two miles out of Boonah having a reported thickness of 20ft, while there are several smaller ones from 5ft to 8ft in other places covered by the syndicate's operations. Hematite ironstone deposits may also have a potential value, while at Mount French there are large deposits of volcanic ash, which is to be tested for polishing purposes.

AN OLD CRIME REVIVED.

AUCKLAND, Tuesday.

Thomas Hall, who was sentenced to life at Timaru in 1886 for attempting to murder his wife, will be liberated in the course of a few days. Hall is the nephew of the late Sir John Hall, and was practising as a barrister at the time of the crime.

THE TARIFF.

CONSIDERATION IN PARLIAMENT.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The House of Representatives met at 11 o'clock this morning to resume consideration of the tariff. The postponed items under the division of metals and machinery were taken.

NAILS.

(a) Horseshoe nails: General tariff, 8s 3d per cwt; preferential tariff, 7s 6d; previous tariff, 5s. Recommendations of Tariff Commission: Protectionist section, 7s 6d; freetrade section, 5 per cent. Imports last year, 7810cwt; duty paid, £1993.

(b) Brads (including moulders' and glaziers'); picture nails; rail-dogs or brobs; spikes, staples, n.e.i.; tacks, n.e.i.; wire and other nails, n.e.i. General tariff, 5s 6d per cwt.; preferential tariff, 5s; previous tariff, 3s. Recommendations of Tariff Commission: Protectionist section, 5s; freetrade section, 5 per cent. Imports last year, 104,967cwt; duty paid, £16,497.

Mr. DUGALD THOMSON (N.S.W.) moved that the duties on horseshoe nails should be 6s per cwt. Under the old rate it had been shown that the industry had been successfully maintained.

The TREASURER said that 7810cwt of horseshoe nails had been imported last year. Why should they not be made in Australia? It would assist the iron industry. The establishment of the industry in Victoria had reduced the price of nails from 11d to 6½d per lb.

Mr. J. COOK (N.S.W.) said that most of the nails imported into the Commonwealth came through Germany from Norway and Sweden, where he had no doubt special qualities of iron were available. Many of these nails were made by the cool process, which was preferred by a number of people. The people who used these nails should be given a choice.

Mr. FULLER (N.S.W.) said that farriers preferred imported nails, although they were a greater price.

After further debate, Mr. Thomson's amendment for a duty of 6s was put and negatived by 39 votes to 13.

A motion by Mr. Wilks (N.S.W.) for 7s was negatived by 36 to 14.

An amendment by Mr. J. Cook (N.S.W.) for 7s 6d was negatived by 30 to 20.

A motion by Mr. J. Cook for 7s preferential duty was negatived by 34 to 16, and another by Mr. Mahon (W.A.) for 7s 3d was negatived by 32 votes to 19.

The schedule rate of 7s 6d was then agreed to.

On section B of same item, Mr. JOHNSON said that the imports in 1906 were 104,967cwt, and the output from the eight factories aggregated 300,000cwt. In 1903 the industry employed 42 adult males, earning an average of £2 5s 4d per week, and 31 boys, earning 13s 9d a week. In 1906 there were 106 adult males employed, earning an average of £2 1s 6d, and 62 boys, earning 14s 5d. The duty was actually two and a half times greater than the labour cost. The demand for the extra duty arose from a desire to obtain a monopoly of the market. Surely the manufacturers had enough of the trade already. There was a combine in existence to maintain prices. Why did the Government deal with it?

Mr. JOHNSON (N.S.W.) moved to reduce the general duty to 3s 6d and the preferential duty to 3s.

Mr. HEDGES (W.A.) moved to omit rail dogs, or brobs, and spikes, in order to make the general duty on them 3s 3d and the preferential duty 3s.

Mr. DUGALD THOMSON quoted from the evidence of the Tariff Commission to show that the nail making industry was highly profitable, and that the prices in Victoria were fixed by arrangement among the manufacturers.

Mr. FULLER (N.S.W.) supported this contention.

Mr. J. COOK said that the interstate trade had quadrupled since federation. One company now paid 18 per cent.

The TREASURER said that Mr. Hedges' proposal would mean 30 per cent. on railway dogs, or broos, and spikes, and he had no objection to their removal from the item under consideration.

Mr. Hedges motion to strike out railway dogs, or brobs, and spikes was carried.

Mr. Johnson's motion for 3s 6d general tariff was negatived by 41 votes to 17.

A further motion by Mr. Johnson for 4s general tariff was negatived by 41 votes to 17.

Mr. DUGALD THOMSON then moved for 4s 6d, but he was beaten on division by 38 votes to 18.

Mr. Wilson tried to get the committee to agree to 5s, but 37 votes to 15 were against him, and 5s 6d, as per schedule, was agreed to.

Mr. Johnson's motion for 3s preferential duty was lost on the voices. He then moved for 4s. This was negatived by 37 votes to 17, and the schedule rate of 5s was agreed to.

Mr. HEDGE moved as a new sub-section, rail dogs, or brobs, and spikes, general rate 3s 3d, preferential rate 3s.

This was agreed to, and the item was passed.

Tanks, containing goods, or empty.—For every 100 gallons capacity or part thereof, General tariff, 3s; previous tariff, free. Recommendations of Tariff Commission: Protectionist section, 3s; freetrade section, 15 per cent.

Sir JOHN QUICK (Vic.), in supporting the duty, said that in 1905 no fewer than 8000 tanks of a total value of £15,808 had been imported, and the competition with local makings was therefore very keen.

Mr. THOMAS BROWN (N.S.W.) said that this high tax would fall severely on the large producing interests, which could in no way benefit from a protective policy. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. JOSEPH COOK regarded the proposal as a crushing revenue duty, which would fall exclusively on country districts. (Hear, hear).

Mr. BATCHELOR (S.A.) moved as an amendment that tanks be placed on the free list. (Hear, hear.) The imported tanks came in merely as coverings of goods. Therefore, whatever the duty imposed would be placed on the contents. (Hear, hear.) The proposed duty would not prevent their importation, and their purpose as a covering having been served, they would be placed on the market at a price which would compete with locally-manufactured galvanised iron tanks. (Hear, hear.) The duty consequently was not a protective one.

Mr. HEDGES said that the only possible way to protect locally-made tanks would be to order the destruction of all imported tanks used for encasing goods. (Hear, hear.) These tanks, which were used for condensing water, had been the means of opening up the backblocks of Western Australia. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. WILKS (N.S.W.) said that no tanks would fill the place of square tanks, which were used for tarpaving, for conserving water, and for sanitary purposes.

After further debate,

The amendment to place tanks on the free list was carried on division by 35 votes to 19, the voting being:—

Ayes: Messrs. Archer, Atkinson, Batchelor, Carr, Catts, Joseph Cook, Fairbairn, Sir John Forrest, Fraser, Fuller, Sir Philip Fysh, Hall, Hedges, Hans Irvine, W. H. Irvine, Johnson, Knox, Liddell, Livingston, M'Williams, Palmer, Poynton, Sinclair, Bruce Smith, Spence, Storrer, Thomas, Dugald Thomson, Watkins, Watson, Webster, Willis, Wynne, Tilley Brown, and Thomas Brown.

Noes: Messrs. Bamford, Chanter, Chapman, Hume Cook, Coon, Deakin, Ewing, Groom, Hutchison, Sir William Lyne, Maloney, Mathews, M'Dougall, Page, Sir John Quick, Salmon, John Thomson, Tudor, and Wise.

WEIGHING MACHINES AND SCALES.

Weighing machines, weighbridges, scales, n.e.i., including adding and computing machines, and all attachments; cash registers, chemists' counter scales, spring balances and steelyards, weights, n.e.i. General tariff, 25 per cent. ad valorem; previous tariff, 20 per cent. Recommendations of Tariff Commission: Protectionist section, 25 per cent.; freetrade section, 15 per cent. and 10 per cent. Imports last year, £38,952; duty paid, £7846.

The TREASURER moved as an amendment that the general duty be increased to 25 per cent. in order to give a preferential duty of 20 per cent. on goods of the United Kingdom.

Mr. W. H. IRVINE (Vic.) said that preference was practically worthless, and he would support the original proposal for a uniform duty of 20 per cent.

Mr. WILLIS (N.S.W.) said that the Treasurer had already admitted in Sydney that he had piled up the duties high so as to be able to take part of them away again. (Laughter.)

Sir WILLIAM LYNE: I absolutely deny it. It is absolutely untrue.

Mr. WILLIS: The actions of the Treasurer since then appeared to bear out the truth of that statement. (Hear, hear.)

The TREASURER: I put them low, so as to increase them. (Laughter.)

Mr. THOMAS (N.S.W.): Are cash registers made in Australia?

The TREASURER withdrew his amended duty amid laughter, and said that cash registers were not made in Australia. He thereupon moved as a further amendment the omission of the words "including adding and computing machines, and all attachments, and cash registers," with a view to transferring these goods to another division, dutiable at 10 and 5 per cent.

The amendment was agreed to on the voices.

The TREASURER then moved the addition of the words "tanners' measuring machines" to the item.

The amendment was agreed to on the voices.

Dr. LIDDELL (N.S.W.) moved to omit from the item chemists' counter scales.

The TREASURER said that chemists' analytical, and assay scales were already on the free list.

Dr. WILSON (Vic.) said that the case would be met if the Treasurer would place dispensing scales on the free list.

The amendment of Dr. Liddell was withdrawn.

The TREASURER moved a new sub-section, as follows:—"Adding and computing machines and all attachments, cash registers, automatic weighbridges, and automatic weighing machines, except coin, free; automatic weighing machines, ad valorem; general tariff, 10 per cent.; preferential tariff, 5 per cent.

Mr. JOSEPH COOK moved as an amendment that the goods enumerated be admitted free.

The amendment was negatived on division by 30 votes to 15.

The new item was then agreed to on the voices.

MOTIVE POWER MACHINERY.

The TREASURER moved the following amended item, notice of which had been circulated on Saturday last, in place of the original item in the schedule:—

Motive power machinery and appliances, except electric, viz.: (a) Gas producers, flue heated economisers, mechanical stokers, steam traps, steam turbines, super-heaters, water purifiers: General tariff, 5 per cent.; goods of United Kingdom, free. (b) N.e.i., General tariff, 30 per cent.; preferential duty, 25 per cent.

The TREASURER explained that his amended duties in this division had been drafted on the advice of accepted experts. His object in rearranging this and other items was to divide those classes of machinery which could be commercially made in Australia from those which could not, with the object of placing the former under light duties, and the latter under a tariff of 5 per cent. or free. It was quite impossible to be accurate altogether as to what goods were likely to be made in Australia on a commercial basis, and therefore he had had recourse to experts and commercial men.

Mr. FRAZER (W.A.) said that the committee were at a loss to know what this item really included, and the Treasurer did not appear to be at all certain in regard to the matter.

The TREASURER said that the new item dealt with motive power, machinery generally, except electrical, and included the whole of the items hitherto included in the original item 14. The new item included some descriptions of mining machinery.

Mr. WILKS (N.S.W.) announced that he intended to support the Government in its machinery duties. (Ministerial cheers.)

Mr. KNOX (Vic.) urged reductions in the duties.

Sir JOHN FORREST said he hoped the attempt to assist one section of the community at the expense of another and a far more important industry would not be successful. (Hear, hear.)

A motion by Mr. J. Cook to include hot air engines in sub-section A was negatived by 31 votes to 22. A motion by Mr. Spence to include Babcock and Wilcox tubular boilers was then put forward, and debated with some warmth, as members were becoming short-tempered from the long hours they had been sitting.

Mr. Fowler said that the proposals of the Government if agreed to would mean disaster to Western Australian mining.

At 1 a.m. Mr. Spence's amendment was negatived on the voices, and Mr. Thomas then moved that the duty of 5 per cent. in the Treasurer's amended proposal should be struck out.

At 1.25 a.m. Mr. Coon finished haranguing a thin House, with five Ministerialists and Labourites stretched out sound asleep on the benches. A division was called for, and the sleepers awoke and said, "What's this about?"

Mr. Thomas's amendment to strike out 5 per cent. general tariff was negatived by 38 votes to 13, several members voting in a horizontal position. Sub-section A was agreed to.

On sub-section B, Mr. Frazer moved for a 20 per cent. general tariff in place of 30 per cent. There was now a full House, and Sir John Quick stirred members up with a vigorous speech in favour of Australian-made machinery and protective duties. Matters became uproarious when Mr. J. Cook declaimed against the cry of fiscal peace being made the basis for high duties. Interjections and disorder ensued, and the Chairman had a hard task in obtaining a hearing. On Mr. J. Cook concluding at 1.45 a.m., Mr. Fowler announced as the preliminary of a long speech that his night's sleep having been spoilt he would explain the whole matter in the light of his experience on the Tariff Commission.

At 2 a.m. the House was still sitting.

THE LOBBYIST.

HIS PREVALENCE IN THE FEDERAL PARLIAMENT.

Since the tariff has been under consideration in the Federal Parliament, the attendance of the public has increased remarkably. Should there be a debate on duties going on at midnight there will still remain interested citizens in the galleries. In the large hall of the building tables are sometimes to be seen looking like stalls at a bazaar, piled up with goods, and men standing beside them, inviting inspection. Last night Mr. Joseph Cook brought the matter up, and this morning Mr. Johnson asked the Speaker about it, referring particularly to a shearing machine standing in one of the outer rooms. He also said that in the corridors, notwithstanding the notices on the walls that strangers should not be there, members sometimes had to pass through strings of lobbyists who importuned them in regard to the tariff.

The Speaker said, in reply, that application for permission to put the sheep shearing machine in one of the rooms had been asked by the Treasurer, Sir William Lyne. Nothing was said about this last night by the Treasurer, who protested that he would like to see everything of the kind removed, and members laughed when the Speaker let the cat out of the bag. The Speaker gave further information, that the house committee had been called together to consider the lobbying that was going on, and had put up the notices referred to in certain rooms and the corridor; although there were tables and chairs in the hall for the reception of strangers. What the strangers came to see members about, he said, was, of course, a matter for members themselves.

Dr. MALONEY asked the President if he was aware that a representative of the Standard Oil Trust had been sent to Australia, and that he was taken into one of the rooms occupied by "the corner" members (indicating the Victorian protectionists).

The SPEAKER said he knew nothing about it.

A CLOSURE SUGGESTION.

Mr. BRUCE SMITH asked, with a view to hastening the progress of the tariff, would the Prime Minister take the suggestion of the Government organ, and consider the advisability of applying the closure to the Opposition.

The PRIME MINISTER remembers the storm that arose when the closure was sprung on Parliament in the notable session of 1905, and he met the thrust with one of his neat characteristic parries: "So far as the rules permit we have been applying the closure of common sense and sound argument; and we propose to continue the practice."

MARSHALL ISLANDS TRADE.

BURNS, PHILP, AND CO.'S CLAIM.

Information has been received in Sydney to the effect that the German Government has agreed to refer to arbitration the claim of Burns, Philp, and Co. for compensation for banishment of the steamer Ysabel from the Marshall Islands trade some considerable time ago, a stipulation being made that some claim by Germany is to be decided in the same way. What the latter is is not known, as it has not been mentioned before, but it is supposed that it is a counter-demand against the firm mentioned.

THE NELSON'S "LIEUTENANT."

INDIGNANT AT BEING DETAINED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

At the Bairnsdale Court yesterday Frederick William Hunt, who claims to be a lieutenant of the marine artillery on H.M.S. Nelson at Sydney, was remanded for medical examination. He still appears to believe that he is in Balmain, New South Wales, and is indignant that he is not allowed to join his ship.

FALL FROM A MOTOR BICYCLE.

RIDE WITH A BROKEN LEG.

COWRA, Tuesday.

The Rev. A. J. Gardener, when returning from holding service in the country yesterday afternoon, fell from his motor bicycle nine miles from town, and broke one of his legs at the ankle. With difficulty he regained his machine, and rode to Cowra, where he obtained medical attendance.

A SELECTOR'S DEATH.

ALBURY, Tuesday.

James Herdsman, a selector, near Jingellic, on the Upper Murray, was found dead near a woolshed at the Burrowye Station. A rifle containing an empty cartridge was found near the body. A letter taking leave of relatives was found in a pocket-case. It is believed to be a case of suicide.

NEW SOUTH WALES PARLIAMENT.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

The Speaker took the chair at half-past four o'clock.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS.

The MINISTER FOR LANDS, in reply to Mr. Hindmarsh, said that the survey of the allotments in the village of Terania, county Rous, would be commenced almost immediately, and they would be offered for sale as soon as possible after receipt of the plans.

The MINISTER FOR EDUCATION, in reply to Mr. O'Sullivan, said that he would see to it that any promise made in reference to the provision of accommodation for scientific instruction at Cleveland-street School would be fulfilled.

The PREMIER, in reply to Mr. M'Gowen, said that he understood the parties to the Newcastle coal dispute would not be ready to give evidence before the special tribunal for at least a week. In the meantime, there was ample time for the Arbitration Court, presided over by Judge Heydon, to deal with the bootmakers' dispute, which was to come on for hearing this morning.

The PREMIER, in reply to Mr. Clark, said that to date, the Government had paid £3313 14s 10d in defending actions in the law courts by Civil servants retired in 1896. Six actions had been tried, of which three had been decided against the Government. In addition, proceedings in two actions were now pending.

The MINISTER for EDUCATION, in reply to Mr. Parkes, said it was recognised that the present site of the Observatory had become much less suitable than formerly, owing to the increasingly unfavourable conditions resulting from its proximity to the metropolis, and to the fact that a greater altitude was desirable for complete scientific observations. A committee of experts had been engaged in the careful investigation of sites for a new Observatory, and had submitted a recommendation in favour of one at Canoblas. The matter would be dealt with in connection with the question of transferring the Meteorological Branch of the Astronomical service to the Commonwealth.

The TREASURER, in reply to Mr. Carmichael, said the tourist trams were running on the following lines:—Bondi and Coogee, La Perouse and Botany, Drummoyne and Abbotsford, Watson's Bay, Mosman, Gore Hill, and the Spit. The average cost per week was estimated at £12 7s 6d, and the average earnings at £9 15s 6d.

ASSOCIATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF SCIENCE.

On the motion of Sir James Graham, a bill to incorporate the Australasian Association for the Advancement of Science was introduced and read the first time.

THE LATE COUNT DE ROSSI'S ESTATE.

Mr. E. M. CLARK moved for the appointment of a select committee to inquire into and report upon the claims of the Comtesse de Rossi, to Bishopthorpe and certain lands at Goulburn, the property of her late husband, Count de Rossi, and cognate matters affecting the State and Bishopric of Goulburn. Mr. Clark detailed the dealings between the late Count de Rossi and successive Bishops of Goulburn in connection with the property. The solicitor for the estate strongly believed that the Comtesse had rights which so far had not been recognised.

Mr. BROUGHTON said that as the result of considerable litigation the lands in question were vested in the Bishopric of Goulburn, under the Real Property Act. He believed the inquiry by a select committee might result in an act of justice to a deserving lady.

Mr. O'SULLIVAN regarded the matter as a fair one for inquiry.

The PREMIER said it would be a dangerous thing to re-open litigation of this kind. The courts, as a result of a number of contests, had ultimately decided against the late count's contention. So far as he could understand from the discussion, one point of litigation was in connection with the land on which the Cathedral now stands. The claim for the Cathedral site had been determined against the count by the courts, and the only way to impeach the title would be before a court of law. Any decision come to by a select committee on the subject must be absolutely ineffective. If any wrong had been done to the Comtesse, her remedy was to proceed against the real property fund for compensation. There was another piece of land to which the late count laid claim. It was situated in the vicinity of the Kenmore Asylum, and formed a piece of about 100 acres in excess of the grant made to the count's father. The Crown had resisted the claim, and had proclaimed the area a water reserve. The proper way to test the matter was to take it to the courts. The committee, if appointed, would be called upon to perform the duties of a court of law, and to give a decision which would tax the ability of any court of justice.

Mr. JAMES said he did not see that the Committee could make any recommendation at all. This lady could have placed any title she had before the examiners, but as she had not done so they passed the title placed before them. That being so, there would be no duty for the Committee to perform.

Mr. BALL said the matter involved had been investigated over and over again in the law courts. The Committee could do no good.

The motion was negatived on division by 33 to 13.

UTILISING INFERIOR CROWN LANDS.

Mr. M'FARLANE moved,—"That it is expedient, in order to profitably utilise the inferior lands of the State, to amend the Land Act to allow—(a) a substantial reduction in the price of such land; (b) to abolish the condition of residence and substitute improvement conditions where the land is unsuitable for closer settlement purposes." He brought the motion forward mainly for the purpose of promoting discussion on the questions indicated to induce the Government to introduce legislation on the lines suggested. Everyone had an interest in settlement and making the lands productive, and though no doubt the closer settlement policy was doing good work, much more could be accomplished by an amendment of the land laws on the lines indicated. At present the Government was charging as much for poor land as for that of the highest quality. Residence conditions should not apply to the poorer classes of land which a settler could not use profitably except in conjunction with richer land. A great deal of this poor land could be made profitable if taken up in small areas and worked as suggested.

The MINISTER FOR LANDS: A great deal of land is already available at prices considerably less than £1 per acre.

Mr. M'FARLANE said he was well aware of that, but it ought to be made to apply to areas other than those to which the Minister referred.

The time for private members' business having expired, the debate was adjourned.

INCOME TAX DEDUCTION BILL.

The Income Tax Deduction Bill was further considered in committee.

On clause 2, "definitions."

Mr. BEEBY moved that the word "business" should not include "profession." Doctors, lawyers, architects, etc., mostly earned more than £1000 a year.

Mr. GRIFFITH said the word "profession" was very wide. If Mr. Beeby defined what professions he proposed to exclude from the benefits of the bill he would support him.

Mr. DOWNES pointed out that whatever doctors and lawyers earned in the city, those in the country rarely earned £1000 per year.

Mr. CARMICHAEL said the bill as it stood would only tend to make more close many corporations already too close, and he supported the amendment.

Mr. DAVID STOREY contended that at this stage of the world's history it was impossible to define what a profession was.

Mr. FITZPATRICK said he was opposed to the amendment. If they debarred persons belonging to the professions from participating in the relief afforded by the bill, he saw no reason why the disability should not attach to persons in other occupations.

Mr. LEVY said the mover of the amendment had not advanced a single reason in support of his contention that professional men should not be entitled to the exemption proposed in the bill.

Mr. BEEBY withdrew his amendment and substituted an amendment that after the word "vocation" the words be added "except that of barrister, solicitor, medical practitioner, surveyor, dentist, or member of Parliament."

The amendment was negatived on division by 34 to 23.

The TREASURER moved an amendment to make it clear that the income referred to in the clause was income "in respect of which any person is liable to taxation."

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. CARMICHAEL moved an amendment to the effect that "bonuses" should not be regarded as income derived from personal exertion.

The amendment was negatived on the voices.

Mr. STUART-ROBERTSON moved that pensions should not be regarded as income derived from personal exertion.

The amendment was negatived by 39 to 26.

Mr. FELL moved that "annuities derived from rent" should be regarded as income from personal exertion.

The TREASURER declined to accept the amendment. Annuities derived from rent clearly came within the definition of income from property.

The amendment was rejected on the voices.

Mr. MEEHAN moved that the "superannuation or retiring allowance" should be removed from the definition of income from personal exertion.

The amendment was rejected by 35 to 23.

Mr. Nielsen moved that the words "and expended in New South Wales" should be added to the sentence by which personal exertion was made to apply to "all income arising or accruing from any business carried on in New South Wales."

The TREASURER pointed out that such a provision would not benefit the revenue, and would lead to all kinds of annoyance.

The amendment was rejected by 36 to 27.

Mr. NIELSEN moved an addition to the sub-clause with the object of confining its benefits to persons whose principal place of residence is in the State.

The amendment was rejected by 27 to 24.

The definition of "income the produce of property" was amended at the instance of the TREASURER to make it clear that it applied to incomes "in respect of which any person is liable to taxation," and the whole clause, as amended, was then agreed to on division by 40 to 24.

Clause 4, "Deduction of £200 under principal Act," was greed to without amendment by 39 to 24.

On clause 5, "Further deduction from income derived from personal exertion."

Mr. DAVID STOREY moved with the object of altogether abolishing the tax on incomes derived from personal exertion.

The amendment was negatived by 65 to 4, the minority being Messrs. David Storey, Sir James Graham, Donaldson, and Clark.

Mr. BEEBY moved to reduce the exemption from £1000 to £500.

This was negatived by 37 to 29.

The clause was then agreed to without amendment.

Mr. NIELSEN sought to move a new clause to refer the bill to a referendum, but was ruled out of order.

The bill was then reported. The adoption of the report was objected by Mr. Nielsen, and it was made an order for to-day.

COMPANIES (AMENDMENT) ACT AMENDMENT BILL.

On the motion of the Premier, the Companies Act Amendment Bill was introduced and read the first time.

NEW SEWERAGE SCHEME.

On the motion of the Minister for Works, it was decided to refer to the Public Works Committee a scheme for the disposal of the sewage from the western, southern, Illawarra, and Botany districts.

POOR PRISONERS' DEFENCE BILL.

The PREMIER moved the adoption of the committee's report on the Poor Prisoners' Defence Bill.

Mr. STUART-ROBERTSON moved the recommittal of the measure, in order to insert a new clause, providing that persons committed who were not released on bail should be assisted and directed in their applications for defence by the officer in charge of the prison; any officer failing in this regard to be liable to a fine not exceeding £50.

The proposal to recommit the bill was rejected on division by 31 to 27, and the report was adopted on the voices.

ADJOURNMENT.

The House at half-past 1 adjourned till 4 o'clock this afternoon.

CONCORD TRAM EXPLOSION.

VERDICT OF ACCIDENT.

DEPARTMENT "ADVISED."

Mr. W. Clarke, D.S.M., continued the inquiry into the cause of death of the two tramdrivers, John M'Culloch and Alfred Murdock Barclay, who lost their lives as the result of the explosion of a tram motor at Concord, at the Burwood Police Court yesterday. Mr. J. S. Cargill (solicitor to the Railway Department) appeared for the Commissioners; Mr. J. L. Garland (instructed by Messrs. Jones and Jones) for the relatives of the late John M'Culloch; and Mr. R. Hollis, M.L.A. (president of the Amalgamated Railway and Tramway Employees' Association), and Mr. A. C. Warton (president Tramway Employees' Union), for the tramway employees. Mr. J. Kneeshaw (tramway superintendent) also watched the case with Sub-inspector Baxter.

Henry J. Windon produced a record of the repairs to motor No. 82.

Louis Anderson, boiler maker, said he put 19 stays into the motor in 1906. He did not specially examine the junction of the upper and lower plates. The boiler was subjected to a hydraulic pressure test of 180lb, and there were no signs of leakage. He could not say how long it was since the boiler was overhauled.

Mr. Hollis said he wanted the book showing the repairs after leaving the running sheds. This was, however, not forthcoming.

Mr. Barraclough (Russell lecturer in mechanical engineering at the Sydney University) gave expert evidence regarding the condition of the boiler. There was no reason to suppose that there was any abnormal pressure on the boiler at the moment of the accident, but rather the contrary. The boiler was fractured along the longitudinal seam on the left-hand side. Many of the stays of the top and sides of the firebox were seriously corroded, and many of the rivet holes in the plates had been punched and not drilled. The cause of the explosion was the weakening of the plates along the inner line of rivets caused by a crack which had developed between the rivet holes. It was a typical lap-joint failure well recognised by boiler manufacturers. As far as he knew that was the only fatal accident from the explosion of a tramway motor boiler. There were difficulties in the way of inspection in these boilers. From the evidence in the boiler book, it would appear that the tubes had not been removed since the boiler was built, which seemed an unduly long time.

To Mr. Hollis: The experiments carried out at the University showed that the lap joint was defective in design.

To Mr. Garland: When the crack began there would probably be no signs by which it could be detected. In this case a suggestion of danger might have been arrived at by observing the more or less continuous pitting along the line of rivets.

To Mr. Warton: Knowing the history of the boiler, he would not consider any hydraulic test would be sufficient to determine its safety. Judging by the present condition of the stays they were not in a good condition 14 months ago, when the boiler was last examined.

To Mr. Clarke, D.S.M.: There was no regular practice for the examination of boilers.

Driver E. J. Betts explained what was done respecting repairs. No record of repairs actually effected was kept at the Enfield sheds, but he believed one was kept at Randwick.

Mr. Hollis: I ask for the book showing what repairs were done.

Mr. Cargill: There is no such book.

Mr. Clarke: I have only to take that statement, Mr. Hollis.

Mr. Hollis: I enter a protest——

Mr. Clarke: You cannot enter a protest. This is an inquest.

Herbert Ernest Ross, consulting mechanical engineer, also gave expert evidence corroborative of that given by Mr. Barraclough in most particulars. In his opinion the explosion was due to the existence for some considerable time prior to the date of the explosion of an extensive fracture, extending along the boiler plate for 3ft 3in on the line of rivet holes, and that at the date of the explosion such fracture was completely through the plate. It was essential to inspect the joints at least once a year after the first five years' life of the engine. He did not know the rapidity of action of rust on steel in hot water.

Mr. Hollis said he would like to see the men called who received the reports regarding the necessity for repairs.

Mr. Clarke: I do not think the question they could decide affects the inquiry at this inquest.

The jury, after half an hour's retirement, found a verdict of accidental death, and added the following rider:—"We are of opinion that the department should exercise a more frequent and thorough inspection of all boilers under their control."

THE QUIRINDI MURDER.

EXECUTION OF TOFFTS.

The execution of the young man George Toffts for the murder of his sweetheart, Eliza Maud Fletcher, at Quirindi, took place at Tamworth Gaol at 9 o'clock this morning in the presence of officials and press representatives.

After the execution a formal inquest was held. Toffts's body was claimed by his parents, being interred in the Anglican portion of the general cemetery at West Tamworth. There has been only one other execution in Tamworth Gaol, that of Lee and Cummins, on July 20, 1894, for the murder of Mr. M'Kay, a bank manager, at Barraba.

BEN TILLETT IN TASMANIA.

A CIVIC RECEPTION REFUSED.

HOBART, Tuesday.

Ben Tillett is visiting Tasmania. Prior to his arrival efforts were made to induce the Mayor (Alderman Haywood) to give him an official reception, but the latter refused, on the ground that Mr. Tillett, in a letter to Mr. Will Hughes, Sydney, had belittled and belied Australia. To-day the Mayor, explaining his refusal, said he believed he had the support of the community in refusing to officially receive such a man.

HARVESTER EXCISE.

POLICING THE FACTORIES.

PROPOSALS BY EMPLOYEES.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

A deputation, representing the employees in agricultural implement manufacturing, interviewed the Minister for Customs to-night with reference to the excise question.

Mr. Murray Smith, president of the Agricultural Implement Makers' Union, said that the deputation was the outcome of the conference of those who had been directly affected by Mr. Justice Higgins's decision in the excise case. They desired that the men employed in agricultural implement making should receive from the employers the difference in rates paid to them between the passage of the Act and the date of the award where what had been decided by Mr. Justice Higgins as fair and reasonable had not been paid. They also wished to know what was to be done in regard to the employers who were paying less than the rates fixed by the award. The men had earned the right to arrears. He also asked how far would it be possible for the Government to help the union to pay heavy expenses of the case they had fought.

Mr. Chapman, in replying, said that the Government had great difficulties to surmount. Caution was necessary to ensure the success of the "real protection" rather than the "new protection."

Senator Findley: A number of manufacturers consider that they should have protection for themselves, and freetrade in labour.

Mr. Chapman said that was what the new legislation would do away with. The Government had asked for a bond from each manufacturer, but if excise were paid to-morrow the Government had no power to pay back the money to the men.

Mr. Chapman said that the Government were taking steps through its officers to see if the award was being observed. As to policing the factories, an army of inspectors and numerous appointments would kill the thing at once. The law could not be carried on unless the Government had the cordial co-operation of those who were interested in seeing fair wages paid. He believed it would rest with the employees to help the Government in the matter. Every attention was to be paid to the behaviour of the employers since the giving of the award, and if the award was evaded very little consideration would be given by him or by Parliament to those at fault. The small manufacturers were in the worst position. Some of them had been paying higher wages than had hitherto been regarded as fair and reasonable. He hoped for the co-operation of all decent employers and of organisations. With regard to the request for legal expenses, to grant it would be to establish a great precedent. The manufacturers might demand their expenses also. He would be glad to receive a full statement from the men of cases of evasion. While the men had no legal claim for back money he personally thought they had a strong moral claim.

AFTER THE STRIKE.

ALL QUIET AT THE PITS.

RUSH OF SHIPPING.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

The whole of the collieries of the Newcastle district were working in full swing to-day. Many of the collieries have not yet the full complement of miners, all not having returned to work, and the output is therefore not quite as large as that before the strike. The colliery proprietors, however, anticipate that by the end of the week the coal output will be up to the average. Rhondda colliery, which was thrown idle yesterday owing to a dispute amongst the miners, resumed work with the rest of the pits this morning. That the trouble at this colliery was so quickly overcome was largely due to the prompt action of the Miners' Federation, the treasurer (Mr. A. Lewis) having gone out immediately news was received and induced the miners to return to work. The president (Mr. Peter Bowling) is anxious that the miners at any colliery do not cause a cessation of work, and that nothing will be done on their part to endanger the establishment of the tribunal. The president said he hoped that in any difficulty that might arise the lodges before taking action to bring about a stoppage would communicate with the federation, so as to receive instructions how to proceed. Two delegates representing the Curlewis coal-miners are paying a visit to Newcastle on behalf of the miners in the north-west. They have interviewed officers of the federation with a view to ascertaining the lines upon which a constitution can be formed for the miners in the north-west. It is their intention to form a federation of their own and to affiliate with the Colliery Employees' Federation. They stated to-day that the miners at Curlewis and Black Jack collieries were anxious to organise on these lines. The wages paid to these miners, the delegates stated, are a mere pittance, and the hours are long and irregular, compared with the conditions ruling on the Newcastle coal-fields.

Since the termination of the strike many vessels have arrived from oversea and interstate ports, thus swelling the already large fleet of vessels in port waiting for coal. There were over 60 sailing vessels and 22 tramp steamers in port to-day, and berthing accommodation is being taxed to its uttermost. The Stockton foreshores were lined with steamers and sailers ranged two abreast, while the crane-berths were nearly all occupied. Many steamers were moored in mid-stream. The rush for loading-berths has been extraordinarily heavy, but owing to the limited quantities of coal arriving at the dyke loading operations were necessarily slow. Many steamers, only half-loaded, had to make way for other vessels, and will be again removed to the dyke in the morning. The following steamers were loading at the inner basin to-day:—Aymeric Finn, Cambrian King, Elaine; and the vessels under the cranes at the dyke were Duckenfield, Wallsend, Duranbah, Beagle, Derwent, Lubra, Kolya, Taiyuan, Alabama, Beeswing, Calluna, Grace Harwar, Brodrick Castle, Cecil, and Indian Monarch. Shipping agents are giving their steamers first chance of loading at the dyke, as they are under greater expense than sailing vessels, many of them in addition being on time charter. With the large number of oversea steamers now loading or waiting to load, interstate steamers will be subjected to long delays, and very few of them will be able to complete their cargoes before next week.

THE CANDID FRIEND.

MR. DAVID STOREY AND THE GOVERNMENT.

Mr. David Storey has always pursued the policy of "candid friend" in regard to the Government, and last night his candour drew from the Premier a plain, unvarnished statement of his opinion of him. Mr. Storey was saying that "every member of the Liberal party who votes for an exemption in regard to a tax on incomes derived from personal exertion will be false to the promises made during the elections."

Mr. Wade entered the chamber at that point, and Mr. Storey said: "Of course, I exonerate the Premier."

"I don't want your exoneration," retorted the Premier with a good deal of heat. "If all the party were like you I would resign!" (Cheers.)

Mr. Storey attempted to speak, but Mr. Wade went on:—"There's no paltering there, Mr. Storey. I want loyal support—that's all. You don't give it!" (Cheers.)

"I am loyal to the people of the country," exclaimed Mr. Storey.

"Oh, rubbish!" came in a cheer-accompanied chorus from the Ministerial side. "You are only loyal to yourself!"

It was after this little incident that the Chief Secretary arose and spent half an hour in castigating the "candid friend" from Randwick. In the course of his remarks, which were made amid a running fire of interjections from the Opposition, Mr. Wood said:—"We only want the hon. member's support on reasonable terms. We don't want either his support or consideration on the terms he has offered." Then the Chief Secretary was going to say something particularly interesting:—"Although I have not Ministerial authority for saying it, I say to the hon. member that before we have the hon. member——"

At that stage the Chairman disappointed everybody by suddenly pulling Mr. Wood up on the ground that he was not "addressing the question."

NEW DUTIES.

The following new duties were agreed to by the House of Representatives yesterday:—

Nails, viz.:—(a) Horseshoe nails, per cwt.; General rate, 8s; preference, 7s 6d.

(b) Brads (including moulders' and glaziers'); picture nails; staples, n.e.i.; tacks, n.e.i.; wire and other nails, n.e.i. per cwt. General, 5s 6d; preference, 5s.

(c) Rail dogs or brobs and spikes, per cwt. General, 3s 3d; preference, 3s.

Tanks, containing goods or empty, free.

Washing machines, weighbridges, scales, n.e.i.; chemists' counter scales, spring balances, and steel yards weights, n.e.i.; tanners' measuring machines. Uniform duty, 2s per cent.

Adding and computing machines, and all attachments, cash registers, automatic weigh bridges and automatic weighing machines, except coin freed automatic weighing machines. General tariff, 10 per cent.; preferential duty, 5 per cent.

AMUSEMENTS.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

This afternoon there will be a final matinee of "The Blue Moon" at Her Majesty's Theatre, as on Friday this Oriental piece, with its fun, frivolity, and gorgeous mise-en-scene, terminates its month's run. On Saturday the J. C. Williamson Company will appear for the first time in "Lady Madcap," one of Paul Rubens' successful pieces, which enjoyed a great career in London at the Prince of Wales' Theatre. The plan for the new musical comedy opens to-day at Paling's.

THEATRE ROYAL.

The auxiliary yacht "Flitter" is still signalling "I am not under control" at the Theatre Royal, where Sailing-master Stirling Whyte sees to it that the red lamps are correctly placed as per code, whilst the storm crashes past, and the audience frantically applauds. The comic situations of "Brewster's Millions" are safe in the hands of Mr. Thomas Kingston and colleagues. The last matinee but one will be given to-day, as "John Glayde's Honour" is notified for December 7.

CRITERION THEATRE.

At the Criterion Theatre Mr. William Anderson's company now enters upon the last three weeks of the dramatic season with George Darrell's Australian drama "The Land of Gold." The new play, which is drawing large audiences, shows with graphic touches the rescue of Varischetti at the Bonnie Vale mine, with the flooded workings and the exciting scene at the pit's mouth.

MAGIC AT THE PALACE THEATRE.

This afternoon and evening Mr. Charles J. Carter will continue his entertainments of magic, mirth, and mystery at the Palace Theatre, where his illusions and Chinese conjuring feats cause general admiration. Miss Abigail Price's thought-reading is another source of attraction, many puzzling marvels being presented, and Allan Shaw still coins money at will.

TIVOLI THEATRE.

At the Tivoli Theatre, both afternoon and evening, Mr. Harry Rickards's company will include the new Alhambra ballet dancer "La Sylphe," the Five Whiteleys in their acrobatic musical pot-pourri, Seeley and West, Henri Alexander, Mlle. Rhodesia, Arthur Croxon, a new monologist, Tom Dawson, and other artists. "The Aeronauts," moving pictures, help to crowd the house.

NATIONAL AMPHITHEATRE.

The National Vaudeville Entertainers, both afternoon and evening to-day, will comprise Breton, "Emperor of Magic," Kitty Lenton in coon songs, Wally Edwards, Master Hall, Eva Lee and her picaninnies, Mounier and Franz in their athletic feats, Dick Stead, Carlton and Sutton, and a long list of artists. There will be new pictures by the Miorama.

WONDERLAND CITY.

At Wonderland City Mr. William Anderson announces a Skaters' Night for this evening, with a grand poster and fancy dress carnival (prizes as advertised), a billy-goat race, and new vaudeville turns at the King's Theatre. Next Saturday night there will be the "hidden treasure hide-and-seek" and Alice's weight-guess competition.

GLACIARIUM.—WEST'S PICTURES.

Mr. T. J. West has returned to Sydney with a new budget of the latest pictures, and has secured a lease of the Glaciarium, which is being floored and re-arranged for the opening of his season on Saturday, December 7. Mr. West, who will exhibit some beautiful cinematograph films, has again succeeded in securing Mr. D. Groen's band.

OXFORD.—"ROBBERY UNDER ARMS."

This afternoon and evening, at the Oxford Theatre, Mr. William Crawley's new vaudeville company will include the Musical Millers, the Lewis Trio, and other artists, and there will be a Limerick competition prize for a Speedwell bicycle. Mr. Charles MacMahon's "Robbery Under Arms" series of cinematograph pictures continue to draw crowded audiences.

SYDNEY PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

The Sydney Philharmonic Society's next concert will take place at the Town Hall on Thursday, December 5, and the plans accordingly open at Paling's this morning. Mr. Arundel Orchard will conduct the united forces in Beethoven's "Mount of Olives," and in an attractive subsidiary programme. The artists will be Miss Florence Osborne, Messrs. Crabtree, Beattie, Stasll, and Sykes.

MISS EVELYN MORROW'S CONCERT.

A strong committee has organised a capital concert for this evening at the Y.M.C.A. Hall in honour of Miss Evelyn Morrow, who will render "Husheen," Nevin's "Oh, that we Two," and other favourite songs. Miss Emilie Morrow, Messrs. W. H. R. Woods, Harrison Allen (recitations), W. J. Grieves, Arthur Haigh, Misses Lewis and Bowden, and the Hatton Quartet will assist.

AUSTRAL SOCIETY AT MANLY.

Mr. William Downe Johnstone will conduct the Austral Orchestral Society to-night in aid of the Manly Surf-Bathing Club. The principal event will be the performance of the farcical comedy, "The Balloon," by a company rehearsed by Mr. Harry Leston, and various well-known artists will appear.

APOLLO RECITAL.

An invitation Apollo recital will be given this evening at the British Piano Depot's Broadwood Rooms, when Mr. Fred Whaite will preside at the Apollo in selections of popular and romantic music. Miss Madge Hellmrich and Mr. James Crabtree will be the vocalists.

MISS MARY MACNICOL'S RECITAL.

To-morrow evening the pupils of Miss Mary L. MacNicol will give an elocutionary and dramatic recital at St. James's Hall, when the comedy, "My Aunt's Heiress," will be included in an attractive programme. Miss Kathleen Cummings will be the assisting artist.

MISS ALICE LIGGINS'S RECITAL.

Miss Alice Liggins will give a pianoforte recital under Mr. Lawrence Godfrey Smith's direction at the Y.M.C.A. Hall to-morrow evening, when Miss Ethel Liggins (contralto) and Mr. F. Mowat Carter will assist. Besides her solo numbers the pianist will join with Mr. Smith in Chaminade's Concertstuck for two pianos.

GARCIA SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Next Wednesday evening a concert will be given at the Y.M.C.A. Hall by the students of the Garcia School of Music, directed by Mme. Christian. An attractive programme, which will include some beautiful part songs, has been prepared. The plan will open at Paling's this morning.

QUEEN'S HALL.—LONDON BIO-TABLEAUX.

A long list of new biograph pictures is included in the London Bio-Tableaux selection at Queen's Hall, where Mr. Clement Mason's latest novelty is a film showing vivid scenes from the just-concluded cricket match, England v New South Wales. A Seville bull-fight and many foreign subjects are shown.

VICTORIA HALL.

This afternoon and evening, at Victoria Hall, Pitt and Park streets, the American Picturescope Company will show some of the latest cinematograph developments of scenes in Europe and America, as well as humorous and dramatic stories. Incidental music and effects will strengthen the scenes.

PITT-STREET CHURCH CHOIR CONCERT.

The Pitt-street Congregational Church Choir took part in a first-rate classical and sacred concert last night, when their own principal contributions consisted of the "Sanctus" and "Benedictus" from a Mass composed by Hummel. Both these fine compositions were much enjoyed owing to their melodious quality and rich harmonisation. Mr. S. Kenny (conductor) elicited especially good results in the "Benedictus," which was given with a good deal of expression and delicacy, and although some of the entries for the tenors showed hesitancy, the interpretation as a whole was effective. Miss Emma Sussmilch sang "Ombra mai fu" with feeling for Handel's stately aria (Miss Dora Rancland playing the violin obbligato), and all the charm of voice and style were displayed in Bach's vivacious aria, "My Heart Ever Faithful." Miss Dora Rancland made her chief success in a captivating "Nocturne" by Ernst, the double stopping passages being beautifully rendered, and, as encore, added the Schubert-Wilhelmj "Ave Maria." Mr. Emil Sussmilch declaimed with spirit Francis Allitsen's "The Lord is my Light," a fine piece in the anthem style. As encore the baritone added "My Rosary" (Nevin). Others who assisted with acceptance were Misses Ella Ezold, Linda Johnson, and Mr. Cecil Hughes, whilst Miss Lilian Frost (pianist) accompanied throughout the evening.

MISS LYONS'S ENTERTAINMENT.

Miss Rose Lyons directed an elaborate entertainment of fancy dancing, with music, at St. James's Hall last night, when the crowded audience was kept well amused, the clever work by the pupils being supported by brisk stage-management, and by the particularly animated orchestral accompaniments supplied under the direction of Mr. Mervyn A. Lyons. Including encores, some three dozen solo and ensemble dances in costume, and beneath brilliant lights, were contributed to the programme, and as all were warmly applauded, any especial discrimination becomes invidious. Miss Oriel Wilson and juvenile ballet in "Keep Off the Grass," Miss E. Redmond in "La Belle Parisienne," Misses Wilson and Brown in "How'd you like to spoon," Miss Elsie Brown in "Waiting at the Church," and many other pupils in solo dances, skipping rope turns, sailor's hornpipe, castagnette dances, and minuet, kept up the interest of the evening. A profusion of flowers rewarded the youthful performers, and their successful teacher.

THE HAYMARKET HIPPODROME.

The last two nights are announced of the military drama, "Crime, or the Battle of Fontenoy," at the Haymarket Hippodrome. On Friday evening the American-Indian drama, "Dare Devil Dick," will be produced. A matinee will be held on Saturday.

THE FIGURE EIGHT AT COOGEE.

The new attractions at Coogee have made a wonderful change to that charming seaside resort. The Figure Eight keeps large audiences amused both afternoon and evening. The Butterfly Theatre forms another important attraction.

THE BURNS-SQUIRES FIGHT.

A well-known Sydney syndicate have purchased from the Fuller Proprietary the biograph display of the Burns-Squires contest, fought on July 4. No fewer than 10 pictures are shown, including the training tactics of the champions, the enormous crowds, the introduction of the champion by Jim Jeffries, and the actual fight, one of the fiercest in the history of the ring. The picture will be seen for the first time in the Swiss Studios, King-street, from Saturday next.

SYDNEY LIEDERTAFEL.

The 143rd concert of the Sydney Liedertafel, for which an attractive programme of new and favourite part-songs has been prepared under Mr. Arundel Orchard, will take place at the Town Hall on December 11. The plan will open at Paling's next Wednesday.

SYDNEY ZITHER CLUB'S RECITAL.

Complete success attended the fourth recital by the Sydney Zither Club, held last night at the Concordia Hall, under the conductorship of Herr J. G. Belschner. The seating accommodation of the large hall was taxed to its utmost by an audience, which testified its appreciation by frequent outbursts of applause, recalls being numerous. An excellent programme, submitted by the club, was added to by contributions from Miss Geraldine Rivers, song, "Buy my Roses"; Miss Hilda Bevege, recitations, "The Game of Life," with zither accompaniment, and "Kissing Cup's Race"; Miss Katie Gruen, violin; and the Liedertafel Germania. The zither ensemble, Horch! Sie Kommen (Doll), illustrating the approach, passing by, and gradual disappearance of a patrol, was one of the best received items, as was also the solo, "Schmerzvergessen" (Umlaub), by Herr Belschner. Mrs. Belschner was the accompanist. After the conclusion of the concert programme, the floor was cleared for dancing.

The Statistical Office has issued a preliminary estimate of the wheat harvest. The official forecast is that the wheat yield will average 8¼ bushels per acre, which will give a total production of 15,702,636 bushels.

MR. KEIR HARDIE IN AUSTRALIA.

PERTH (W.A.), Tuesday.

Mr. Keir Hardie, M.P., arrived from Colombo by the R.M.S. India last night, and was welcomed by the local Labour representatives. He was afforded an opportunity of making a statement to the local press, but he declined to say anything. He will remain here a few days before proceeding to the eastern States.

Mr. Keir Hardie was tendered a reception in the Fremantle Trades Hall this morning, and presented with an address of welcome from organised labour in Western Australia.

Referring to the toast of his health, proposed by Mr. T. H. Bath, M.L.A., Mr. Hardie said that he had had experience in many parts of the British Empire, and it was to him a relief to be once more in a country where a man could breathe politically. His inquiries into the social problem, its cause, and its solution, had led him to embrace socialism. It was therefore as a trade-unionist and a socialist, a believer that the common people should rule, that he stood before them. He had not come to Australia to take part in any political campaign. He hoped that his visit would help to bring the forces of progress in Australia into closer relationship with those of the motherland, and thereby hasten the time when we should see not merely a federation of the Empire, but, what was more important, a federations of the world—a federation under which war would cease and poverty would be swept from our midst.

Interviewed by a press representative to-day, Mr. Keir Hardie, speaking of his travels in India, minimised reports of recent agitation. Asked about the statement that he likened European members of the Indian Civil Service to Bashi-bazouks, Mr. Keir Hardie smiled, and replied: "You know my opinion when I say that the Civil Service of the Empire, and that includes India, is the cement that binds the Empire together." As to his visit to the Governor of Ceylon, he simply called at the Queen's House, Colombo, in the ordinary way, and left his card in the hall, as other people do. That was all.

Mr. Keir Hardie's impression is that the East is going to develop very rapidly, and that it will open a new and vast problem in the world's politics. He does not think Japan will act as tutor to China. The Chinese have little affection for Japanese.

Reverting to India, Mr. Keir Hardie said: "The peasants are at the last stage of poverty. For the past 10 years famine and plague have been with them nearly all the time, and in consequence their stamina has gone. They have no resources to fall back upon, and, generally speaking, their lot is deplorable."

VETERANS OF THE CRIMEA.

IN CHARITY INSTITUTES.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

On Saturday night about 70 veterans of the Crimea and the Indian Mutiny attended a dinner given by Mr. Ewing (Minister for Defence). Referring to the gathering, Sir John Forrest, in the House of Representatives to-day, said he was sorry to learn that several of them were in charitable institutions, spending the evening of their days there. He asked the Prime Minister if he would make inquiries and see if something could be done for them in co-operation with the States. Mr. Deakin said that it was correct that some of the guests of Saturday night were living in asylums, and in addition there were others in similar circumstances who were incapable of being present, but who were, however, entertained in the institutions on that occasion. He promised Sir John Forrest to make inquiries throughout the Commonwealth re the condition of the old soldiers.

Mr. Joseph Cook followed up the statement with a suggestion to the Minister for Defence that Australians who went to South Africa and gained rank on active service should have their ranks confirmed. Mr. Ewing, in reply, pointed out that the orders laid down in the time of General Hutton had obtained in Australia, namely, that they should, on returning from Africa, only have honorary rank. Some of the officers, he said, had gone up for examination, and some had not, which complicated the question. He agreed with Mr. Cook on the principle, and wished to treat as far as possible all alike. He hoped to frame some proposal shortly.

BETTING AND BANKRUPTCY.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

An interesting insolvency examination was conducted at Colac on Saturday. Edward Wise, a marine stores dealer (the insolvent), admitted having purchased vehicles at Geelong, and sold them at Colac for less than he gave. He went away to the Ballarat races with £105. His creditors were pressing him at the time. At the races he lost almost the whole of the money in betting, and went insolvent on his return.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

PERTH, Tuesday.

Mr. J. T. Scammell's term of office as the State Immigration Agent in England has expired, and has not been renewed. It is stated that the Government desires in making a fresh appointment to obtain the service of a man who has had practical experience of rural areas.

TASMANIA.

SLEEPERS FOR INDIA.

HOBART, Tuesday.

The Huon Timber Company has received a large order for sleepers for India.

INDIGNANT MINERS.

REFUSE TO BE SEARCHED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Trouble is being experienced between the miners and management of the Virgin Company, Eaglehawk, in connection with the searching question, which may lead to a lock-out of over 100 men employed. The men have been asked to sign an agreement that they are willing to allow their persons to be searched as well as their clothing. They have informed the management that they do not object to having their clothing inspected, but they emphatically refuse to allow the scrutiny of the searcher to extend any further. The men held a mass meeting on Sunday, when a resolution was carried unanimously to this effect. A meeting of the Amalgamated Miners' Association decided to uphold the men's objection to searching.

A deputation from the Amalgamated Miners' Association will wait on the directors next Monday to endeavour to have the clause deleted. Should the directors refuse, the miners will cease work.

FINANCIAL.

THE VIRTUE OF CONSISTENCY.

Our contention that the Government, seeing that it anticipates a heavy surplus at the close of the current financial year, should abolish the income tax in toto instead of in part, as proposed, has been attacked with curious inconsistency. It is needless to traverse once more the grounds of our objection to the retention of this objectionable tax. The same authority has already supplied its own answer. On November 8 it wrote:—

Mr. Waddell explained that the tax was to be kept on the latter class of incomes, however that class may be defined, because it was not proposed to exempt "drones." Under this bill an income of £500 a year drawn by a widow from investments made by the frugalness of her husband's life would be taxed, though she had a large family to bring up and educate out of it, while £500 a year made by a bookmaker would be exempt. The reason given for this distinction is that the woman struggling to place her family well in life is a drone, while the odds-layer is living by personal exertion. Without arguing this question, taxes should only be raised to supply the needs of government. The Treasurer is there to pay the country's way, not to punish drones. Hence the only question is, Does he want this tax or not? If he does, all should pay alike; if he does not, they should all be left alone. On his own showing, the money is not now required for government purposes, so that what he does is to invidiously penalise a man who makes provision by hard toil for his old age or for those dependent on him after his death.

We entirely agree with what our critic wrote on November 8, and disagree with the remarks from the same source on November 26.

SYDNEY BANK CLEARINGS.

The clearings of the Sydney banks during the week ended November 25 totalled £5,050,129, against £5,120,086 for the corresponding week last year. The following comparison may be made of the aggregates from January 1 to nearest dates of the years enumerated:—

Jan. 1 to Nov. 30, 1903	£169,957,917
Jan. 1 to Nov. 28, 1904	182,215,790
Jan. 1 to Nov. 27, 1905	187,480,579
Jan. 1 to Nov. 26, 1906	193,644,297
Jan. 1 to Nov. 25, 1907	210,246,568

The increase up to date this year has thus been £16,601,271. The clearings of the Melbourne banks from January 1 to November 18 totalled £204,445,039, an increase of £16,646,994.

BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

The report of the half-yearly meeting of the above institution appears in detail elsewhere. The balance-sheet exhibits expansion in more than one direction. Though the dividend is at the same rate as of late, the amount absorbed is larger on the basis of the new capital recently subscribed. An additional £5000 goes to the reserve fund and the amount carried forward has increased. Coming to the more essential figures we find that £425,524 has been paid up in the form of new capital, which must be regarded as highly satisfactory, indicating, as it does, the abundance of capital for desirable undertakings. Deposits have increased by £1,344,381, and advances by £606,034 during the 12 months, while there has been an increase in the bank's holdings of coin and bullion to the amount of £1,582,090. The amount of money at short call in London or in transit thither has, however, shrunk from £2,520,000 to £1,665,000 during the 12 months. Dr. Mackellar, in his speech moving the adoption of the report, said that there were indications that spare money was being used more freely for investment than has been the case for some years past. The following comparison may be made:—

	Half-year ended Sept. 30, 1906.	1907.

WOOLLEN MILL DIVIDENDS.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

The Mosgiel Woollen Company will pay a 4 per cent. dividend for the year, and the Oamaru Woollen Company 7 per cent.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Happily, the local wool market showed a considerable improvement yesterday, and pretty well the whole of the decline of the previous day was recovered.

Metals have reacted in London, copper having improved £2/10/ and tin £3/5/ per ton. Lead, however, is 5/ easier.

The Schulstad Printing Co., Ltd., has been formed to carry on the business of printing, lithographing, stationery, etc., and carry out an agreement by which Charles Hall, Rudolph Schulstad, Albert Jagger, and Arthur Charles Marshall were to be the first directors, holding office for life so long as they respectively held 100 shares in the company. The capital of the company is £1000, divided into 1000 shares of £1 each, and its registered office will be in Sydney.

THE TARIFF COMMISSION'S REPORT.

Those desirous of perusing the Tariff Commission's report will find a copy available for inspection at the Customs-house.

COMMERCIAL.

BREADSTUFFS.

Wheat continued in the same inactive and somewhat indeterminate position. The market was nominal at 4/10½ for old and 4/10 for new wheat, but there were no buyers at either price.

Flour was nominally unaltered. No business of consequence was reported.

Wheat and Flour by Rail.—The receipts of wheat and flour by rail at Darling Harbour and other metropolitan stations during the week ended November 26, compare with those of the previous week and the corresponding week of last year as follows:—

	Wheat. Tons.	Flour. Tons.
Week ended Nov. 26	1389	318
A week previous	881	265
A year ago	1812	979

At Darling Harbour yesterday 101 tons of wheat and 40 tons of flour were manifested to arrive.

GENERAL MERCHANDISE.

Tea.—In view of the considerable catalogues listed for auctions, buyers were operating lightly. Private sales included 100 Ceylons at /9 to /10½, 200 Indians and Ceylons up to /11, 40 Indians at /8¼, and 1000 Chinas at /6¼.

Groceries.—Distributing trade was reported satisfactory at unaltered prices. Imported stills were going out steadily, and stocks are likely to be low before they can be replenished by shipments to arrive.

Oils.—Linseed oil quotations ranged from 3/6 and 3/8 for Blundell's to 1d more. 1000 drums were placed to arrive on private terms. Castor was firmed in Calcutta, being quoted at 3/7 for December shipment. On spot it sold at 3/8½ to 3/4. Pratt's turps was easier at 3/9 to 3/10. Pine Tree was worth 3/6½ to 3/7. Champion's whiteland sold at £35 in cwts.

Metals.—Business was quiet, and quotations unaltered except in regard to g.c. and plain iron, which reflected the reduced duties. Ord in short lengths was quoted down from £22/10 to £20, Redcliffe from £22 to £19/10, and other brands in proportion. Plain iron was reduced £2 per ton all round.

Brewers' Goods.—New Victorian malt is expected to have opening quotations for January-March delivery in the vicinity of 7/6, which is about the value of old stocks. English malt was reported extremely scarce on spot at 8/3 to 8/6. Recent business was done in English malt at 6/3 to 6/4½ c.i.f. and e., but since then the market the other end has firmed a little. Tasmanian hops were quoted at the equivalent of 1/4 delivered. New Kents, which should arrive early in December, had quotations at 1/6 to 1/8, according to sample. Quotations for isinglass on spot were unchanged; but if the duty is charged it will represent an advance of about /9. The incidence of the duty is still a matter of doubt. The schedule prescribes a duty on "sheet isinglass," but nothing answering that description is imported, unless Penang leaf be officially construed as "sheet," in which case it will be worth 6s. There is an impression that the Customs have confused isinglass with gelatine.

Jute.—Cornsacks were distinctly firmer in tone. Country lots continued to be delivered at 6/8, but selling was confined to small holders, who are few. Large holders are not quoting. Melbourne was reported to be a buyer, but was unable to get any quotations for September shipments under 5/3½.

At Darling Harbour yesterday 3289 bales of wool were manifested to arrive.

Messrs. S. H. Harris advertise the sale to-day of assorted merchandise.

LONDON MARKET CABLES.

LONDON, Nov. 26.

Bar silver is quoted to-day 2/2 15-16 per ounce standard.

INTERSTATE MARKETS.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

Wheat was quiet to-day. Quotations were nominal at 4/4. Farmers show no disposition to sell. Flour was extremely dull at £10/15 to £11/15. Bran and pollard sold at 1/3. Butter was steady at /10½ to /11½. Eggs were easy, and were disposed of at /7.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Old wheat sold from 4/7½ to 4/8. New wheat was quiet at 4/6 to 4/6½, almost nominal. Flour sold at £11. Bran and pollard were reduced by the association to 1/1 each. Maize was firmer at 4/1 to 4/3.

Business in tea covers 150 packages of Indian for export and 120 packages of Java, partly for export. Seventy chests of desiccated cocoanut were sold. Good business was done in cleaned Amalia currants at /5¾ locally and /5½ for export. One hundred and fifty cases of quarter sardines were sold. Ten tons of caustic soda were placed. Firm business was done in cornsacks at 6/5. Importers were asking 6/6 for small lots. Branbags sold at 5/1. Fencing wire was quoted up to £8/15 for small distributing lots on spot, but parcels were sold to land at £8/10. Chaff was weaker, with heavy supplies, at from £5 to £5/5. Medium sold from £4/10 to £4/15.

MELBOURNE FRUIT MARKETS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the Queen Victoria Market to-day fruit sold as follows:—Almonds /6 to /9 per lb, apples 4/ to 10/ per case, apricots /2½ to /4 per lb, cherries /2 to /3 ditto, currants (red) /3 to /5 ditto, green gooseberries /1½ to /2 ditto, oranges 8/ to 12/ per case, lemons 4/ to 7/ ditto, loquats /2 to /3 per lb, strawberries /6 to /1 ditto, walnuts /7 to /9 ditto.

The following prices ruled in the Western Market to-day:—Local strawberries /6 to /10 per pocket; cherries 4/ to 6/ half-case, gooseberries 5/ to 6/ per case, apricots 5/ to 7/ per half-case, loquats 6/ to 8/ per case; apples, eating 8/ to 10/, cooking 6/ to 9/ ditto; oranges 8/ to 18/ ditto, lemons 6/ to 8/ ditto, passionfruit 10/ to 18/ ditto, Midlura oranges 8/ to 13/ per case, navels 10/ to 15/ ditto, lemons 7/ to 9/ ditto; Tasmanian apples, eating 9/ to 11/ per case, cooking 8/ to 10/6 ditto; New South Wales oranges 8/ to 10/ per case, navels 9/ to 12/ ditto, lemons 5/ to 6/6 ditto, passionfruit 12/ to 14/ ditto, tomatoes 4/6 to 5/6 per half-case; Queensland pines 6/ to 9/ per double-case; bananas 16/ to 18/ ditto, 4/ to 5/6 per bunch.

LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The live stock market to-day was again heavily supplied with fat sheep. The demand was well maintained throughout, and the prices realised showed a slight improvement on last Tuesday's rates. Quotations: Prime crossbred wethers 13/6 to 15/6, few to 16/9, good 12/ to 13/, with hoggets 9/6 to 11/9; prime crossbred ewes 11/6 to 13/9, extra 14/6 to 15/3, good 9/6 to 10/9, second 8/ to 9/, old and inferior from 4/6 upwards; best merino wethers 12/ to 13/9, extra 14/6 to 15/, good 9/6 to 11/6, second 7/6 to 8/6, small and inferior from 5/, with merino ewes from 4/ to 10/.

Fat Lambs.—The demand was steady throughout, prices ruling a shade higher than last Tuesday's figures. A few pens of extra prime sold at from 16/ to 19/; prime sold from 12/ to 14/, good 9/ to 11/6, best shorn lambs 8/6 to 11/9, extra to 13/7, second and inferior from 4/ upwards.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

TRADE IN SUSSEX-STREET.

Being near the end of the month buyers held off, and a very quiet market was reported. Only hand-to-mouth orders were executed at rather easier rates. Cape barley was scarce, with not much business about. Oats ruled very quiet at 3/5. Oaten hay, quoted at £7, was a minus quantity. Lucerne continued scarce, with no Hunter River stuff about. Local potatoes at auction sold very poorly, only £2 and £3 being paid. In the "street" up to £2/15/ was quoted for importations. Onions were stronger, £4/10/ being charged, and for new £5. Chaff was rather weaker. Victorian brought £5/5/ to £5/10/, Adelaide £5/10/ and Western Australian £5/15 to £6. The good supplies of new season's dry green chaff from the Central western district have resulted in a weaker demand for imported cuts. Bran and pollard were each quoted at 1/2. The month-end business was small, local trade being only fair, but numerous inquiries were made, and some good export orders were booked.

Current quotations were:—

FEED-GRAIN AND OFFAL MARKET.

Barley.—Cape, seed 4/6 bus.

Maize.—Prime yellow, 4/7, white, 4/7, bus.

Peas.—Blue, 5/9, 6/; grey, 4/9 to 4/10, inferior 4/3 to 4/6 bus.

VEGETABLES.

Potatoes.—Tasmanian: Medium, £2/10/ to £2/15/ ton.

Onions.—Victorian: £4 to £4/10/; new, £5 ton.

FIREWOOD.

Over 40 trucks were submitted at auction, and prices recovered from the recent very low rates. Best box made up to 15/3, bidding being much more animated than during the last week.

Latest quotes were:—Boxwood, best 13/ to 15/3, medium 11/ to 13/3; bakers' wood, 10/6 to 11/6; stringybark, 9/ to 10/6; ironbark, 9/ to 11/3 ton.

DAIRY PRODUCE.

A very quiet day was recorded. Until the beginning of December, only small bread-and-butter sales were expected. Eggs were rather quiet. New-laid suburbans sold generally at /11 and /11½. A few choice lots moved at /. Choice Southerns realised up to /10. Northerns dragged, owing to the very hot weather, and the time elapsing between gathering and using. Bacons and hams sold well, though a suspicion of weakness was evident. Honey moved easily for choice western. The cheese market continued shaky. Victorian importations have undersold the local cheese, and the quantity of new soft makes in the "street" contributes to the weakness of the market. Lard has been very scarce for some days, and the big jump foretold some days ago eventuated. Special was quoted at /7½, packets and small bladders, /7, /7½, and bulk, /7½. But bulk is almost unprocurable. The recent high prices affected adversely the export trade, and only a small quantity of butter moved.

Butter.—Special favoured brands 108/, choice 106/ to 104/, seconds 94/ to 98/ cwt.

Bacon.—Prime factory, sides /9 to /9½, flitches /9½ to /9, middles /9½ to /10½; special brands, sides /9¾, flitches /9½, middles /10½. Hams: in cloth, 1/, 1/1, special brands /10½ to /10½; bagged, /10½ to /11, special brands /11½ to /11½ lb.

Honey.—60lb tins extra choice extracted, /3½ to /3¾, prime /3 to /3, good /3, inferior and candied /2.

Lard.—Packets and small bladders, /7 to /7½, special /7½, bulk /6 to /7½ lb.

Eggs.—Northern river, /7½ to /8½; Southern and railways /9 to /9½, odd lots /10; new-laid suburban, /11 to /11½, odd lots 1/; duck, new-laid, /10 to /10½ doz.

POULTRY.

Business was of fair dimensions, young things, roosters and turkeys, finding a good inquiry. Prices ruled about the same.

Latest rates were:—

River.—Old hens, 2/9 to 3/3; young roosters, 4/ to 5/, chickens 2/9 pair; English ducks, 2/9 to 3/6; Muscovy, 3/6 to 6/; drakes, 5/ to 5/6; geese, 5/ to 7/; turkeys, hens 7/ to 8/; gobblers, 10/ to 14/, extra heavy to 15/; guineafowls, 4/ to 4/6 pair.

Suburban.—Fowls, young roosters, 4/ to 7/, very small kinds 2/; old hens 2/9 to 3/6; ducks, English, 3/6 to 4/, choice to 5/; Muscovy, 3/6 to 4/6, choice 5/; drakes, 4/6 to 6/, choice 7/; turkeys, hens, 7/ to 8/6, choice 10/, small from 4/6, gobblers choice 18/, prime 11/ to 16/, inferior from 6/; geese, 6/ to 7/; guineafowls, 4/ to 4/6; pigeons, 1/3 to 1/6 pair.

AUCTION SALES.

Attendance at the produce sales in the Sydney goods station yards was rather larger than usual, but bidding was on the whole distinctly slack. Of 59 consignments put to auction 37 found purchasers. But although the tone of the market was weaker, prices in general were very little lower than they were on Monday. The following lots were offered:—Chaff 21, lucerne 12, wheat 2, maize 1, potatoes 11, and oats 1. Chaff has varied very little, prime bringing from 5/4 to 5/8, medium from 4/9 to 4/11, and rough from 3/6 to 4/5, while inferior straw chaff sold at from 2/8 to 2/11. Prime large bales of lucerne fetched from 5/6 to 6/, medium 5/, and medium small bales from 4/4 to 5/. The new season's chickwheat sold at 4/4 to 4/8, local prime maize at 4/8, and one truckload of Algerian oats at 3/4. Good potatoes brought from 2/4 to 2/7, and inferior from 1/3 to 1/8. No onions, straw, or oaten hay was put on the market.

FRUIT MARKETS.

BATHURST-STREET.

At the fruit markets, a good demand was noted for choice varieties, but inferior and small stuff was unsaleable. A choice lot of Italian lemons arrived by the Bremen, and sold readily at 12s; another shipment is due by the Ortona. Californian apples were also expected. Apples were scarce, very few choice lots being obtainable. Only very choice lines find a market, for the influx of summer fruit has almost superseded the apple. The Tasmanian shipments have about ceased, the last lots for this season being now expected. Queensland mangoes were dearer, up to 12s being charged for best. Pineapples also advanced, but tomatoes weakened. Only a fair demand was made for bananas at late rates. Cherries continued in good supply, a few Victorians being in evidence. The inspector for the Department of Agriculture was making his rounds, so growers sending fruit to market should be certain that it is absolutely free from disease, or whole consignments might be destroyed.

Current quotations were:—

Passionfruit.—Choice 8/ to 9/, good 5/ to 6/, small 1/6 to 2/9 half-case.

Pineapples.—Queensland: Queen, 6/ to 7/, common, choice 5/ to 7/, medium 4/ to 5/ case.

Tomatoes.—Queensland: Choice 4/6 to 6/, others 2/ to 3/ quarter-case.

Peanuts.—/3½ lb.

Cocoanuts.—11/6 to 12/6 bag.

Oranges.—Choice 9/ to 11/, good 7/ to 8/, small 3/6 to 4/6; Navel, extra choice 18/ to 20/, choice 14/ to 15/, good 8/ to 10/ case.

Mandarins.—Emperor, extra choice 12/ to 14/, choice 6/ to 10/, medium 4/ to 5/, small 2/ to 3/6 gin-case; Thorneys, choice 5/6, others from 2/ half-case.

Cucumbers.—Queensland: Choice 4/ to 6/ packer.

Apples.—Tasmanian: Sturmers, choice 12/, medium 7/ to 8/, small 3/ to 4/; American, 12/ to 18/ case. Cooking: French Crabs 8/ to 11/ bushel-case.

Bananas.—G.M., 12/6 to 18/ case, 2/ to 3/6 bunch. Chinese: 11/ to 12/ case, 3/6 to 5/6 bunch.

Lemons.—Choice white 5/ to 6/, medium 3/ to 4/, rough almost unsaleable at 1/ case. Choice Italians, 12/.

Cherries.—Medium 2/6 to 4/, prime 6/ quarter-case, choice 6/ per 12lb box.

Strawberries.—Choice 10/ to 15/, good 6/ to 8/, jam lots from 4/ doz punnets.

Plums.—Cherry plums, choice coloured 3/6 to 5/ half-case, medium 3/ to 3/ per gin-case, small unsaleable. Evans', 2/6 to 3/ per half-case.

Apricots.—Choice 7/ to 8/, medium 5/ to 6/, small from 2/ to 2/6 per gin-case.

Gooseberries.—Tasmanian: 2/6 to 4/6. Local: Prime 4/, inferior 1/6 quarter-case.

Mangoes.—Queensland: 10/ to 12/ packer.

Peaches.—Briggs', choice 9/ to 10/, medium 5/ to 6/, small 2/6 to 4/ per half-case.

Totals	7,686	5,702	238	131	6,071

Competition was improved and much more general, and to a large extent the fall reported on Monday was recovered.

Pitt, Son, and Badgery, Limited, offered a catalogue largely comprised of southern and western wools, making a good selection, including a few attractive, well got up lots. In the grease the highest price was /13½, paid for 14 A com h w of J Rio/New England (Dundee), 4 B com making /11¼, 8 necks /11, and 4 bels /8¼, the wool being well grown, in good condition, and evenly skirted. Other sales included:—Osmond (Collector), 15 1st xbd at /11¼, 9 cbk at /11¼, fine, well grown, carefully classed; NC/Glenara/New England, 10 at /11½, light in condition; Mayfield (Boro), 13 h at /12, 19 e at /10¾, good, bold shafty staple, light condition; AFK/Gowrie/New England, 6 h at /10¾, shafty staple, light condition; HJC/Bellevue (Coolah), 18 at /11, good quality, well skirted; JWMA/Euaidrie (Grenfell), 10 at /11, 48 e at /10¼d, 6 e at /10¼d, 10 w h e at /10, 10 1st pcs at /10, fine quality, carefully skirted, a little dusty, some tender fleeces; B (rev) P (in dia) (Wagga), 19 e at /12, 12 h at /10¾, well grown, good quality, light; WL/Farnside (Mundooran), 8 A at /12, 4 AA w h at /11¼, 21 A at /10¾, 4 A and B at /10¾, 9 necks at /10¼, fine quality, well grown, heavily skirted; JB/Cooneen (Hay), 9 e at /11, 9 e at /10¾, 14 h w e at /11d, fine quality, a little dusty; heart/TB/Woodville (Manilla), 18 e at /11¾, 4 h at /11¾, 7 e at /10¾, 6 xbd at /10¼, fine, well grown, rather heavier in condition than the first instalment; Rosehill/E Mc G (Junee), 20 1st com w at /11¼, 17 clo at /10¼, good quality, heavily skirted, rather tender; JCM/Fairview (Wyalong), 34 w h at /10, good quality, well skirted, a little dusty; NG/Woodford (Murrumburrah), 4 1st xbd at /12¼, 12 1st pcs at /10¾, fine quality, rather short, some tender fleeces; FO/Logan/Downs (Mudgee), 24 h w e at /10, good quality, rather heavy in condition; Cape/Koorawatha (Young), 7 1st e at /11½, light, well skirted; JP/Melton (George's Plains), 11 1st w at /11¼, good quality, well skirted, carrying a fair amount of yolk; Gordon/Yanterills (Young), 10 B com at /10¾, good quality, rather dusty, well scoured; WH/Marran (Mundooran), 16 1st w e at /11¼, very fine, good quality, rather short; GT/Carumbi (Stockinbingal), 26 1st cbk at /12¼, 14 2nd at /11¼, 8 A cbk at /11, 11 1st pcs cbk at /10¼, fine, good quality, heavily skirted; CS/G (Molong), 97 e at /10¾, 8 w at /10, good quality and staple, carrying a fair amount of condition.

The Australian Mortgage, Land, and Finance Company, Ltd., brought forward a catalogue including a few very nice lots on behalf of smaller growers, and some two or three instalments of well-known clips in fair order, but burry and faulty wools largely predominated. The scoured selection was also poor. In the grease the highest price was /13½, paid for 17 B com of Glencoe/S (Tamworth), 20 1st making /12¼, and 11 1st pcs /11, the wool being well grown, very bright, free, deep, and of good character. Among the principal other sales were:—WRB/Wongwie (Mungindi), 7 1st com at /10¼, good length, a little dusty, dull, useful quality; Fairleigh (Hay), 18 1st e at /11¼, 5 pcs at /11, 9 1st at /10¼, well grown, deep, sound, free, good colour; MM and Co/Burrabogie (Hay), 8 sup com at /12, 25 AA at /11¾, 24 bkn at /10¾, well grown, bright, free, soft, well classed and prepared; MJH/Mudgee, 24 h w e at /10, a little uneven in length, slightly tichy, few tippy fleeces; OB/X/Duntumbral (Coliarenebri), 21 A com at /11¼, 9 at /11¼d, 44 at /10¼, 26 necks at /11¼, generally good staple and character, a little dusty, not so attractive as previous instalment; angle/CR/Spireview (Mundooran), 7 1st clo at /10¼, 9 clo at /10¾, nice quality and growth, in good order; WHM/Warrabridge (Quirindi), 5 1st e at /11¼, 12 at /11¼, 12 at /10¼, nice quality and growth, soft, some qualities showing a little burr; P—T (Quirindi), 20 A com at /12, 4 com at /12¼, 12 pcs at /11¼, very light, soft, excellent quality, showy, fair growth; DG/Carlowrie (Bay), 6 AA e at /11¼, 22 A e at /10¾, well grown, bright, free, a little uneven; CWR/Bombira (Mudgee), 18 at /12, 4 1st pcs and necks at /10¼, nice quality, soft, free, good colour; HC (Bathurst), 5 A r at /11¼, 4 a at /11¼, 7 A 1 at /11¼, nice quality, a little short, free, a little uneven in quality; CB/Duri (Tamworth), 18 w e at /9¾, well grown, bright, good quality, deep; GHS (Moree), 9 com h at /10¾, 12 1st clo at /10, 6 at /9¾, nice staple and quality, dry, a little wanting in colour, odd burr; TJL/Coolah, 12 at /10¾, 8 at /10¼, very dry and soft, well grown, good quality; JH (Cowra), 10 at /9¾, short, red tinged, nice quality, free; JB/Y WB/Marion/Vale/Duri (Tamworth), 10 h e at /9¾, a little short, soft, free, grown, good colour and quality, burry; DG/Carlowrie (Hay), 6 AA at /11¼, 18 at /10¾, well grown, bright, free, a little uneven; TB/Woodfield (Queanbeyan), 8 at /12¼, bright, free, few tippy fleeces. Scoured: HGS/W (Narrabri), 13 AA at /18, good colour, dry, short, a little burry.

The Co-operative Wool and Produce Company, Ltd., offered at auction 3118 bales. As compared with the prices obtained at our last sale, good, light, free wools showed no change, but medium sorts were a shade easier, while inferior, burry, and badly prepared descriptions were down a good /¼ per lb. The highest price in the grease was obtained for 41 bales of the Blackburn/Yass clip, which brought /15¼, 20 bales bringing /15¼. This was a fine, free, silky wool, light, and well prepared. W/JS/Wandong, a dry, free, shafty, good quality wool, sold to /13¼ for combing, /11¼ for pieces, and /9 for bellies. For A/M, a small clip from Blandford, which opened out sound, free, and of good quality, we obtained /12¼ for 32 bales of 1st combing. MELBOURNE WOOL SALES.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Company, Limited, held their weekly sale this afternoon, when they submitted a catalogue comprising some 2780 bales. There was a full attendance of buyers, and competition was brisker than last week. The market remained unchanged at last week's prices, which were slightly weakening tendency. A very good clearance was effected. Amongst the principal offerings were E and S/Woodside, comeback, /14¼; Bella Vista/L in dia, from Casterton, comeback, /14¼; AW/Gerogery East, to /14; A/Dowan Hill, New Hampton, to /14¼; WPS/Bengworden, from Lindenow, to /13; MVT/Yarrahaddon, from Gundagai, N.S.W., to /13¼.

The Australian Mortgage, Land, and Finance Company, Ltd., report:—We held a very active sale to-day. Competition was considerably keen. There was occasional irregularity as compared with the rates of a week ago, but we cannot quote any further fall, while heavy sorts were quite steady. Greasy merino sold to /17 for C in circle, other lots of the same bringing /15, /14½, and /13½. St. Wilbride also sold to /17, /15¼, /14¼, and /13¼. Oceolo THE SHAMPOO

(O-CE-O-LO)

What is Oceolo THE SHAMPOO.

OCEOLO is a compound manufactured exclusively for the hair. It is not a toilet soap, but a shampoo, pure and simple, and an article that fills a long felt want in every family. No powder to mix, no waste, always ready. It makes a creamy lather, and is unsurpassed for cleansing the scalp. It cures itching of the head, dandruff, or any other diseases of the scalp. Is delightful in odor and leaves a refreshing feeling.

What Oceolo THE SHAMPOO Will Do

OCEOLO will cleanse the head and hair better than any other compound made. Not only does it thoroughly cleanse but adds life and vigour to them. We do not claim it will grow hair, but do assert it will assist you in keeping what you have.

Mothers will find OCEOLO just the thing to wash their children's heads with, for, aside from its tonic action, it also possesses germicidal properties.

How to Use Oceolo THE SHAMPOO.

Moisten the hair with warm or tepid water, then take a small piece of the Oceolo Shampoo and rub it well into the hair. As the foam begins to appear use a little more water and rub the scalp well until the hair is a mass of foam. Continue the manipulation with the tips of the fingers until every portion of the scalp has been gently but thoroughly rubbed. Rinse the hair with tepid water, and dry well with a soft and absorbent towel.

GENTLEMEN

The next time you are at your hairdresser's have him give you an Oceolo Shampoo. Awful nice on a hot day.

THE SHARE MARKET.

With lead still showing no signs of recovery from £17/10/ per ton, and "forward" quotations indicating a further decline in the future, with London Stock Exchange quotations for Australian silver stocks showing a marked discrepancy, when compared with quotations on the Commonwealth Stock Exchanges, it is no wonder that the local market is rather in an expectant, than a speculative, mood.

Whatever hopes there might have been of the market getting out of the Slough of Despond, in regard to silver stocks, were damped yesterday by the receipt of early telegrams, stating that at 4 o'clock in the morning, the B.H. Block 14 Company had the misfortune to have its poppet heads over the winding shaft destroyed by fire. The result was a drop in the value of the ordinary shares from 20/6 to 18/3, and in the preference from 19/ to 18/6. "That means," observed a member of the Stock Exchange, "a decline of £13,850 in the share value of the mine, though the damage done will be covered by £300 for the poppet heads, and, say, £1000 for the loss of time. Put it down at £2000, and it will be ample."

The discrepancy in the London and local quotations for silver shares is shown by the fact that in London there were, on Monday, better buyers than here of B.H. Proprietary, B.H. South Blocks, B.H. Souths, and B.H. Block 14 before the fire was known. On the other hand, the local buyers for B.H. Block 10 and British Broken Hill were in advance of those in London; whilst the local sellers of B.H. Norths were not so weak as those quoted by the London Stock Exchange.

The business recorded in silver shares up to noon showed a drop in B.H. Junction North from 20/3 to 19/10½; B.H. Block 14 (pref.), from 19/ to 18/6, ordinary scrip from 20/6 to 18/3; and B.H. Proprietary from 56/ to 55/; whilst the paid up scrip of the B.H. Souths were unchanged at 86/ (prompt), the contributing shares eased from 78/9 to 77/6.

There was very little disposition to deal in copper shares, notwithstanding the fact that the metal has recovered from £59/15/ to £61/15/ per ton. A transaction in M'Gregors was booked at 4/, a fractional improvement, Munganas firmed /3, whilst Queen Bee sold at late rates. Queensland stocks were freely quoted, but too wide for business to result.

Despite a rise of £3 per ton in tin, the market was destitute of speculation. Gold stocks were also a drag in the market, so far as business was concerned, the only line booked being in Great Northern (Gympie) at 6/6, a decline of /3.

Operations were on a very limited scale during the afternoon. In copper stocks, a small parcel of Mount Morgans sold at 67/, an increase of /3; Munganas held firm at 7/6 on the strength of a good report from the mine; whilst O.K. Copper sold at 5/6, on one month's terms, as against 5/2, the previous sale on ordinary terms. Silver shares inclined to weaken in quotation, but very few shares sold at reduced rates. Tin stocks were represented by a sale of Gilmore Tin at 6/8, or /3 down. Gold shares were equally quiet, the only transaction recorded being in Mount David at 4/2.

MINING NOTES.

In London on Monday lead was unchanged at £17/10/, but copper advanced from £59/15/ to £61/15/, and tin from £136 to £139.

A cable received from the Lloyd Copper Company, Limited, London office, states that the net profit for the financial year, ended June 30, 1907, was £32,400.

London quotations, dated November 25, received by the B.H. Proprietary give the following buying quotations:—Silver, 2/2 15-16; lead, £17/10/; Company's shares, £2/15/; spelter, £21/10/.

Private cables state that amongst the shares quoted on the London Stock Exchange on Monday were the following:—B.H. Proprietary, s 56/3; B.H. South, paid, b 87/6; B.H. South Blocks, 15/9; B.H. North, s 46/3; B.H. Block 10, b 67/; B.H. Block 14, ord, b 20/; British Broken Hill, old, 17/ (m); Mount Elliott, 47/6 (m); Chillagoe, contg, b 4/9; Mungana, b 7/3; Mount Elliott, 47/6 (m).

The continued improvement in the prospects of the Grafton copper mine, consequent on the yellow ore bodies opening up well in the lower levels, was the cause of improved offers being made for the shares yesterday. The difficulty, however, is to find a seller. In an interesting article dealing with the mine and its prospects the "Trustees and Investors' Review" (Melbourne) remarks:—"It is self-evident, however, that the company does not possess the means to develop its wonderful lode in an adequate manner. What is wanted is a powerful financial organisation, which can enter on the task of equipping the mine in a manner commensurate with its great potentialities. If that were done, the Grafton copper mine would develop into one of the finest properties in the Commonwealth."

MOUNT LYELL FIELD.

QUEENSTOWN, Tuesday.

At the North Lyell 850ft level, the No. 19 stope ore body is disclosing an increased area as it is being exploited. On the ground floor the ore is keeping well up to average grade. No. 20 stope ore body in No. 3 south drive off the main crosscut has reached the bore-hole put in some time ago, and which went through good ore for 50ft. The stope ahead of the bore-hole is showing a fine face of excellent grade ore. This body has now been proved for over 150ft.

The mill at the Lyell Consols has started operations on a small scale.

BROKEN HILL MINES.

MILL RETURNS FOR THE WEEK.

BROKEN HILL, Monday.

The milling operations of the Broken Hill mines last week are shown in the subjoined table:—

Company.	Ore Treated.	Concentrates.	Assay Value Lead.	Assay Value Silver.	Assay Value Zinc.
B. H. Junction North	2011	388	60.9	30.1	8.3
B. H. South	3750	619	71.2	19.1	6.3
B. H. South Blocks	1780	308	64.3	9	7.2
B. H. North	2460	420	70.2	18.8	5.4
British B. H.	2581	434	61.7	25.8	9.6
B. H. Block 14	1655	216	60.5	28.9	5.9
B. H. Junction	1234	144	58.8	20.1	2.50
Central Mine	3730	730	50.2	28.4	11.0

There were no despatches last week from the B.H. Block 14 mine owing to the coal strike. Raising ore, however, proceeded as usual. The carbonates from the 100ft level averaged 34.4 per cent. lead and 9oz silver, and from the 200ft level 30.7 per cent lead and 9.3oz. silver. The west stopes on the 300ft level are carrying sulphides 40ft to 50ft wide. A breast of ore up to 70ft wide is showing on the 400ft level, where also the crosscut from the south shaft is in good grade ore. High grade ore continues to be won from the 500ft and 600ft levels. This morning's fire, of course, will interfere with the production of this mine for the present.

The Junction North mill last week, in treating 2011 tons of crudes, dealt with its record tonnage. The new mill is now complete, and is capable of treating 2500 tons per week. The mine, since the No. 1 electric pump was installed, is capable of supplying all the mill demands. The development of No. 11 level will probably be resumed about the end of the year. When No. 2 pump is in place, this level will be unwatered. The ore broken last week was, on the whole, of good grade. One stope at the No. 9 level averaged 21 per cent. lead and 13oz silver, and one on No. 10 level averaged 19 per cent. lead. The absence of several of the mill officials through illness has militated against good mill work of late; but last week's metal recoveries advanced to 62.3 per cent. lead and 42.6oz silver.

The Junction mill last week had a couple of breakdowns, thus causing lower returns. Some trouble was also experienced with heavy ground in the No. 8 level big stope. The ore raised totalled 1246 tons, including 675 tons from No. 8 level.

Development work in the Broken Hill South mine was conducted last week on the usual lines. The 970 level north extraction gangway was extended to 36 feet, the face being in ore assaying 13½ per cent. lead, 9.4oz silver, and 22¾ per cent. zinc. The diamond drill in No. 50 section, B 1, going south 88 degrees west, was extended 31½ feet to 149 feet in barren ground. No. 51 bore was started in section 15, going north 75 degrees west, and was taken 63½ feet. The core was barren, except for 24½ feet, from 25 to 49½ feet, where very low-grade ore was met with. No. 52 bore was started in section E 4 going south 55 degrees west, and is in 49 feet in mineralised ground. In the upper levels a winze from 250ft level is down six feet in ore assaying 27¾ per cent. lead, 4oz silver, and 16½ per cent. zinc. A narrow strip of low-grade oxidised ore is being carried at the back of 227 north drive. Low-grade ore is also showing in A 5 rise from 425 level.

WHY HAVE SKIN DISFIGUREMENTS?

At this time of the year sallow complexions, face pimples, blotches, and other skin ailments are exceedingly common. One cannot help but notice these facial blemishes, and the effect even one pimply or mattery spot has on the appearance is very marked. With any skin affection on the face, no matter how much you try to shield it, it always causes a disfigurement, and is apparent to your friends.

If you suffer from skin disorders, had you not better make your skin healthy ere it becomes worse? All skin ailments will, with neglect, and by using injurious toilet soaps, spread and often become chronic. Is it not a thousand times better to use a soap that will prevent these skin troubles, and that will create a clear, healthy, and spotless skin? It is an important point to remember that Zam-Buk Medicinal Toilet Soap contains unique and valuable medicines, which are necessary for the skin, not alone as regards their importance for purifying and softening the skin, but in relation to the germicide and antiseptic influence they exert over disease-germs and septic impurities coming in contact with the skin. Sold in dainty tablets by chemists, stores, and the Zam-Buk Manufacturing Co., 39 Pitt-street, Sydney.—Advt.

SPORTING.

THE TURF.

Pony and galloway racing under the management of the Associated Clubs takes place this afternoon at Rosebery. The usual conveniences of transit by special and ordinary trams will be available, and the first race starts at 2.30.

Soma out of the A.J.C. December Stakes, and Angele out of the A.J.C. Derby, 1908, were the withdrawals notified yesterday at the office of the club.

Lady Trist and Margalong were yesterday withdrawn from the Farm Stakes in connection with the Warwick Farm December meeting.

Owing to the inclement state of the weather yesterday, the management of the New South Wales Trotting Club postponed the meeting fixed for that date on the Epping racecourse until to-morrow (Thursday).

The outer half of the course proper, from the mile and a quarter to the five furlongs' post, was thrown open for the use of trainers yesterday morning, but only two-year-olds were allowed to use it, and several of the youngsters availed themselves of the opportunity for a gallop on the grass. Barrel and Pelsarte were the first out; each carried a very light weight, and were minus their shoes, but they had not gone far before Barrel got inside the hurdles, and ran next to the rails the whole way. There was not much to choose between them at the finish of half a mile, which they were timed to run in 53¼s, a record that was equalled by Maltman, who was accompanied by Silene. Matchmaker was not fully extended to get over half a mile in 53s, while Yellow Star covered a like journey at a useful pace. Poseidon's brother Orcus, and his unnamed three-year-old sister, after taking 15s for the first furlong, clapped on more pace, and traversed the full half-mile in 56s. Payten's pair, Banquo and Flavour, were sent the full five furlongs, and, at the finish, Flavour was four or five lengths in front of her companion, the watch showing 1m 7s. Five Crown, and three unnamed ones, including a brother to Istria, got over half a mile at a useful pace; while Contango and a companion slipped over a similar journey in 54¼s.

Trainers at Randwick yesterday morning requiring the grass gallop for horses other than two-year-olds, had to pay the special fee for the magpie track, and this opportunity was largely availed of. The Castaway and Bromine were companions in a seven furlongs spin, which occupied 1m 35s, and Lord Jersey, after galloping five furlongs, bolted for another three-quarters of a mile before being pulled up. Fez and Belfry were together at the end of a mile, which they covered in 1m 47¾s, but the former was lightly weighted. Royal Arthur and Florance put by six furlongs in 1m 20¼s, while a furlong less, in 1m 10s, went down to Forge. Although Blue Book worked on this track, he was not out to make time, being content to stride along at a stout pace; while Set Free traversed six furlongs in 1m 23¾s. On the tan Miratio was in front of Vada at the end of six furlongs, which he covered in 1m 22¾s; while Arezzo put in a strong round. Karanuad was much too good for Arma over six furlongs, which she reeled off in 1m 21¼s, a record that was equalled by Maltsterdelle; but London's time was half a second faster for the trip. Useful gallops over six furlongs went down to Pospolite and Bride's Veil, and Luciana had no trouble in running seven furlongs in 1m 40s, being assisted by Sofrano over the last three. Simper galloped the last six of seven furlongs in 1m 24s, Barbican making similar time; but Heiro got over a like journey in 1m 21¾s. Isos ran down five furlongs in 1m 8¼s, being followed by Epic, who made similar time. A mile in 1m 54¾s went down to Goldlock, and Banzai beat Soleil over six furlongs, run in 1m 22s. King's Cross had the call over Lord Fitzroy when a mile had been completed, in 1m 50s. Wollara making similar time, while Scot Free was 2s slower over that distance. Dora Grey finished in front of Schooner at the end of six furlongs, which she reeled off in 1m 23s, and a host of others were out for useful work.

The summer meeting of the Goulburn Racing Club commences to-morrow, and will be continued and concluded on Friday. Reports from the scene of action state that the track, having benefited by the recent weather and a good top-dressing, is in excellent condition. There are 63 horses engaged, equal to 180 nominations and 13 additional horseboxes have been erected in the paddock to meet the extra demand for accommodation. The horses engaged include visitors from Sydney, Orange, Wagga, Young, and Bowral, and a most successful meeting is anticipated.

DEATH OF SUBTERRANEAN.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The racehorse Subterranean, by Torpedo—Blue Water, died at Camperdown on Friday. The ex-New Zealander was purchased by the western district sportsman, Mr. E. Manifold, with designs on the Caulfield and Melbourne Cups, but the son of Torpedo burst a blood-vessel a few days before the first-named event was run, and did not start in either.

STUDENTS' AMATEUR RACE CLUB.

WELLINGTON, Tuesday.

The Students' Amateur Race Club held a successful race meeting on Saturday with the following results:—

Maiden Race.—Golconda, 11st 5lb, 1; Mountaineer, 11st 5lb, 2; Olive, 11st 8lb, 3.

Bachelors' Bag, 7f.—Blackwatch, 11st 8lb, 1; Zenobia, 11st 3lb, 2; Numba, 11st 5lb, 3.

The Cup.—Warlock, 11st 6lb, 1; Toby, 11st 8lb, 2; Mintaro, 11st 5lb, 3.

Students' Plate.—Zenobia, 11st 12lb, 1; Numba, 11st 8lb, 2; Cameo, 11st 12lb, 3.

The Bracelet.—Olive, 10st, 1; Warlock, 12st 7lb, 2; Blackwatch, 12st 6lb, 3.

Mount Arthur Handicap.—Mintaro, 10st 7lb, 1; Silver Fox, 10st, 2; Slumber, 10st 5lb, 3.

GOLF.

STRIKE AMONGST CADDIES.

The caddies at the Dobroyde Club have struck for 1s 6d a round of 18 holes.

Mr. John Portus, the hon. secretary of the club, states that they want a penny a hole for the round. One or two clubs allow 1s 1d or 1s 2d because they have good boys. The season is practically over, and there will be no inter-club engagements until next March, by which time a new set of boys will be obtained. The caddies now demanding more remuneration adopted a stand-and-deliver policy which the members of the club resented. They will do their own caddying until other arrangements have been made. The club anticipates no difficulty in being able to provide for the members by the beginning of next season. The Dobroyde course is an easy one. There are no trees, scrub, or long grass for the balls to get lost.

The caddies have taken their stand without consulting the club at all. They say the increase from 1s to 1s 6d shall take effect from November 24.

CYCLING AND MOTORING.

AUSTRAL WHEEL RACE.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The handicaps for the Austral Wheel Race, to be held at the Melbourne Cricket Ground on December 7 and 14, were issued to-night. Floyd MacFarland, A. J. Clark, and E. A. Pye are on scratch. The handicaps of the New South Wales riders are as follow:—G. H. Horder, 30yds; T. J. Gascoigne, 50; J. Chalmers, 100; D. J. Plunkett and P. B. Quinlan, 120; C. E. Gleneross, 240.

CRICKET.

In this week's issue of the "Sydney Mail" the famous English sporting writer, "Thormanby," writes entertainingly of "Cricket, Past and Present," and also discusses the question, "Are Cricketers Short-lived?"

FOOTBALL.

AUSTRALIAN RULES.

The trophies won in the league, Sydney Association, and schools' competitions are to be presented at the league's fourth annual moonlight excursion to-morrow night, at Clifton Gardens. Subsequently the steamer Kukuburra will proceed round the harbour.

BOXING.

There was a good attendance at the Gaiety Athletic Hall last night to witness the contest between Costa and Griffin. The former won on points after going the full 20 rounds. The preliminary between Athorn and Blake was won by Blake in the first round. A try out between Smith and Harris was won by Smith in the second round.

LAWN TENNIS.

MR. NORMAN BROOKES ENTERTAINED.

THE DAVIS CUP.

PERTH (W.A.), Tuesday.

Mr. Norman Brookes, the tennis champion, who is returning to the eastern States in the R.M.S. India, was entertained by local tennis enthusiasts at the Palace Hotel, Perth, to-day. Responding to the toast of his health, Mr. Brookes said, with regard to the Davis Cup, that it was certain that America would send out a strong team next year, but whether England would do so or not would depend a good deal on whether Doherty Brothers will have sufficient energy to bother about it. If they did England would have a very strong team.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The interstate championship lawn tennis tournament was advanced another stage to-day. The scores were:—

Singles Championship of Victoria.

Rice (N.S.W.) beat Doust (N.S.W.), 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

Doubles Championship.

Dunlop and Heath (Vic.) beat Kidston and Campbell (N.S.W.), 6-4, 7-5, 6-3.

Barnard and Spence (Vic.) beat Colquhoun (N.S.W.) and Frankenberg (Vic.), 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5.

Mixed Doubles Championship.

Miss Gyton and Dunlop (Vic.) beat Miss Le Neveu (Vic.) and Clark (N.S.W.), 6-1, 3-6, 6-3.

Miss Parr (S.A.) and Parker (N.S.W.) beat Miss Watson and Fraser (Vic.), 6-4, 4-6, 6-0.

Ladies' Singles Championship.

Miss Rowe (S.A.) beat Miss Hay (N.S.W.), 6-0, 6-2.

Miss Addison (Vic.) beat Miss Le Neveu (Vic.), 6-0, 6-1.

Ladies' Doubles Championship.

Mrs. Ragless and Miss Parr (S.A.) beat the Misses Whitty (Vic.), 6-0, 6-4.

Miss Rowe (S.A.) and Miss Stewart (Vic.) beat Miss Hay (N.S.W.) and Miss M'Arthur, 6-2, 6-1.

ROWING.

BALMAIN REGATTA.

A meeting of the committee of the Balmain Regatta was held on Monday, at the local Town Hall, Mr. F. W. Copeland presiding. A finance committee to pass accounts was elected as follows:—Messrs. T. Kinninmont, Jas. Cronin, N. J. M'Donald, W. Mitchell, and F. W. Copeland. The hon. secretary's report showed that no protests had been received in the rowing or sailing races, and it was resolved to present the prizes on Monday next, at the local Town Hall.

THE EDEN REGATTA.

EDEN, Tuesday.

The annual regatta was held on Friday and Saturday. There was a good attendance. Fine weather prevailed. Owing to the large number of competitors many of the events were not decided till yesterday. Results:—

All-comers' Handicap, single skiffs: P. Donnelly and M. C. Laycock divided.

Sailing Race.—A. Hayward's Iona.

Whaleboat Race.—Eden representative, No. 2 crew.

Double Sculls.—C. Davidson and A. Ashby.

Youths' Dingy.—W. Hayward's.

All-comers' Dingy Race.—Ditto.

Whaleboat Race, mixed crews.—A. Greig's and O. Davidson's crews divided.

Sailing Dingy.—A. Greig's Elsie.

Double Sculls Dingy.—W. Hayward and J. Scott, jun.

SAILING.

The second of the Western Australian feet races between the 18-footers has been decided, and, as in the first event, the new boat Robin had the bad luck to meet with a mishap when fighting it out with Swan. Swan again won, and with two out of the five races to her credit it is not improbable that Mr. Chris. Garland and his crew will renew their acquaintance with the many Sydney friends they made on the occasion of their last visit here with the 14-footer Rene.

A MAGNIFICENT STEAMER.

MARAMA AT SYDNEY.

UNION COMPANY'S BUILDING PROGRAMME.

The Marama, 6437 tons, the largest vessel of the Union Company's fleet, in charge of Captain John Gibb, arrived at Sydney at 7.30 a.m. yesterday on her first voyage from Wellington. She is a magnificent vessel, and as she came up the harbour her majestic appearance attracted great attention. Being light in draught and meeting with fogs, the time occupied in the voyage across the Tasman Sea was several hours longer than the steamer is capable of doing. The Marama stands well up from the water-level, and looks more imposing than other vessels of the Union Company's fleet. A striking feature is the 12 boats on the boat deck. The vessel will be engaged in the Sydney-New Zealand-Hobart-Melbourne trade, the Monowai dropping out of that run. Her saloon, cabin, and fittings throughout are on an elaborate scale, and she ranks as one of the finest boats of the fleet. The social hall is furnished and fitted on the drawing-room principle, well lighted with windows, and is provided with electric light, which is laid on throughout the vessel. Her promenade deck is roomy and spacious, and every modern convenience and device of the most up-to-date passenger and cargo vessel meets one at every point. The passenger accommodation is arranged in three decks—the main deck, the hurricane deck, and the promenade deck—and she is fitted to accommodate 270 saloon, 120 second-class passengers, 100 forecabin passengers (with accommodation for another 100 if required), and has space for 140 of a crew.

The Marama was built in consequence of the Union Company's policy to extend its costal and intercolonial trade, and to replace older and slower steamers by vessels of the latest type. The maiden voyage of the Marama was specially interesting, as the vessel enjoyed the distinction of having made a record passage, not only from Durban to Melbourne, but also from Plymouth to Melbourne, while she narrowly escaped establishing a record from Plymouth to the Cape, her time between these two points having been beaten only on one other occasion. The steamer came from Plymouth Sound to Otago Heads in 36 days 11 hours 43 minutes steaming time, and the average speed was 15.7 knots per hour. The Marama steamed from Melbourne to Otago Heads, 1350 miles, in 83 hours, which meant 16¼ knots an hour. Although this constituted a record run, the vessel had never at any time been called upon to exert her full power. The run from Plymouth to Capetown, 5882 miles, was made in 15 days 23 hours steaming time, speed 15.34 knots per hour; Durban to Capetown, 812 miles, 2 days 7 hours, speed 14.7 knots; Durban to Melbourne, 5540 miles, 14 days 8 hours, speed 16.1 knots.

The Marama's measurements are:—Length, 420ft, beam 53ft, and depth 33ft 6in, and her loaded draught is 23ft 7in. She was built by Messrs. Caird and Co., of Greenock, and is a twin-screw vessel, with two sets of four-crank triple expansion engines on the Yarrow-Schlick-Tweedy balanced system, and her cylinders are two at 29½in and 47½in diameter, and four at 54in diameter, with a 48in stroke. Her boilers are two single and two double Howden's forced draught. Her engines and machinery are similar to those of the Manuka. She is built to the highest class of the British Corporation survey, is double-bottomed, with a single funnel, has five hatches, and is fitted with hydraulic rams and derricks for the rapid handling of cargo.

In speaking of the Union Company's programme as regards expansion, Sir James Mills stated recently that a steamer of 7500 tons, with a speed of 16 knots, was being built on the Clyde for the Vancouver service. A 4000-ton steamer, with a speed of 13 knots, was being built at Dumbarton for the Pacific Island trade. She would be 500 tons larger than the Atua and rather faster. At Port Glasgow a large cargo steamer of the Waihora type, but much larger, was being turned out. Her sea speed was 11 knots, and her deadweight capacity would be 8500 tons. The Union Company was going in for an experiment in freight carriers, and the Sunderland shipbuilders were building the company a large vessel of the "turret" type. Turrets were popular with many firms at home owing to the deadweight capacity secured in proportion to tonnage and seaworthiness. This class of vessel would, of course, be an innovation to the Union Company. The result of this experiment would give the Union Company experience for its future guidance in regard to this class of cargo boat.

STATE PARLIAMENTS.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

ADELAIDE, Tuesday.

In the Legislative Council to-day, the debate on the Northern Territory transfer was continued. Mr. J. Lewis opposed the motion, on the ground that the territory would be better administered by South Australia, a condition due to the bad administration in the past. Sir John Downer and Mr. G. Brookman strongly supported the agreement with the Commonwealth. The three speakers advocated coloured labour. The debate was adjourned.

THE MINERS' COAL.

CLIFTON, Tuesday.

The South Clifton Miners' Lodge decided to approach the manager of South Clifton Colliery, and ask if arrangements can be made for the company to cart the employees' coal. It was pointed out that as a number of the miners reside some distance from the pit to expect them to carry their supply of coal home on their backs after a hard day's work in the mine was imposing a heavy burden on them. It is understood that the request of the men will receive favourable consideration.

The most notable picture in the "Sydney Mail" this week was taken on Sydney Harbour on Saturday during the great storm.—Advt.

BICYCLES AND MOTOR CARS.

THE DEAR PUBLIC!

are quick to forget. That's why we tell a B. and B. story every week in these columns, so that you shall always remember that a B. and B. cycle stands at the head of the list of Australian productions.

B. and B. MODEL 2, at £11, possesses every known improvement in the cycle line. It is bang up to date—fitted with the best tyres, and guaranteed for one year.

OUR CATALOGUE TELLS THE STORY OF B. and B. SUPERIORITY. Ask us to send you a copy.

THE WORLD'S 24-HOURS ROAD RECORD

ON A

DARRACQ.

Messrs. Stevens and James, of Melbourne, driving a Darracq Car, "stock model," have just covered the wonderful distance of beating the previous record by 171 miles.

777 MILES IN 24 HOURS ON VICTORIAN ROADS,

As we have said before, other Cars may be good enough for city streets and prepared tracks, but the Darracq is the only car worth having for use on Australian roads.

All contests of note have proved this fact. Do not forget the 10-h.p. Darracq in the Sydney-Bathurst Reliability Trials covered the distance at a rate of 29 miles per hour, defeating 24 h.p. Minervas, 24 h.p. Talbots, 20 h.p. Argylls, besides Humbers, De Dions, and others. It also won the 1000 miles trials of Victoria, and the Reliability Trials of New Zealand.

Now is the time to investigate Darracq construction. We can show all models, 8-10 h.p., 16 h.p., 18 h.p., 20 h.p., 40 h.p.

KNOWLES MOTOR CO., 45 HUNTER-STREET.

THE CAR FOR COMMERCIALS.

If you have failed to purchase a Motor-car for fear of the expense in running and upkeep, you should make some inquiries into the record of the DE DION.

You'll find it is extremely economical and free from trouble—a Car that will always serve you well.

8-H.P. DE DION.

This is the favourite Car for commercials—it is so very convenient, easy-running, and speedy. In a recent test an 8-H.P. DE DION ran 34.90 miles at a petrol cost of 1s 6d—that's cheaper than horse feed or train fares. Just think how you could increase your business by using one of these good Cars. We are always ready to let you critically examine our stock and take a trial spin. Ask for full particulars.

MASSEY-HARRIS AND RED BIRD } BICYCLES.

The following is an unsolicited testimonial from Mr. T. H. Frank:—

"Ascot, Banks-street, Botany, "22nd Nov., 1907.

"Massey-Harris Bicycle Co., and to whom it may concern,—

"I am writing you the following letter re my overland tour in the following States of Australia—Victoria, N. S. Wales, and Queensland—passing through these and other towns:—Melbourne to Sydney, thence through Dubbo, Bourke, Eulo (Q.), Milo (Q.), Rearat, Barcaldine, Adavale, Charleville, Boatman, Currawillinghi, Angiedool, Morandah, Walgett, Gunnedah, Scone, Singleton, Wiseman's Ferry, Windsor, Sydney. I have ridden some thousands of miles mounted on one of your Spring Frame Model 16 Massey-Harris Bicycles, and can honestly say have never experienced the slightest hitch from start to finish of my travels. I have had experience with several well-known and high-class machines, but may say the Massey-Harris Spring Frame in my opinion excels them all for rough country riding and durability. I can honestly recommend the abovementioned machine for long cross-country trips and heavy weight carrying, such as tent, blanket, food, and water, necessary for long stage trips. I am, dear Sir, "(Signed) T. H. FRANK."

A NEW RAILWAY.

Excerpt from S.M. Herald of yesterday's date:—
Another link in the line of railway from Marrickville toward the main Southern route was started yesterday by the Minister for Works, Mr. C. A. Lee, at Bankstown. This district everywhere shows evidences of marvellous progress since the railway line was first opened. Mr. Lee, after performing the official act of turning the sod, said, amongst other remarks, that a stretch of line 3 miles 20 chains in length had been approved of at a cost of £36,559. The work had been started on November 13, and would be completed in 40 weeks.

NEAR THE NEW RAILWAY. | You see the extension railway line from Belmore to Bankstown has actually been commenced. If you're wise you'll "Buy Bankstown Land Now," at once, for nothing surer in the way of investment can be imagined. Just look at Belmore. Land could be bought there, plenty of it, before the railway at £30 an acre—£300 now for some of it. Near the station it's been sold as high as £5 per foot. Well may you begin to be interested in the BANKSTOWN FARMLETS.

Only a Few Minutes' Walk from New Railway. Price from £9 per Acre. Terms: From £2 down and £1 Month. It will pay right well to take up a Block now, and sell it at a big profit when the Railway is completed.

Intending purchasers meet at Belmore by appointment, and driven to and over the Estate. Blocks, 1 to 10 acres, with option of larger holdings. Don't forget to secure a plan and Booklet from 84B PITT-STREET. SELLERS OF GOOD LAND ON EASY TERMS. Solicitor to Estate, JOHN J. MULLIGAN, Esq., Pitt-street, Sydney.

THE RENT COLLECTOR IS NEVER SEEN AT HABERFIELD.

Does not this strike you as a unique position for any suburb of Sydney to occupy. You will almost say it is hardly possible, but we can assure you that every occupier, with but two or three exceptions, are the owners of the properties occupied by them. Does not this suggest than the old exploded and behind-the-times system of paying rent to the rent collector. You can buy a property from us without being possessed of a large amount of Capital. If you are a business man we won't ask you to take your money out of your business. If you have good prospects in the future this will meet the case. In fact we look more to the individual than the amount of money he has in his possession. On the other hand the PROPERTIES we are offering you

ARE ABSOLUTELY FIRST-CLASS INVESTMENTS.

They are thoroughly well constructed, built under an Architect, no attempt at slumming or jerry building. Every inspection invited. Bring along your friend, who is an expert in building, and he will tell what we say is correct. In we invite you to choose any site of the various blocks we have available, then instruct our Architect, and he will design the building according to your own idea. All this is done without charge to you. When the Plans and specifications are ready we then give you a tender, and build according to the plans and specifications, at the same time giving you full privilege to have the building supervised by any outside authority, builder, or Architect. What could be fairer than this or more straightforward.

BUILDING TO YOUR ORDER

However, we might talk to you for a week, but one half-hour's inspection will do more than all we can say in an advertisement. You will not waste your time by a

and if you buy one of our properties it will be the best day's work you have ever done. We are continually making sales to people who make the admission that they were foolish they did not purchase two or three years or five years ago, as the case may be, when they first thought about it.

So don't you repeat the same folly, but come along now, and close with us.

CALL AT OUR SUMMER HILL OFFICE, and we will drive you to inspect.

OFFICE HOURS, including Wednesdays and Saturdays, 9 to 6 p.m. Haberfield Office always open.

STANTON and SON, MANAGING AGENTS, 109 Pitt-street, and Summer Hill.

The STOCK has been taken by my Agent, Mr. Morgan Williams, in the customary manner. The Business itself is so well known that remarks thereon are almost superfluous. Nevertheless, I may mention that it is old established, and essentially one of those businesses which, if acquired by any business man possessing a reasonable amount of capital, is capable of very great and certainly profitable extension.
The Premises are undoubtedly the most extensive in Cobar; not only do they occupy the most prominent position, but they provide every facility for a large turnover.
By reason of their unique position, and the prospective value which property of this description undoubtedly possesses in Cobar, a town which is steadily developing its resources, and consequently attracting population, the Trustees have departed from the customary course by, in this instance, indicating an Upset Price for the Property, more especially as the property readily lends itself to reletting in sections, thus becoming at once revenue producing.
Tenders will be received for each lot separately, or for the whole conjointly. The usual ten per cent. conditions. The highest or any Tender not necessarily accepted. Stock-sheets may be seen, and all information obtained, on the premises, or at my office.

THOMPSON'S PATENT (GAS AND FUEL COMBINATION STOVE).
ONE OF OUR NUMEROUS TESTIMONIALS.
(Copy.)
Physics Department, University, Sydney, October 12th, 1907.
Mr. Thompson.—Dear Sir,—I have much pleasure in testifying to the good qualities of your Combination Wood, Coal, and Gas Stove. I have had one in constant use since 1st of June last, and it has given every satisfaction as a first-class stove. Being satisfied myself, I strongly recommend it in preference to any other stove I have used in the past. I sincerely hope it will receive its just appreciation from the public. The stove can be seen working at any time at my private address, Yasmar-street, Haberfield. Trusting you will gain the success your stove merits, I am, Sir, yours faithfully, CARL J. SHARPE.
Before purchasing a fuel or gas stove call and inspect our Combination Stoves, 804 Parramatta-road, opposite Johnston-street section.

THE VALAZE WASH.
Have you come in heated from a motor ride, or a game of tennis, or of golf; gone to your room and washed your hands and face, with the result that your skin becomes red and flushed, and you feel ill at ease?
Now, instead of washing with water, you should lay Valaze lightly on your face as soon as you get to your room. Then rest for a few moments to allow the Valaze to sink well into the pores of your skin, after which you can scrape off the Valaze from the skin surface. With it will come away every trace of dust and grime. You will feel delightfully refreshed. There will be no redness, and your complexion will be greatly benefited.
TRY THIS VALAZE WAY OF WASHING NEXT TIME.
All Chemists sell Valaze at 3s 6d and 6s Jar, or posted for 6d extra direct from THE VALAZE INSTITUTE,
158 Pitt-street, Sydney,

CORSETS AND COMFORT.
CORSETS AND FIGURES,
CORSETS AND STYLE,
CORSETS AND QUALITY,
CORSETS AND PRICE.
There are many Corsets on the Australian market. THEY ARE ALL CORSETS—of a kind.
Some have Style without Comfort.
Some have Comfort without Style.
Some have Quality without Shape.
Others have Shape without Quality.
Some are High-priced, and some are Low.
AT THE BUCKINGHAM PALACE EMPORIUM
there are TWO VARIETIES OF CORSETS, which embrace all these characteristics par-excellence: COMFORT, FIGURE, STYLE, QUALITY, and PRICE.
One is the WARNER'S RUST-PROOF CORSET. Every pair of which is guaranteed. Of these we carry some Forty Varieties, ranging from 3s 11d to 15s 6d. Every one well worth its money.
And the other is THE REDFERN IMPERIAL CORSET, the NE-PLUS-ULTRA of the Corset World. This Corset must be seen to be appreciated. All Whalebone Boned.
Prices, from 25s to 42s, post free to any town in the State.
To be had only at
WILLIAM BUCKINGHAM'S,
THE CORSET SPECIALTY HOUSE,
Tel., 1871. OXFORD-STREET, CITY.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR AND MOLES.
In spite of all that may be advertised to the contrary, there is no home treatment that will remove superfluous hair permanently.
The chemical depilatories—masquerading under various trade names—act exactly as a razor does, and cause a strong growth of hair each time they are applied.
Electrolysis must be used to ensure permanent removal, and it is generally admitted that to have this operation carried through successfully you must consult an expert.
My long experience in this speciality justifies me in guaranteeing the success of all such work that I undertake.
To show you exactly what the process is, I will gladly remove two or three hairs for you—free of charge. Will you please call? Tel., 133.
I have a vacancy for a young lady apprentice. Full details on application.
MISS MAUDE MADDOCKS,
Federal Chambers, 100 King-street, corner Pitt and King streets, Sydney.
I also Remove Moles, Birthmarks, and Tattoo Marks.

DON'T WEAR A PLATE
WITH YOUR TEETH.
There's so much to be said regarding the superb method known as CROWN and BRIDGE WORK (that is, having artificial Teeth with any Plate) that I hardly know just where to begin or end. There's such a Wealth of COMFORT and Happiness to be gained—they are so clean and altogether so natural-looking, that all the World-famous Dentists have no hesitation in recommending their Patients "NEVER TO WEAR A PLATE." This fact must therefore appeal irresistibly to you that I would not risk my hard-won reputation by even suggesting anything that wasn't full of advantages to my prospective Patients. This work only costs from Two Guineas (£2 2s 0d).
DENTIST CHAS. I. HARRIS,
ST. JAMES'-CHAMBERS, KING-STREET,
